U.S. officials probe home mailbox blasts

by LUISA GINETTI

Investigators from the U.S. Dept. of Justice Postal Division are investigating a series of home mailbox bombings during the past three months in the Highland Glen subdivision, Wheeling.

The sixth and most recent incident occurred Thursday night at 129 Coral Ln. where investigators said a black powder device was used in the explosion which blew the mailbox almost 20 feet in the air.

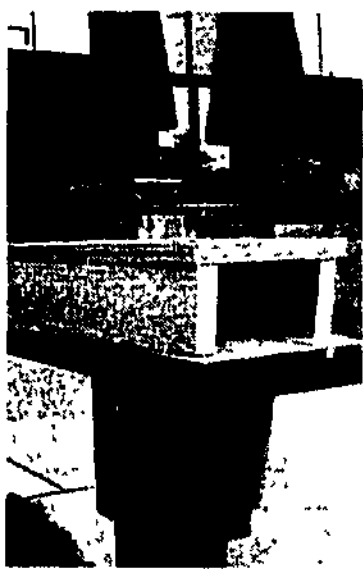

Thursday night's incident was described by federal investigators as the most violent of the explosions to occur thus far and the first in five or six weeks. Federal investigators said they are working with Wheeling police but have stepped up their own efforts in light of the latest incident.

Investigators said Thursday night's explosion was enough to maim or kill anyone who might have been close to the mailbox. No fragments were found at the scene and investigators believe a timing device may have been used in the bombing.

THE INCIDENT was similar to five other mailbox bombings which have occurred since June in the Highland Glen area, according to Wheeling police.

Lt. Ronald Nelson said black powder devices were used in each case but Thursday night's incident was the most violent.

Nelson said there were no witnesses to Thursday's bombing but a neighbor retrieved mail from the box at about 7 p.m.

Police believe the bomb was placed sometime between 7 p.m. and the time of the explosion shortly before 9 p.m. The mailboxes are mounted on a post at the street curb away from the house. Nelson said the explosion caused no other damage and no one was injured.

Police patrols were increased in the area in June when the first incidents occurred but normal patrols were resumed several weeks ago because there were no more bombings, Nelson said.

"We are at a point now where we consider it a major investigation and we are very concerned about it," Nelson said. He added that police believe the incidents are the work of "pranksters."

Federal investigators said Friday they are not satisfied with Wheeling's handling of the situation and are stepping up their own investigation as a result of Thursday's incident. Tampering with a mailbox is a federal offense.

A FEDERAL investigator said Friday the Justice Department's postal division was notified of the incidents earlier this summer by the Wheeling Post Office, which received the first reports of the bombings. He said the number of bombings is "significant" and prompted the federal intervention.

"We are trying to avert a tragedy out there and although we don't want to create a panic, some people don't know about it and they should be careful," he said.

Dick Cooper
discovers campaign trail can get muddy

PIT STOP in a southern Illinois coal mine gives Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper, a Republican candidate for governor, a chance to clean mud from his shoes.

Mines were closed by a union walkout and 3.5 inches of rain shortly before Cooper arrived for tour of a strip mine in St. Clair County in an early campaign foray.

by BOB LAHEY

MARISSA, Ill. — Richard H. Cooper had come to deep southern Illinois to dig his hands into the bowels of the earth alongside the large, leathery miners who wrest coal from the land.

Instead, he was getting the V.I.P. tour of River King Pit No. 6 by an entourage of management personnel of Peabody Coal Co.

Having left his Winnetka home before daylight for the two-hour flight to the coal country, he arrived before starting time only to learn the mine workers had walked off the job.

"Hi, I'm Dick Cooper, Republican candidate for governor," he said to Mine Supt. Chet Findley. "I'm here to do a day's work."

"Looks like you're the only one," Findley replied. THIS WAS COOPER'S first stop in a planned series of "workdays" during which he says he will "work his way to the governor's mansion" by meeting the people of Illinois and learning their problems.

During handshaking stops, he tells people, "I'm a worker, not a walker." He also will reply, when the uninitiated ask who he's running against, "I'm running against Dan Walker."

There is, of course, the small matter of winning the Republican nomination over former U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, or perhaps State Comptroller George Lindberg. And then it could turn out that the Democratic candidate is State Treasurer Alan Dixon, or conceivably Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

Earlier, as the small four-passenger Aerocommander threaded its way in dim light between layers of clouds toward the south, Cooper sipped coffee and considered that lineup.

"The governor has already lost," he declares. "But nobody has won it yet, and you can't tell at this point if Walker might win it back again."

Cooper is an intense man with deep blue eyes set in a sun-bronzed face. He has a habit of snapping the fingers of both hands in rapid succession when he talks about his goals. "We can make this thing happen."

Snap, snap, snap, snap. IT IS THE ACQUIRED habit of a man who has worked his way from semi-poverty as a stock boy at Gimbel's to the owner of his own trucking company to the top spot in the aggressive, super-sales pitch organizations, Weight Watchers Inc.

HE IS NEW TO politics. But he is "getting comfortable with campaigning" after the first few weeks on the trail.

While waiting for an airplane a week or so ago, he said he had begun to lose that initial awkward feeling that all political neophytes must overcome.

"I was just sitting in the Peoria airport, with an hour to wait, when I suddenly realized I was wasting time. So I got up and started walking around, shaking hands."

He found, said Cooper, "If you walk up to people with your hand outstretched and a smile on your face, they will talk to you." Unfortunately, he added, half the people he met in the airport were from Iowa.

Cooper acknowledges, as the plane starts its descent toward the tiny Sparta, Ill., airport, that he has not developed strong positions on specific issues.

Saturday

"I've never seen anything wrong in saying, 'I don't know,'" says the 35-year-old entrepreneur who accumulated his first million dollars at the age of 27. "I've made a lot of money in the stock market with that attitude. If I'm interested in a company, I don't just read the Standard & Poor report; I go out and look at the company and find out for myself what it's doing."

THEN COOPER IS ON the ground and is being told that the miners have gone out on a wildcat strike in a dispute over working hours. "I won't cross the picket line," he says. But the Peabody spokesman assures him there are many entrances to the 20,000-acre mining complex and there will be no confrontations with pickets.

Many of the entrances have been closed by standing water — hours before, St. Clair County had been deluged by 3.5 inches of rain in three hours.

After an initial briefing in the mine's operations office, Cooper is driven in a mud-covered four-wheel-drive van over the soupy company roads to the bottom of Pit No. 6, which is under eight feet of water.

He is wearing denim work clothes — a wise choice — and a blue double-breasted jacket with gold buttons which would look more fitting at a North Shore yacht club.

He also is wearing soft-leather loafers with tassels. As the van slips and slides through the much to the bottom of the 100-foot pit, where the mine's chief mechanism is seen slogging knee-deep, one senses Cooper is beginning to realize the loafers are a mistake.

No one is working except two men who are setting pumps on the opposite bank of the flooded pit. That is the higher side, and a mud-begrimed miner is slithering down a 125-foot face of goop and rain-polished shale, clinging to a rope.

STANDING THERE with the slime creeping toward the tops of his loafers, Cooper makes one more

2 area suburbs get open-land funds

by KURT BAER

Two Northwest suburbs will receive money to buy open land as part of a $5 million program of state grants announced Friday by Gov. Dan Walker.

The Village of Arlington Heights will receive $499,750 to buy 113 acres of land along McDonald Creek, east of Windsor Drive, for the future development of Lake Arlington.

The Schaumburg Park District will be paid $78,750 to buy 12.6 acres along the west branch of Salt Creek at the Spring Valley Nature Center, Plum Grove Road south of Schaumburg Road.

THE GRANTS are intended to be matched with local funds.

Of the $5 million allocated to 59 separate communities in the state, $2.3 million will be spent in Cook County and $2 million in five suburban counties surrounding Cook.

Price controls on oil to be removed slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and congressional leaders, showing new signs of energy policy compromise, agreed Friday on a proposal to extend oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them slowly over a period not to exceed 39 months.

As a conciliatory gesture, Ford promised to delay his threatened veto of a six-month price control extension until after the new plan can be presented to House and Senate Democrats late next week.

Ford softened his resistance to compromise during an hour-long meeting with House speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who believe Congress can come up with new energy legislation in 30 days.

BUT THE PRESIDENT rejected Mansfield's plea that he sign the six-month control bill "for the sake of the nation" to ward off a gasoline price hike of at least 3 cents a gallon and other inflationary effects of immediate decontrol.

"We found the President most considerate, most helpful, most conciliatory," Mansfield told reporters.

"He showed flexibility. Frankly, I was encouraged."

The new plan, presented by Mansfield, apparently would require Congress quickly to pass a bill extending present price controls for no more than 60 days. That would give time for the House and Senate to then pass another bill phasing out the controls gradually as the President wanted.

"The President told Mansfield and Albert that he would not veto a short extension of oil price controls if he is reasonably confident Congress will act favorably within a matter of weeks on the phased decontrol plan," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

NESSEN SAID Ford would "act favorably" on the decontrol bill proposed by Mansfield if it were adopted by Congress.

Neither Nessen nor Mansfield would elaborate on details of the plan. Nessen said the 60-day and 39-month periods were the most Ford would accept. But Mansfield, asked about decontrol over 39 months, replied: "You're on the right track, but you've got the

Total of cases in state 43

Encephalitis reports up to 29

by KAREN BLECHA

The number of probable and suspected cases of encephalitis in Cook County rose to 29 Friday as area hospitals reported an increase in calls from residents concerned about the disease.

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health Friday reported six new cases of the mosquito-borne disease, known as sleeping sickness, bringing the state total to 43. Although the department reported fewer new cases Friday than Thursday, a state health official said that does not mean the disease has reached its peak.

The new cases included two confirmed cases in Decatur and Urbana and four suspected cases hospitalized in Cook County in Blue Island, Hazelcrest, Hines and Evergreen Park.

A 54-YEAR-OLD Oak Lawn woman was suspected to have died from the disease Thursday but tests proved to be inconclusive, said a spokesman for the County Health Dept. No cases were reported in the Northwest suburbs.

"We have had a lot of general phone calls from people asking about symptoms of the disease and what they can do about them," said Ed Van Natta, spokesman for Litheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

"There seems to be a rumor that we have a case from Morton Grove with encephalitis," he said. "The 13-year-old boy is being tested for encephalitis but the diagnosis is probably viral meningitis."

JIM McQUAID at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, said the hospital received a rush of calls after the 10 p.m. news Thursday after reports the disease had reached an epidemic.

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, also reported an increase in calls and several people in the emergency room complaining of headaches. Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, reported no encephalitis calls.

Hospital officials advise people with symptoms of the disease to see their family physician. Symptoms include nausea, high fever, headache, stiff neck, and eventually, coma. There is no known cure for the disease, but most victims recover naturally.

SEVERAL AREA drug stores reported an increase in the number of people buying insect repellants, a suggested precaution to ward off mosquitos that might carry the disease.

Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District, said crews will work over the weekend and Labor Day to spray for mosquitos in the Northwest suburbs.

He said that Thursday the district's traps caught 111 mosquitos during a 12-hour period. "That tells us we have a very small population of mosquitos out there," he says. "Between one-third and one-fourth less than what we need to spray under normal conditions."

He said the mosquitos are of the northern house variety, possible carriers of encephalitis, and flood-water variety.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen of the county health department said there is no way to tell if the worst of the encephalitis epidemic is over.

Gas prices aren't going up—just yet

by LEA TONKIN

Motorists gained a temporary reprieve Friday from gasoline price hikes tied to the lifting of federal controls because of the oil policy compromise hammered out by President Ford and congressional leaders.

A decontrol move would likely mean an eventual 5 to 6-cent a gallon boost in pump prices for gasoline, said Herbert Hugo, senior editor of the Platt's Oilgram industry publication, Chicago. Oil companies are allowed to pass along increased costs to consumers on a monthly basis under the Federal Energy Administration controls, however.

Potential price hikes by Mid East oil producing nations could add another 2 cents a gallon to gas prices by the end of 1975, Hugo said. A price break of 3 cents a gallon may come about as a result of the lifting of a U.S. tariff on imported oil prices, he said. Hugo said the average pump price for regular gasoline in the Chicago metropolitan area is 64 cents a gallon.

MAJOR OIL companies are coming out with a variety of statements on the likely fuel price increases, Hugo said. He believes major oil companies will restrain price levels for several months following any decontrol move to avoid public criticism.

"The way I'm looking at it, the biggest and most dramatic trial of American business is about to begin, with the oil business as a defendant," Hugo said.

"They must prove to critics that they can do a better job of taking care of serving the public than under government controls." Public pressure will continue through 1976 elections, he said.

"The danger period will come after the elections in 1976," he said. Consumers may tire of energy issues and public scrutiny, he said.

Mechanics threaten complete strike

Striking auto mechanics announced a new set of contract demands Friday and warned that if the terms are not met by Tuesday some 80 dealerships where workers remain on the job will be struck.

The announcement was made by a representative of Local 701, International Assn. of Machinists in Chicago. A Friday bargaining session with the Employers Assn. of Greater Chicago, representing auto dealers, was canceled.

About 4,000 auto mechanics are employed by the 281 dealers included in the employer association membership. A work stoppage began July 2 at many dealerships as a result of a contract dispute.

Mechanics remain on the job at more than 80 of the dealerships, however. The mechanics had agreed to work at shops where dealers continued paying them under the agreement which expired June 30.

Pay and fringe benefits are among the contract issues. Dealers sought to eliminate the 50-50 split which allows mechanics to share the service fee for work in addition to 40 hours' service in one week.

No comment was available from the employer group.

Ford, congressmen compromise

No matter what happens, the government's present authority to allocate petroleum supplies and control prices will expire at midnight Sunday and Ford will veto Congress' six-month extension bill. Nessen said the veto might be signed next Friday.

IN ANOTHER major energy development, the Interior Department announced that 18 oil companies have identified 10.9 million acres of seabed off the coasts of Massachusetts and Rhode Island for the second Atlantic Ocean offshore drilling project.

The area, 75 miles wide and 180 miles long, is at the southern end of the Georges Bank Trough and includes 1,927 tracts which the oil companies said were desirable drilling sites. An interior spokesman said the closest tracts are 24 miles off the coast, although most are 100 miles out.

Interior plans to auction off drilling leases in the New England offshore area next August after evaluating the industry site nominations and eliminating some for environmental or other reasons. The first Atlantic Ocean lease sale, for 154 tracts off the mid-Atlantic coast, is planned for May.

Until Friday, officials indicated Ford had no intention of agreeing to any new compromise with Congress on oil decontrol because the House had rejected earlier 39-month and 30-month decontrol plans he offered.

BUT MANSFIELD, fearing the economic shock of immediate decontrol, went ahead with his last-ditch compromise.

Mansfield said immediate decontrol would have a "rippling effect on the whole economy, not just on the price of gasoline," directly boosting inflation by $13 billion a year and adding indirect inflationary impacts of $20 and $30 billion a year.

"Virtually all economists agree that if the Petroleum Allocation Act is not extended, it means chaos and disruption to the economy," he said in a statement prepared for Ford and distributed to every congressman.

After meeting Ford, Mansfield said he hopes the oil industry will withhold any increases when the present controls expire in light of the possibility a new set of controls will soon be in place.

A DECONTROL MOVE by the federal government could allow "old" oil prices to increase from the $5.25 a barrel level to more than $10 a barrel, Hugo said. Although the price swing will affect consumers, he sees a benefit in the price incentive for added exploration for new energy resources.

Some independent marketers and companies that do not have a long-term source of petroleum supply may be adversely affected by the decontrol move, he said. "These are tense times," Hugo said of the uncertainty about decontrol and other energy legislation.

The Chicago Motor Club said the range of gasoline price increases passed along to area motorists during August causes difficulty in price predictions for the fall. Consumers traditionally experienced lower pump prices after the Labor Day, the club said.

THE CLUB REPORTS the average price for a gallon of gasoline in Cook County is 62.4 cents, and premium prices average 66.9 cents a gallon. Two weeks ago, the prices were 62 cents and 66.7 cents a gallon, respectively.

Downstate Illinois pump prices are an average 62.7 cents a gallon for regular gas and 67.1 cents a gallon for premium fuel. In northern Indiana 58.8 cents a gallon is the average regular gas price and 63.3 cents is the average premium gasoline cost.

Wide fluctuations in gasoline prices are reported in Cook County. Thirteen cents separate the highest and lowest prices for regular gasoline and 8 cents separate premium price extremes.

Military overthrows government in Peru

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — The Peruvian Army Friday announced the overthrow of President Gen. Juan Velasco Alvarado and his replacement by Prime Minister and army commander Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez.

In repeated announcements read over Peru's radio and television networks, army commanders from the country's five regions announced Velasco's "Revolution of the Armed Forces," would continue, but without what it called "a cult of personality."

Morales Bermudez, who spent most of the week in southern Peru near the Chilean border, where the bulk of the army makes its headquarters, was reported returning to Lima to assume the presidency.

Velasco, 65, president of Peru since 1968, received news of the apparently bloodless coup while meeting at the presidential palace with his closest advisors.

Four hours later, Velasco announced his resignation in a message handed out the back door of the palace by an unidentified army captain.

Velasco said he resigned with "the great satisfaction of having done my duty and set the foundation for a new Peru."

"As leader of the Peruvian revolution, I thank the people of my country, the armed forces and the police forces for the support they have given me in the difficult task of transforming society," Velasco said.

He urged all Peruvians "in uniform or out" give the same support to his successor.

The president's wife, Consuelo, was informed of the coup while reading a speech to a national charity group. Peruvian journalists said she immediately left the meeting in tears.

Morales Bermudez, 53, grandson of a president, is considered one of the more cautious and pragmatic of the socialist-minded generals who ran Peru under Velasco.

He is expected to launch fewer ambitious projects and count, costs more carefully than his feisty predecessor.

First news of the coup came in a government radio and television communique from the southern Peruvian city of Tacna.

The communique was issued in the name of "We Peruvians who desire a free fatherland in which individuals, as well as all of Peruvian society, can realize their goals."

The lightning coup by the same army officers who put Velasco into power in 1968 caught the country by surprise. It came while the government was host to the 76-nation meeting of the nonaligned foreign ministers — a conference billed as a Peruvian diplomatic triumph.

People in the streets of Lima whispered excitedly about the news and businessmen closed their stores, pulling steel shutters to the ground. There were no reports of violence.

He championed the six million Peruvian Indians who lived in poverty in the high Andes mountain range, but in doing so he antagonized the urban middle classes in the large coastal cities. Nevertheless, he never appeared to suffer a direct challenge until Friday's military coup.

Peru, under his government, temporarily became a Mecca for Latin American leftists of all persuasions until recent months, when Velasco Alvarado began to drift to the right, telling radicals they were no longer wanted. Many were expelled.

Relations with the United States recently improved with the signing of a financial accord.

Ford plea for pay boost for Congress criticized

by HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford decided Friday to limit pay raises to 5 per cent for members of Congress, judges, cabinet officers, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and some 5 million government white collar workers.

But his decision against the 8.66 per cent pay hike recommended by the Civil Service Commission brought immediate protest from labor leaders and federal worker organizations who called it "unconscionable," "grossly unfair" and "callous."

The higher figure, Ford said, would have cost more than $49.7 million.

A bill which Ford signed earlier this month added the congressmen, top-scale officials at the cabinet and sub-cabinet levels and federal judges to the list of federal workers receiving automatic increases designed to keep federal pay comparable to that in the private sector.

Ford's 5 per cent recommendation goes into effect automatically unless disapproved by Congress before Oct. 1. If his recommendation is rejected, the workers get the 8.66 per cent originally proposed.

AFL-CIO Pres. George Meany promptly issued a statement saying the President's recommendation is "a cruel Labor Day present for federal workers."

"It is grossly unfair for the President to say federal employees must sacrifice while his administration's food and energy policies are forcing up the price of everything they must buy," Meany said.

Pres. Mason T. Wolkomir of the National Federation of Federal Employees said, "The President's concern for the dangers of inflation is no greater than our own and federal employees would rally to his side if a nationwide 5 per cent lid were to be placed on wages, prices, corporate profits and the like. But to compel this small segment of America's working people to bear the entire brunt of our present economic woes is clearly unconscionable and can serve no useful purpose."

Pres. W. Howard McClellan of the Public Employee Dept., AFL-CIO, said the Ford proposal is "another example of the callous economic strategy of the Ford administration which supports business tax credits with one hand while taking money from workers with the other."

FTC acts to improve auto ads on fuel economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission, seeking to "bring some order out of the chaos," Friday issued guidelines to force automakers to tell the whole truth about their cars' fuel economy.

The guidelines, requiring that anticipated mileage figures for both city and highway driving be given equal billing, will go into effect Oct. 15. They will stay in force until permanent — and perhaps tougher — rules are developed, a process that will take a year or more.

J. Thomas Rosch, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said the commission "has been agonizing" for weeks what to do about fuel economy ads and had decided Thursday it could wait no longer to act.

"There's a need to bring some order out of the chaos that exists in current fuel economy advertising — and that need is immediate," Rosch said in announcing the guidelines.

Although the commission is worried about widespread criticism that test procedures used by the Environmental Protection Agency are not a reliable measure of fuel economy, Rosch said, the EPA figures are now the only common reference available and so form the basis of the guidelines.

But accurate or not, he said, "We're not happy with the way advertisers have been using the EPA numbers."

He refused to identify any specific manufacturers or advertisements but said the commission is particularly concerned about those who make blanket claims of fuel economy or who stress only highway mileage figures in their ads.

Though the guidelines are just "advisory in nature," they are enforceable through cease-and-desist orders and substantial civil penalties for violating them.

The guidelines require that:

- Advertisements making fuel economy claims cite EPA test results both for city and highway driving "in a clear and conspicuous manner."

- When fuel economy claims are made for cars available in more than one engine size, transmission type or fuel system, those factors must be disclosed for the car used in the test.

- When mileage figures are cited that are not derived from EPA tests, the advertisement must cite optional equipment carried that may affect fuel economy.

- Ads stress the mileage claims are estimates and that actual mileage may differ depending on driving habits, condition of the car, and optional equipment.

Rosch said the FTC expects to issue proposed comprehensive rules within 30 days, although public hearings and other procedures required before they can become permanent will take at least a year.

Portugal Premier Goncalves is fired

President Francisco da Costa Gomes in a final effort to end Portugal's long government crisis and head off the threat of civil war, fired Communist-backed Premier Vasco Goncalves Friday and named the navy commander to succeed him. The new premier is Adm. Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, 57, who will try to form the nation's sixth government since the April 25, 1974, revolution which ended nearly five decades of rightwing dictatorship. Azevedo was widely reputed to be as much a Communist supporter as Goncalves but at least his appointment meant a new face at the head of the government and a less controversial personality than Goncalves.

Israel-Egypt peace agreement delayed

Technical problems of wording delayed completion of the interim peace accord between Israel and Egypt Friday. But Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger said after a meeting with Israel's foreign minister that he was "very optimistic." Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said he believed Israel would decide to sign the agreement with Egypt within three days. Kissinger said he was now aiming for both sides to initial the accord early next week. "We've arrived at the last stage of negotiations," Allon told a television interviewer. "In two or three days we'll know if it is possible to sign or not. I believe we'll sign."

Indonesia, Portugal seek end to civil war

Indonesia and Portugal Friday agreed on the need for "effective measures" to end the bloody civil war between rival nationalist groups on Portuguese Timor. In Macao, an official Portuguese spokesman described as chaotic the situation in the Timor capital of Dili. He said fighting had died down in the colony's interior. The mercy ship Macdill arrived in Darwin, Australia, carrying 732 refugees from the war-ravaged East Indian island. Four injured evacuees had to be winched ashore.

Ireland's de Valera dies at 92

Eamon de Valera, the American-born statesman who dominated Ireland's political life for half a century as revolutionary, prime minister and president, died Friday with the name of his beloved Ireland on his lips. He was 92. "All my life I have done my best for Ireland," de Valera whispered to a nursing nun shortly before the end. "Now I am ready to go." De Valera, the firebrand revolutionary who became a father figure for the nation he helped create, died in a nursing home on the outskirts of Dublin. His son, Maj. Vivon de Valera, and two priests were at his side.

President Ford off to New England

Armed with an optimistic outlook on the economy, President Ford arranged to fly to New England Saturday for speaking appearances and then spend the remainder of the Labor Day weekend with his family at the Camp David mountaintop retreat in Maryland. Ford met with his economic and energy advisers Friday for a review of the economy and heard Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, forecast a continued upward trend in the economy. According to White House Press Sec. Ron Nessen, Greenspan "continues to feel the inflation rate for August will not be at the 1.2 per cent level of July."

Raft on Niagara River capsizes; two killed

An experimental raft capsized in the treacherous white water rapids near the whirlpool on the Niagara River Friday, dumping its 30 passengers into the deadly swirling waters. At least two persons were killed and others injured. Two helicopters from the Ontario Provincial police continued to search the waters of the lower Niagara River for two persons still missing. One of them apparently was sucked into the whirlpool.

Users of food stamps decline

The number of Americans enrolled in the government's food stamp program in July were 19.1 million, down 100,000 to the lowest level since last February, the Agriculture Dept. said Friday. Officials said in response to a query that they have reduced their estimates of the total cost of the stamp program for the year which began July 1 to $5.885 billion. The new estimate is some $800 million above spending in the 1974-75 fiscal year which ended June 30, but about $1 billion less than President Ford earlier told Congress he expected to have to spend in a recent message urging considering of bills to tighten the program.

U.S. hikes ceiling on home loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The interest ceiling on government-backed mortgage loans will be raised to 9 per cent Tuesday to reflect upward pressure on borrowed money, Housing Sec. Carla Hills said Friday.

Mrs. Hills said the rise from 8.5 per cent effective since April was necessary because home sellers were being charged "excessively high" penalties by mortgage lenders.

The new higher interest charges will apply to buyers of homes with mortgages guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration.

After peaking at a record 9.5 per cent 13 months ago, mortgage interest rates had moved down steadily until hitting 8 per cent last March.

The Mortgage Bankers Assn., which financed two-thirds of FHA-VA loans in 1974, said the "timely and appropriate" increase in the government ceiling would stimulate housing sales and new construction.

MBA said the home seller was paying 7 to 8 per cent of the selling price in "points" to guarantee a mortgage loan for the buyer. The higher ceiling will cut points in half allowing the seller of a median $37,000 home to put an extra $1,500 in his pocket.

460 expected to die

In Greenville, Ill., they're wishing Labor Day motorists

Merry Christmas in case they aren't around Dec. 25

by United Press International
Big reflector signs Friday wished "Merry Christmas to those who won't be here" to Labor Day weekend travelers on I-70 at Greenville, Ill.

The signs invited holiday motorists to "take five, stay alive — free coffee next exit." And a ho-ho-ho'ing Santa Claus waved drivers in to an elaborate rest stop manned by the Greenville Jaycees.

Around the nation, state highway police, tollway police and city and county officers prepared for an expected all-time record Labor Day weekend traffic.

The National Safety Council predicted Americans celebrating the last summer holiday would travel a record 12.6 billion miles between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday. The council estimated that 460 to 500 persons would die in traffic accidents during the three-day holiday. Another 18,000 to 23,000 may suffer disabling injuries, council statisticians figured.

Anxiety over the energy crisis kept many motorists off the highways during the 1974 Labor Day weekend, but not so this year, a council spokesman said.

"This year, it seems that people are making up for trips that they didn't take earlier — or last year," the spokesman said.

Gasoline was not expected to be a problem. Although it is selling at record high prices in many areas, there should be ample supplies in most of the country, authorities said.

Indiana state police warned they would concentrate on enforcing the 55-mile-per-hour highway speed limit and would use radar units, marked and unmarked patrol cars and helicopters to make motorists behave.

Michigan state police set up special enforcement teams to supplement regular patrols on major interstate routes.

The Illinois Toll Highway Authority beefed up both its patrols and emergency crews. The Chicago Motor Club estimated 1.5 million people would leave the six-county metropolitan area to go to resorts, holiday festivals or quiet picnics in the country.

At Clarion, Iowa, members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the VFW auxiliary set up a coffee-and-donuts stand at a rest stop where Iowa 3 joins U.S. 69. The town's "Labor Day Coffee Break" was started some 25 years ago, the first of its kind in the nation.

Agnew's son gets probation

James "Randy" Agnew, 29, was put on probation Friday in Baltimore after the son of the former vice president testified he was not spying through a young couple's window but was drunk and sick. Agnew, who admitted lying to police about his name, was accused of "trespassing with intent to peep" after Timothy Frye and his wife Susan, both 17, alleged he looked through their bedroom window about 2 a.m. July 7. The ruling, "probation without judgment," does not establish guilt or innocence provided Agnew remains out of trouble.

Two arrested in Pegasus raid

by KURT BAER

Simultaneous police raids in Arlington Heights and Chicago Friday closed the offices of the controversial Pegasus race track betting courier service.

Pegasus offices at 1612 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and 343 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, were raided shortly after 1:30 p.m. Friday. Police confiscated two teletype machines and print-out pages with wagering information on races being run at Arlington Park Race Track.

No cash was taken from either office, police said.

CHARGED WITH violating a state statute that prohibits the transmission and receipt of betting information were Louise Kaplan, 41, of Northbrook, identified by police as the office manager in Arlington Heights; and William Rose, general manager of the Chicago office.

Rose was released on $1,000 bond, and Ms. Kaplan was released on her own recognizance. Both individuals are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court Sept. 19.

Pegasus' Chicago office was raided several times earlier this summer by

Chicago police, who claimed that the business' practice of accepting money for bets at Chicago-area race tracks violated the city's antigambling ordinances.

Pegasus charges its customers 30 cents for every dollar bet in their name.

PEGASUS REOPENED this week after a Circuit Court judge ruled that the betting operation was not a clear-cut violation of Chicago gambling ordinances.

Friday's raids were based upon an Illinois statute that prohibits the transmission of betting information by "telephone, telegraph, radio, sonaphone or similar means," and the installation of equipment for the transmission or receipt of betting information.

Police contend Pegasus' Arlington Heights and Chicago offices were connected by the teletype machines that were used to send betting information.

Warrants for the raids were issued by Associate Judge Anthony J. Scollino.

Arlington Heights police said they became aware of Pegasus' Northwest Highway office Wednesday, and had the building under surveillance before the raid.

Lake Arlington complex to be sportsman's dream

Lake Arlington will be a 113-acre recreational complex that will include a small boat marina, outdoor theater, ball fields, tennis courts, bicycle paths, horseshoe pits and fishing piers.

Purchase price of the land is estimated at around $1 million. The announcement Friday that the Village of Arlington Heights will receive nearly $300,000 in state funds for the project is apt to heat up the village's land acquisition effort.

"It's very good news for the village and we will attempt to push it (the project) along as rapidly as possible," said Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding that has been planning Lake Arlington.

INITIALLY, village officials will attempt to negotiate the sale of the undeveloped land from the property owners. If a sale price cannot be agreed on, the Arlington Heights Village Board will condemn the property which could signal a lengthy court fight before the land is publicly owned.

Once the property is acquired, Arlington Heights will be faced with the problem of raising an estimated $5 million to construct the lake.

The recreational plan will cost an additional $100,000.

It will take several years to design, finance and construct Lake Arlington.

AN AGREEMENT between the Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights park districts insures equal access to the lake for Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights residents. The lake property will remain part of Prospect Heights Park District, according to the agreement, though the recreational complex will be managed by the Arlington Heights Park District.

Palmatier said that state guidelines will have to be followed in the land purchase, including state-directed appraisals of the property and monitoring of land sale negotiations.

Because much of the Lake Arlington land lies in the McDonald Creek flood plain and is not considered "buildable," the property has a lower purchase price than it would otherwise, Palmatier said. "I think the state grant may go a long way toward acquiring these parcels."

A part of the Lake Arlington site lies in with the planned development of a second campus for Harper College at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

School talks go on despite impasse

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 school board members have decided to continue negotiating with teachers despite an impasse declared by board negotiators earlier this week.

Board members met in executive session Thursday night to discuss their next step but no details were released Friday. Teachers had voted Wednesday to send their negotiators back to the table rather than strike.

Because an impasse exists, the next step is for both sides to hire a mediator to settle the situation. Board negotiators and union officials plan to meet Wednesday to decide their plans.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said board members discussed the state of negotiations at length, but he declined to elaborate on their comments.

State open-land grants awarded

Other grants in the North suburban area include $500,000 to the Village of Glenview to buy 46 acres of land at the western edge of the village called Kennicott Grove and $200,000 to the Village of Barrington to buy 17.6 acres of land between Bakers Lake and the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Hanover Park will receive $32,500 to buy five acres of land at Mueller Park. Lake County will get a $130,000 grant for an addition to the county's forest preserve system.

WALKER SAID the open land grants were intentionally concentrated in the Chicago metropolitan area to help balance park land deficits that exist in many communities.

"As desirable land becomes more scarce in the Chicago area and elsewhere in the nation and as acquisition costs skyrocket, Illinois communities have a unique opportunity through this open space program to create new parks and recreation areas at reasonable costs," Walker said at a Chicago press conference.

The $5 million will be used in the purchase of 1,800 acres of land for public recreation throughout the state, 290 in Cook County. Last year, $3.3 million was allocated for 900 acres of property in the state.

Community applications for the funds in this area were processed through the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission which rated each application's eligibility for the program.

An application from the Arlington Heights Park District for a 1.3-acre addition to Greens Park, Olive and Douglas streets, apparently was not approved. The park district asked for $15,000 to buy the additional land.

Jews look to good new year

Many are surprised to learn that Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, actually takes place in the seventh and not the first month of the Jewish Year.

The holiday also confuses people because some Jews celebrate Rosh Hashanah for two days, while others celebrate only one. This year Rosh Hashanah begins with sundown Friday.

Rosh Hashanah is the first of the 10 days of Penitence which culminate with Yom Kippur, the day of Atonement. Jewish tradition holds that God created the world on this day. Yet there is no mention in the Bible that it should serve as the New Year's Day.

THE HILLE does say, however, that "in the seventh month, in the first day of the month shall ye have a sabbath, a memorial blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation."

And this is the day that is celebrated as Rosh Hashanah literally "the head of the year."

But the actual first day of the first month on the Jewish calendar falls nearer to the spring. This calendar counts from the first day of the Jews' exodus from Egypt as designated by Moses.

The next question is why some celebrate the holiday for one day, and others for two.

THIS DICHOTOMY also has its roots in antiquity, for in Biblical times Rosh Hashanah was celebrated for only a day. But when the Romans crushed the ancient Jewish state and sent its inhabitants to the four corners of the earth, one of the sages added a second day to the holiday.

Since wide time differences existed in various parts of the world, concern was felt that all Jews should be able to observe at least most of the holiday at the same time. Today the Jews in Israel, as well as members of the Reform movement, have returned to the Biblical custom of celebrating for a single day.

There is no champagne or confetti in the Rosh Hashanah celebration as in celebration of the Gregorian New Year. Indeed, this holiday is considered the annual Judgment Day. Temple and synagogue services are solemn.

AFTER AN elaborate prayer service, the ram's horn, or shofar, is sounded for all to hear. Its piercing call summons the worshippers to look within and search their consciences.

The traditional holiday greeting is "May you be written down in the book of life for a good year."

At a time when the United States and the rest of the world are beset by economic, as well as other, problems of all sorts, it can be hoped that people everywhere will be "written down for a good year."

4 major denominations face internal schisms

At a time when Christian churches in America are getting along well with each other and with other faiths, several Protestant denominations are wracked by internal dissension that could erupt in open schism.

The troubled churches include more than 15 million members.

On the brink of splintering is the 2.8 million member Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

A major split in the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., the largely Southern branch of American Presbyterianism, has seen 50,000 members defect in the past two years to the dissident-formed Presbyterian Church in America.

The threat of schism is worrying the 3 million-member Episcopal Church as well as the United Methodist Church, which claims 10 million members.

ALTHOUGH the divisions usually are reported in terms of conservative vs. liberal factions, the issues differ in each denomination.

The Presbyterians, for example, broke up over a series of issues stemming generally from "conservative" members' dissatisfaction with doctrinal changes and the national leadership's stance on social and political issues.

The battle raging in the Missouri Synod for nearly a decade concerns Biblical interpretation and control of the denomination's administrative machinery, now held by so-called conservatives who prevailed at the church's biennial convention in July.

The "moderate" faction recently endorsed the Lutheran Church in Mission as an alternative for those who feel compelled to leave the Missouri Synod. The alternate body announced it soon will begin accepting applications for membership.

The break probably won't come with a big bang and mass exodus. Some moderates want to remain in the Missouri Synod and carry on their struggle there.

IN THE EPISCOPAL Church, the controversy over ordination of women to the priesthood has gotten most of the headlines. But on the horizon is the matter of proposed revisions in the church's Book of Common Prayer, an even more emotional issue with many Episcopalians.

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

The Living Church, a journal generally associated with opposition to ordination of women and prayer book revision, suggests the two issues might confront Episcopalians with the same divisive situation that is breaking up the Missouri synod.

"What Episcopalians see in the Lutheran camp this summer that may foreshadow what will happen at their General Convention next fall is a demonstration that when issues on which good Christians differ are by their very nature unresolvable, when those on either side feel that if they were to compromise or back down or surrender they would betray a trust from God, there is no way that the governing body can resolve such issues."

"And if, as all Christians believe, one's first duty is to conscience, there may well come a time and a point at which brethren must go their separate ways."

THE THREAT OF schism among United Methodists is more remote, but it nevertheless is real enough that Bishop Earl G. Hunt Jr. felt it necessary to "speak a word of pastoral concern" at a Good News convocation of evangelical Methodists.

The Good News movement generally consists of theological conservatives who oppose the United Methodist leadership on a wide variety of issues, including overseas missions, liberal tendencies in seminaries and what they perceive as a shift away from the church's traditional core of theological doctrine.

Hunt urged Good News adherents to "avoid at all costs attitudes and actions which could lead United Methodism down the road to schism."

He said, "There comes a time in the life of a movement when it is easier to go down the road of schism than to climb painfully and discouragingly those rugged hills which lead to your purposes and to unity of our Lord Jesus Christ."

A Good News board member summed up the situation, perhaps also for most of American church life, when he said:

"United Methodists aren't schismatics. They just fade away from the church or into another denomination." (United Press International)

Herald opinion

Let's protect 'old' residents

Palatine officials have been moving rapidly toward annexation of five northern subdivisions.

Most recently, the Palatine Village Board approved a 13-point resolution which defines the conditions for annexation of Heatherlea, English Valley, Pepper Tree, Shenandoah and Home Garden Estates subdivisions. All that is needed now are annexation petitions signed by more than 55 per cent of the residents of each area.

As annexation moves forward, we believe Village Pres. Wendell Jones must keep in mind what Trustee Bryan B. Coughlin Jr. was talking about when he cast the only "no" vote against the resolution. Coughlin reminded the board that the present residents of Palatine shouldn't be required to pay the cost of the annexation.

Implicit in what Coughlin was saying is that annexation is not a free ride for residents seeking the amenities of incorporated life. Rather, it's an opportunity for the new residents to have high quality services like fire and police protection, but with the obvious increase in taxes to pay for the services.

It shouldn't be any other way, for the residents of a village such as Palatine already are paying for the services. It wouldn't be fair to require them to pay for services going to the new residents. The alternative, of course, is for the newcomers to remain unincorporated, and to accept the fact that village services won't be as readily available.

Jones, as village president, certainly is aware of the Palatine residents' natural resistance to a violation of this understanding. As plans for annexation go forward, it's a point he should keep in mind.

'Sharks a minor ocean danger'

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK—So you've spent the better part of the summer on edge. Scanning the water for that swift, sharp fin. Dozing fitfully on the beach while the screams of children playing in the surf startle and unnerve you.

Actually, you don't have to worry about that great white shark. He's not the real menace, anyway, some experts say. There are others to be concerned about.

Oceanographer-photographer Andy Pruna, who's been diving for 25 of his 34 years, says, "Eighty per cent of shark attacks have been proved to be provoked. I've encountered many sharks in two or three feet of water, and nothing's happened. Last year, for example, off Miami, I was wading in a sand bank 100 yards offshore and suddenly I saw five or six fins. I immediately recognized them as lemon sharks. There were people swimming everywhere. I crossed the bank and told the lifeguard to get the people out. Later, he told me those sharks, which were six or seven feet long had been appearing there for days. But they'd never attacked. Still, warns Pruna, who's about to film feeding piranha in South America for the movie, Killers of the Wild, "you just never know."

"In the period 1965-1962, from North Carolina to Boston," says Dr. James A. Oliver, director of the New York Aquarium, "there were (only) twenty-two authenticated shark bites on human beings, nine of which resulted in death."

In other words, you're more likely to find trouble elsewhere. With sting rays, for instance.

A PEACEFUL relative of the shark, the sting ray isn't looking for trouble, he's barely looking at all. He's a flat fish with a long tail, that likes to burrow around in the sand underwater. That, however, is where he poses a threat.

"The sting ray has a poisonous barbed spine in the base of his tail," explains John Prescott, director of the New England Aquarium in Boston. "He's a bottom-living fish that loves quiet bays and shallow waters when the water is warm. Of course, that's when people like to swim and that's when the accidents occur."

Step on a sting ray and he'll react naturally, defensively, throwing up his spine and inflicting a puncture wound that can be serious and may require medical attention.

"I know of two cases," Prescott says, "where children swimming in shallow water scraped the bottom and got a sting ray spine in the abdomen. A massive dose of the poison will cause shock and heart failure."

"They're found in all waters," reports Robert F. Staples, a biological oceanographer for the Naval Oceanographic Office in Suitland, Maryland, "particularly off Southern California where the highest rate of sting ray incidence occurs."

Jelly fish, also common, are a bit easier to detect since they're often swept up on shore. But not that much easier because they're also often transparent. "The tentacles which contain the stinging mechanisms are often so long and thin you never see them," says Arthur Ullrich, director of special projects for the National Association of Underwater Instructors. "And a jelly-fish sting can cause welts and be quite painful."

Especially if it's from that particularly nasty genre, the Portuguese man-of-war. Dr. Oliver says, "The Portuguese man-of-war is one of the most common dangers in the ocean. It has a number of poisonous stingers which can cause severe skin irritation, or, if a person is hypersensitive, may even result in death, although this is rare."

IF YOU'RE stung by one offshore, adds John Prescott, "the pain can be so bad and the resulting shock so severe, you can drown."

Only the inhabitants of Florida and Southern California have to worry about the next peril, the barracuda. But they can take preventive action to avoid them, says Edward Ricciuti, author of "Killers of the Seas." "Most barracuda attacks occur in murky waters or at night," he says. "And, since they're attracted to shiny objects, if you're wearing a watch or something bright, they're apt to mistake a piece of you for a small fish." So, avoid swimming at night or in murky waters, and dress conservatively.

The greatest threat of all for the beachgoer — notwithstanding severe sunburn or cuts from broken beer bottles — is the water itself.

"The biggest danger in drowning," says Andy Pruna. (The National Safety Council reports 8,100 deaths due to drowning in 1974, third on the list of accidental causes.) "Kids who can't swim go out on rafts or in life jackets. They fall off the raft or the jacket deflates and they drown. Or a swimmer overexerts himself in cold water, gets a cramp and can't get back to land. Or you get carried away by the undertow."

Arthur Ullrich adds, "Human failure is the greatest hazard. Most people don't think the ocean flows like a river, but it does and there are strong currents in it. People go out into these still-looking waters, farther than they're able, and they run into currents they don't expect and get swept away."

Water is, after all, an alien environment. "They can't cope with being there," Ullrich says, "and so they drown."

EDITORIAL: Labor Day and our troubled economy.

To me, beauty is only if there are no expenses to pay for the annexation.

What the church has meant to her

Thank you for the excellent coverage given the Elm convention by Herald reporter Wandalyne Rice. I have read many articles pertaining to the controversy surrounding the Lutheran Church Missouri-Synod, and it is true that a majority rule of the conservative faction was evident during our annual Missouri-Synod Convention in Annheim this July past. What is relevant to me both then and at present is that many of the key issues were decided by a 57 per cent to 43 per cent vote. A slim conservative majority indeed. Approximately 1,000 delegates represented our 3 million membership at this convention. I believe that a referendum by each church body within our Synod, tallied as a whole, and the resulting vote would give a more explicit picture of the present feeling regarding our current differences.

I have been a member of the Lutheran Church Missouri-Synod all of my life, and I sincerely believe that to deal vindictively and to seal our minds to each other's feelings and viewpoints regardless of our position on the present issues will only lead us to greater conflict, sorrow and indecision. It would do well for all of us to remember that a man that expects to go to heaven should take the trouble to study the route that will get him there. Our feelings run deep and we must be slower to provoke, condemn and resent, and quicker to trust, forgive and conciliate. I am concerned for my church, my pastors, and my fellow members. May God guide all of us in the coming months and help us reconcile our differences somehow through His everlasting love.

THE FOLLOWING is my personal feeling on the present issues:

Before I was born my church gave to my parents ideals of life and love that made my home a place of strength and beauty.

In helpless infancy my church baptized me into Christ to wash away my sins.

My church enriched my childhood with the precious message of God's love and the lessons of life that have been woven into the texture of my soul.

In adolescence my church guided my footsteps by lifting my eyes toward the stars. Again she joined in binding me to my Christ in confirmation and communion.

When love entered into my life, my church sanctified my marriage and blessed my home.

When I did wrong, my church helped me to see the wrong and showed me how to right it. My church assured me of God's forgiveness of every wrong.

When sorrow seared my heart and I thought the sun could never rise again, my church drew me to the friend of all the weary and heavy laden and whispered to me the hope of another morning, eternal and endless.

Every father and mother can say, "My church is helping me to train my children for all joyous, clean, and godly living."

MY CHURCH calls me to her heart. She asks my service and my loyalty. She has the right to ask it. I will help her to do for others what she has done for me. She is my symbol of a living faith.

God bless my church.

Stadium vote asked

Just a few words and my viewpoint regarding the passage of the track stadium plan.

I feel that it should be put to a vote to the entire citizenry, or public as such, who will be concerned in the matter and not solely to "the servants" we elect.

Mother's finest hour

If the school year still starts the way it used to, next week will be spent with everyone trying to remember how to study. Except kindergarten teachers who will only be trying to remember how to tie shoe laces.

In the lower grades there'll be show and tell on "How I Spent My Summer," the upper grades will be given a written assignment titled "How I Spent My Summer" and teachers will be doing a mental exercise called, "Ye gods, Where Did the Summer Go?"

Simultaneously, the monsoon effect of a million mothers heaving a sigh of relief will be felt throughout the land.

That's the way it used to be, way back when I was a mother.

ALTHOUGH I'M still a mother, the child I'll be sending off to school next Tuesday is now a teacher. She used to cry the first day of every new school year, finally outgrowing her tearful habit in the seventh grade. Now I suspect she's back at it again.

I can't say that I blame her.

For a mother, however, the first day of school is the most beautiful day of the year. After the frantic last-minute search for the notebook that disappeared overnight from the carefully assembled stack of supplies — and a belt and a hair ribbon, or a bus pass and an ID card — after all that, the silence in the house is heavenly.

I used to brew a new pot of coffee and then just sit and listen to the dust settle.

THEN I'D BREAK out the morning newspaper and read it from cover to cover including the classified ads. I wasn't that crazy for ads, but it was such a joy to read a paper without someone hollering, "Mom," every two minutes that I got carried away.

The first year that all three kids were in school, I ran the bathtub full of hot water and sat in it until it got cold, reveling in every golden minute of knowing that nobody was going to come bursting into the bathroom with a bloody nose and his side of what started the fight.

The next year, when even the youngest was in school all day, I went grocery shopping. I only needed a loaf of bread, but I spent the whole morning in the store. It was so great, not having somebody yelling from the next aisle, "Hey, Mom can I have —?"

All that was a long time ago, but I still enjoy taking a bath without interruption, and Labor Day is still one of my favorite holidays.

Have a safe and happy one, everybody.

And don't cry, Marilyn — you're a big girl now.

Ask Andy

Fungi nourished by organic food

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Eric Neal, age 11, of Richmond, Va., for his question:

HOW DO FUNGUS PLANTS ORIGINATE?

The most familiar fungus is the edible mushroom, now cultivated under hygienic conditions in special growing sheds. Meantime, wild mushrooms pop up unexpectedly in the meadows. There they have mystified people for ages because they arrive overnight. What's more, they often form a circle of their chubby umbrellas — a bit of pixie-type magic called a fairy ring.

The vast assortment of fungus plants is descended from single-celled ancestors that appeared on earth perhaps half a billion years ago. They were among the earliest simple plants, but even then there was a great difference between them and most other plants. Green plants contain green chlorophyll. This is needed to use the energy of sunlight to manufacture basic plant food from air and water.

The fungi have no chlorophyll and must depend on the green plants to prefabricate most of their food. For this reason, they must grow in soil that is rich in decaying vegetation and other organic materials. But they do not need to sprout food-making foliage above the ground. In fact, the major part of a mushroom or toadstool is buried just below the surface. It is a tangle of threads called the mycelium.

Truffles and certain other fungi never poke their noses above the ground. But when the mushrooms and toadstools get ready to multiply, they sprout fruiting bodies above the surface. These chubby umbrellas come in pasty white, browns and various colors.

Under each umbrella is a lining of gill tissue, like delicate ribbons arranged in tight rows. Two billion or more tiny spores may be tucked into the folds of this gill tissue. The spore seedlings ripen and prepare to leave home. At the right moment, clouds of these dusty specks launch themselves on a friendly breeze.

Most of them are lost on the way. A new fungus plant originates when a lucky spore lands on a moist shady spot, where the soil is rich in decaying vegetation. It sprouts a few threads of mycelium and digs down to spread and stay.

A famous fairy ring originates when a mass of mycelium is buried with a long-forgotten tree stump in the ground. It thrives on the rotting wood and sprouts its circle of fruiting bodies around the edge. The mycelium may thrive for centuries. As it spreads, the fairy ring of mushrooms grows wider year by year.

Andy sends a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Jill Osaka, age 13, of Portland, Ore., for her question:

WHY DO RAINBOWS APPEAR ONLY IN SUNLIGHT?

Sometimes a rainbow appears at night, by the light of the silvery moon. We call it a moonbow or a lunar rainbow. Both daytime and nighttime rainbows are caused by the same sort of situation in the sky above. During the day, the necessary lighting equipment is provided by the sun. At night, the role of the vivid sun is replaced by the paler moon.

The time to see a lunar rainbow is on a bright moonlit night, when a partly clear sky is strewn with a few showery clouds. The moon must be fairly low and a cloud must be weeping on the opposite side of the sky. When you stand facing the cloud, the moonbeams coming over your shoulder may paint a ghostly moonbow. Its watery colors are the same as those in the brighter daytime moonbow.

Cooper finds campaign trail muddy attempt to get on with his work plan. "Think I could go over there and give those fellows a hand?" he asks.

No way, he is told. The field behind them has no road and only a tractor can get through the mud.

So the four continue, past millions of dollars of idle equipment sitting on millions of tons of coal waiting to be mined when the workers return.

Cooper climbs to the top of a 250-foot "shovel" — 45 feet taller than Niagara Falls, with a control booth resembling the bridge of a battleship.

He, like the rest of the party, is obviously awed by this behemoth which sits at the bottom of the pit and reaches out 200 feet to gouge away the "overburden" and then swing it in an arc — 210 tons at a time — to deposit it on the other side — 400 feet — away.

This 12-year-old machine, he is told, cost $12 million. If you bought one today, that would be $23 million — but you couldn't get one built in less than five years.

THE TALK WITH the management personnel centers on rising costs; union problems; improved land reclamation; and the shrinking market for Illinois coal. Illinois is rich in coal — fifth largest producer in the nation — but the product is of low quality. Its high sulfur content makes it the first target of tightening air-pollution restrictions.

After a strenuous morning — it is 8 1/2 hours since he left his Winnetka home — there is lunch at a country restaurant lined with knotty pine from ceiling to floor and decorated with porcelain plates and plastic deer heads on the walls.

While the others rest, Cooper tours the dining room, greeting the other patrons — mostly idle miners — with the slight exaggeration, "I'm spending the day working in the mines."

Weight Watcher Cooper dines on a cheeseburger, without the French fries and coleslaw, and a glass of milk.

Then it's off to the nearby generating plant of the Illinois Power Co., which consumes approximately 25 per cent of the nearly 10 million tons of soft coal produced annually by Peabody's two strip pits and underground mines in the River King complex.

The three smoke stacks above the plant, operating at full capacity in generating power for an area equal to 25 per cent of the state, are emitting only thin streams of white smoke from the high-sulfur coal.

AFTER A TOUR of the plant, Cooper turns for a last look at what seems a small amount of pollution coming from the stacks. "It seems there ought to be a way to eliminate that," he muses. "What about piping it into the ground?" There is no answer to his question.

Returning to the mine the touring group encounters a group of five workers near an entrance road. At Cooper's request, the company representative stops the car and Cooper goes over to greet them.

These are rough-hewn men in a violent trade who work for companies with violent histories and belong to a union with a violent present, as well as past. They talk bluntly.

"If you want to keep that thing," growls one to a reporter carrying a camera, "don't flash it."

At the end of the day, the party once again passes the power plant. Two smoke stacks are still breathing thin stripes of pure white smoke. The third is belching great clouds of dark black vapor.

"They must have thought we were out of the area," quips a member of the party, eliciting an unusual burst of laughter from Cooper.

But he stares at the black smoke and observes. "If we can go to the moon, there must be a way to solve that." But he is not snapping his fingers, yet.

Huskies aim for 5th title in Mid-Suburban North

by ART MUGALIAN

Talk about sure things! Death and taxes, the old standbys, will have to move over for the Hersey football team. Coach Joe Gliwa's Huskies have captured four consecutive North titles in the Mid-Suburban League. Nothing is quite so certain as a winning football team, particularly if its colors are orange and brown.

But nothing is as easy as it looks, either, and Gliwa would be the first to point that out. He and his capable staff have been preparing the Huskies for a possible fifth straight North Division championship in 1975.

They don't do it with mirrors. "Our strengths are our defense and our quarterback," said Gliwa prior to a practice session earlier in the week.

Four returning starters key the defensive unit. Tom Janus, Bill Cashmore, Steve Marsh, and Ed Novak are back for another year.

"Janus, Cashmore, and (Mark) Kuttel right now are our linebackers," Gliwa said. "The tackles are both back — Novak and Marsh. We're strong at those positions. Mark Johnson is working out at one end and the other end is up for grabs."

The coach indicated that the defensive secondary is also up for grabs. Chuck Veselits, Joe Pusatera, Mike Bouvier, Kurt Wagner, and Jim Szczaback are battling for spots.

"Our defense is mobile," warned Gliwa. "Not big, but mobile."

Last year's Hersey defenders were small, but they too were mobile. They allowed just 72 points during a 6-3 season, 6-1 in league play.

The quarterback is Scott Topczewski.

"Topczewski is picking up right where he left off," the Hersey coach said. "He'll spearhead our attack again."

The tall, slender signalcaller was the MSL's third-leading passer as a junior in 1974 with 53 completions and eight touchdown tosses. Gliwa expects Topczewski to be better than ever in 1975.

A pair of ex-quarterbacks also figure in the Huskie offense. Matt Zakula worked with weights during the off-season, put the shot for the track team and returned to Gliwa's squad as a fullback. Bob Huber has been converted to a pass catcher.

"We have two sleepers, (Wally) Hommerding and (Tony) Becker, at halfback," Gliwa said. "They'll gain experience as they go along. It'll give us our biggest backfield in a long time here."

Hersey's offensive line is completely rebuilt from a year ago, and once again size is not a factor.

"No one in the line is 200 pounds," Gliwa said, though it doesn't seem to bother him.

Nor does the general lack of experience perturb the Huskie coach.

"These kids know the program," he said. "They played a full jayvee schedule last year — there's no need for major re-education."

Gliwa and his staff will learn a lot from the Huskies' opener next Friday night at Elgin. The week after that, Hersey meets crosstown rival St. Viator.

"If we had to put down 22 names right now to start the first game, we could just about do it," the coach said. "We're down to about three question marks."

"Yes, we will platoon again," Gliwa emphasized. "We have two complete platoons. We have the personnel to do it."

While the skeptics insist that there's no such thing as a sure thing, Hersey's grid team will go about trying to prove them wrong.

Quickest team ever makes Cardinals' coach smile

by JIM COOK

It's almost impossible for straight-shooting Chuck Haines to talk about his 1975 Arlington football team without cracking a smile.

The affable third-year head coach has what is considered to be the quickest, fastest and most experienced Cardinal contingent in the school's rich gridiron history.

"We've got 200-pounders running the 40-yard dash in five seconds flat," Haines grinned while watching his Cards strut through a picture-taking session with new, bright red jerseys.

"We suggested that some of the sophomores and juniors from last year try out for the track team and it seems to have helped tremendously."

"Quickness is so important in football," he continued. "You can get that extra jump off the line or a half-step in the backfield and it could determine the complete success or failure of a play."

Execution is the name of the game on the prep football field and Haines has welcomed back 14 talent-laden freshmen from last season's fast-finishing 5-3 outfit.

"They know the score already," Haines said of his veteran unit. "So that just puts us that much further ahead in our practice sessions."

Headlining the long list of returnees is proven quarterback Matt Shaughnessy (5-foot-9, 160 pounds), who Haines says "can hit his target from 50 yards away on the dead run.

"He's worked extremely hard during the summer and might be one of the most underrated quarterbacks in the league when the season starts, but you'll hear about him."

Also slated for backfield duty are seasoned ball carriers Phil Dinielli (6-0, 190) and Mike Schell (6-1, 185) who are both suiting up for their third varsity campaign.

Wayne Eisenhuth (5-11, 172) is back at split end and Tom North (6-3, 171) is set at flanker. In the trenches will be both-ways center Rick Purcell (6-0, 190), offensive guards Tom Toffoli (5-10, 200) and Art Klein (6-0, 180), and offensive tackle Jason Slezak (6-1, 195).

Calling the defensive signals will be veteran backs Steve Hadley (5-10, 153) and Steve Leonhard (5-10, 170) who will also serve as the squad's very capable placekicker.

Don Stebbins (5-10, 155) will roam at safety, Greg Klobner (6-3, 199) will hold down a defensive end and Kirk Kennedy (5-10, 215) will anchor defensive tackle.

The 28 juniors and 25 seniors who turned out for the squad will be trying to pad a three-game winning streak bequeathed by the 1974 club.

The Cards will tackle three straight non-conference opponents before banging helmets with Mid-Suburban League competition.

"We could either be smelling like a rose or regrouping after those three games," Haines said of Homewood-Flossmoor, St. Francis de Sales and Madison, Wis. West.

Homewood qualified for the state playoffs last year, de Sales reportedly averages 225 per man along the offensive line and Madison is an unscoutable question mark.

But don't be surprised if Chuck Haines is still smiling when Arlington finally encounters its long-awaited conference season.

Dancer-driven Bonefish choice in Hambletonian

Favored Bonefish, rated at 2-1, drew the No. 9 post position in a field of 11 colts and two fillies entered for today's racing of the 50th anniversary Hambletonian and a purse of $232,192, richest ever for a harness race in North America in DuQuoin.

Stanley Dancer, driver-trainer of the favorite, who piloted Nevele Pride in 1968 and Super Bowl in 1972 to Hambletonian victories, didn't seem to mind the draw.

"If he's right and the track is right, I think he's capable of beating Super Bowl's Hambletonian mark," said Dancer. "But for $232,000 you go for the purse, not the time."

Super Bowl's 1:58.2 clocking stands as the Hambletonian record and also the world standard for 3-year-old trotters. Bonefish, a bay colt, has the best time of the year, a 1:58.1 at the Empire State Trot at Syracuse earlier this month.

Dancer's son, Ronnie, will drive Surefire Hanover, also a 2-1 choice as part of an entry, from the No. 8 slot just to the left of Bonefish. Surefire Hanover, as winner of the Yonkers Futurity, is the only horse in the field with a chance of grabbing trotting's triple crown.

"He's a good one-two punch with Bonefish," said Dancer.

The field of 13 will go to the post in the first heat at 1 p.m. The second heat will be raced about 2:20 p.m., the third heat if necessary about 3:40 p.m. with a fourth heat race-off if necessary about 5 p.m. A horse has to win two heats to claim the stake victory.

To the winner will go $116,405; second, $58,202.50; third, $27,937.20; fourth, $18,624.80; and fifth, $11,640.50.

The only two fillies, Exclusive Way and Meadow Bright, unluckily drew the last two post positions. Horses 1 through 10 will race abreast in the first tier and No. 11 will start on the Cubs finally win...

Andy Thornton and Jose Cardenal backed up Ray Burris' nine-hit pitching performance with home runs Friday to lead the Chicago Cubs to an 8-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves, breaking a five-game losing streak.

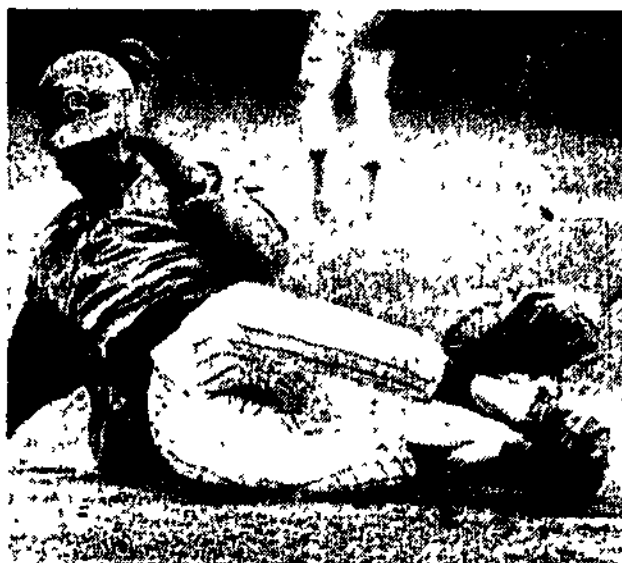

Thornton's homer, his 10th, came with Cardenal on base and wrapped up a four-run third inning for the Cubs.

Rick Monday singled with one out and went to third on Bill Madlock's double. Then Monday scored when pitcher Carl Morton was charged with obstructing Monday's progress toward home on Cardenal's infield grounder. Madlock reached third on the play and scored on Jerry Morales' sacrifice fly.

Ken Henderson smashed a pair of homers and Deron Johnson and Bob Coluccio added solo blasts Friday night to power the Chicago White Sox to a 4-2 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles and help Jim Kaat to his 19th victory of the season at Baltimore.

Relief ace Rich Gossage picked up his 22nd save, bailing out Kaat in the seventh inning by getting Paul Blair, who had homered in the sixth inning, to ground out with two runners on base after Ken Singleton had doubled home a run.

Hunters set sights on 50-day waterfowl season

Illinois waterfowl hunters will take aim on another 50-day duck and goose season in 1975, nearly identical to the format that regulated shotguns in 1974. The proposed campaign needs only Gov. Dan Walker's signature to become effective.

Ducks and geese will be fair game beginning at noon, Oct. 22 through Dec. 10 except for the four-county quota zone of Williamson, Alexander, Union and Jackson in southern Illinois. In these counties, the season runs from Nov. 24 to Jan. 20 or when 22,000 geese have been harvested.

The most noteworthy change will be a new starting time each day with the exception of the noon opener. Hunters may now begin shooting one-half hour before sunrise as opposed to the normal sunrise starting time that has characterized Illinois laws in years past.

The 50-day campaign was adopted for the first time last year when the conservation department opted for a noon, midweek opener and a point system for setting bag limits. The two options each carry a five-day hunting season extension by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The daily bag limit is reached when the point value assigned to each species equals or exceeds 100. Possession limit cannot exceed two days' bag limits.

The point system for Illinois is: 100 pts. —Redheads (except in the Mississippi backwaters from Alton to the Wisconsin line where they are protected).

90 pts. —Henn mallards, wood ducks, black ducks and hooded mergansers.

10 pts. —Pintails, blue wing teal, green wing teal, gadwalls, shovellers and scaup.

35 pts. —Mallard drake and all other species of ducks and mergansers. Coots will not be on the point system and hunters will be allowed 15 birds per day and 30 in possession. Canvasbacks will again be protected statewide.

The most obvious incongruity is the point value bag limit system and the new pre-dawn daily opening.

The purpose of the point system is to force the hunter to sharpen his waterfowl identifying skills, presenting a unique challenge in recognizing his target before pulling the trigger.

But without the use of radar, it would seem the hunters will be playing a guessing game when that first flock of ducks rises overhead against an overcast sky and in the dark.

Even the most knowledgeable waterfowler will be hard pressed to identify what species of duck he's training his sights on.

That's not to say the point system doesn't have its merits.

Anytime a hunter bags a 100-point bird, he has taken his limit that day and cannot hunt any longer.

By assigning point values to the various species of waterfowl, it is easy to partially protect those birds whose numbers may be down one year and up the next.

In the case of canvasbacks, Illinois Department of Conservation director Tony Dean said, "They may be protected the next several years as well. There are a number of young canvasbacks which will add young females to the breeding population."

"Canvasback don't nest until they are two years old, so rather than harvest any young birds, we want to send them all back and build up a good breeding population."

The daily bag limit for geese is again five, with no more than two being Canada geese or their sub-species.

Pheasant down again

Illinois Conservation Dept. officials note another drastic decline in pheasant numbers this year and say that unless we take advantage of all grassland cover and begin to manage rural areas — including roadsides — for optimum pheasant propagation and welfare, we may soon find ourselves with a dangerously dwindling ringneck.

A harvest of one-half million pheasants by 200,000 hunters in 1974 was a decline of nearly 75 per cent from pheasant "highs" of the early 1960s. Biologists say that the future for pheasants in Illinois and in the midwest in general isn't very bright.

Cash grain farming is more prevalent and there is less room each year for both pheasant or other upland game. Much of the bird's decline can be traced directly to replacement of forage crops with concentrated stands of corn and soybeans.

Mark Trail's OUTDOOR TIPS

EMPTY PLASTIC LEMON OR LIME JUICE CONTAINERS MAKE GOOD FISHING BOBBERS...

ALSO IF YOU ENLARGE THE HOLE AT THE TOP YOU CAN USE CONTAINER TO HOLD YOUR SPLIT-SHOT SINKERS, SWIVELS, ETC.

The possession limit is five birds with no more than four Canada geese or their sub-species and including no more than two white-fronted geese, the same as last year.

There will again be restrictions for taking Canada geese in portions of Knox, Fulton, Grundy, Henry and Kankakee counties, but the specifics have not yet been completed.

The midweek, noon opener deviates from the Saturday sunrise openings in many other states where the midweek is more of a waterfowl war than a hunt.

Waterfowl biologists believe that the heavy pressure of a Saturday sunrise opening triggers early migration of the lesser species such as teal. By beginning the season on a Wednesday, opening day pressure should be reduced.

Waukegan is still coho capital

The coho hit with such fury it nearly jerked the fishing rod from its holder, making a run that set the reel screaming.

"Take it," said Ken DuMong, president of Salmon Unlimited, motioning toward the fishing rod.

"It's a good one," I remarked, feeling the strength of the fish as I picked up the rod. The coho rose to the surface and rolled in the wake of the boat before starting another run.

"Acting more like a steelhead than coho, isn't it?" DuMong remarked. "Didn't I tell you these fish were wild and crazy?"

DuMong had indeed told me so only a few hours earlier by telephone.

"I don't know what you got planned," he said when he called, "but you wouldn't believe the coho and steelhead off Waukegan now. They're averaging between six and 12 pounds and are wild and crazy, dancing all over the place. I'll even let you try your luck with light tackle."

That was all that was needed for DuMong to entice me aboard his boat for the 15-mile trip out into Lake Michigan from the port of Waukegan. We had to travel that far out in the lake to reach the deep water where the fish were congregated.

Although the lake was 250 to 270 feet deep in the area, we had to go down only 30 to 35 feet to find the fish. I wanted to use four pound test line, but DuMong advised against it.

"You need at least six to withstand the shock of these fish hitting," he said. "I don't think four will hold up. Also, we'll have to add a shock leader to break it loose from the downrigger."

I followed his advice, and had already put three coho — six, eight and 10 pounds — in the boat with the six pound test Trilene.

My desire now was to put a decent-size steelhead in the boat with the same buggy-whip outfit. I caught the first three fish on a silver Fluter spoon, and DuMong advised I change over to a Little Manistee that was charrreuse with red dols to try for a steelie.

It was right after rigging my light outfit for steelhead that the big coho hit on another rod on my side of the boat, and DuMong told me to land it. I nearly had the fish within netting range when DuMong yelled, "Another one, on your light rod!"

No sooner were the words out of his mouth when 10-pounds-plus of trouble came completely out of the water in a tremendous leap that sent shivers down my spine.

"Give me that rod," Du Mong said, "you take the light one." There we were, each battling fish that weighed more than 10 pounds and neither of us able to help the other.

"Keep yours out there," DuMong, said, "I'll bring this one alongside and net it."

"You don't have to worry about me keeping him out there," I remarked, "He's not about to let me bring him in." The steelhead peeled off more than 100 yards of the light line in screaming runs that included four or five magnificent leaps behind the boat. Each time it cleared the water in an effort to shake the lure, my heart jumped to my throat.

Meanwhile DuMong calmly netted the 12-pound coho by himself. Earlier he also handled his own net on fish weighing about eight pounds while I battled another one on the light tackle.

After netting the coho, DuMong pulled in the remaining two trolling rods to allow me room to play the steelhead. When the fish stopped its leaps, the fight became a painful process of recovering a few feet of line at a time. Just when it seemed I was gaining on the fish, it would take off in another reel-screaming run. Finally it tired enough for me to work it within netting distance. DuMong didn't miss.

In about four hours of fishing, we put nine fish in the boat, most of them in the eight to 10 pound class. We also had about a dozen hits that would have given us a 10th fish and a limit for the day.

"I can't tell you how much longer this action off Waukegan is going to last," DuMong said. "Personally, I think these fish are headed toward Michigan and won't be out here much longer. The reason I think they hit the lure so hard is they don't have as much feed in this deep water that they have closer to shore. They need to eat because they're gaining about a pound a week now."

But Ken's brother Dan, who runs the Mr. Lucky Charter Service out of Waukegan, disagreed. When we stopped off to talk to Dan en route home, he said he is keeping his service open in the area through September because he thinks the action will remain good.

But the two brothers who founded the nonprofit Salmon Unlimited — now more than 1,300 members strong — agree on one thing:

The fishing now is wild and crazy off Waukegan.

Wisconsin proposes duck hunting dates

Wisconsin's duck hunting season will open at noon Wednesday, Oct. 1 and close Nov. 16, unless changed by final federal guidelines.

The 47-day season with point system regulations are subject to federal changes which will be finalized today and then must be signed by the governor to become effective.

Major changes in the 1975 season include an increase in point value for black ducks from 90 to 100 points and increasing widgeon, ruddy ducks, bufflehead and goldeneyes from 15 to 35 points.

The point values for the 1975 season are:

100 points — canvasback, red-head and black duck;

90 points — hen mallard, wood duck and hooded merganser;

35 points — all other ducks;

15 points — pintail, teal, gad-wall, shoveler and scaup.

Under the point system, the daily bag limit is reached when the point value of the last bird taken plus the total value of the birds already taken during the day reaches or exceeds 100 points. The possession limit is the maximum number which could have legally been taken in two days.

The season on canvasback and redhead will continue to remain closed along the Mississippi River and in Dodge and Winnebago Counties and all of Lake Poygan and Rush Lake.

Shooting hours will be the same as last year, one-half hour before sunrise to sunset, and starting Oct. 15, open water, including stump hunting, will not be allowed in the Vernon County portion of the Mississippi River. This restriction provides extra protection from accidental shooting of canvasbacks.

The goose hunting season will also open at noon, Oct. 1 and close Dec. 9. The Horicon Zone Canada goose hunt will open Oct. 9 and close Oct. 28. Hunters must have a special permit and tag to hunt Canada geese within the Horicon Zone and the tag must remain attached to the permit when a Canada goose is shot and tagged.

Squirrel shooting starts Monday

The squirrel season opens in Illinois' northern zone Monday in addition to statewide shooting for dove and rails.

The campaign for bushytails in the state's southern zone opened Aug. 1, but both seasons will conclude Nov. 15. The bag limit for squirrels are five per day with 10 allowed in possession. Shooting hours are sunrise to sunset daily. The dove and rail season will extend through Nov. 9. The daily bag for dove is 12 with 24 in possession. Hunting hours are noon to sunset.

Rails carry a daily and possession limit of 25 with shooting hours beginning at sunrise and ending at sunset.

Coyote are also legal game beginning Monday statewide. The season

Trio of good reasons for having drop bars

by RICHARD BALLANTINE
Let's settle one thing now: There are many reasons why dropped bars are more efficient and comfortable than flat bars. Here are a few:

(1) A much greater variety of position is possible. Not only can you select the best position for conditions — like low down when headed into the wind — but being able to shift and bring about different groups of muscles into play greatly increases comfort, to say nothing of power.

(2) Because weight is supported by both the hands and seat, road shocks and bumps rock the body rather than jar it. With conventional flat bars the whole weight of the body rests on the saddle. With dropped bars, not only is weight supported by the arms, but because the body is forward, it tends to pivot at the hips going over bumps. As it happens this is also desirable from an anatomical point of view: leaning forward stretches the spine, allowing the absorption of shocks, and increases breathing capacity.

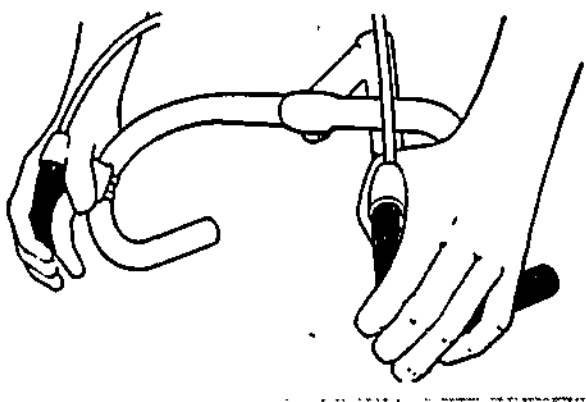

(3) The better distribution of weight allowed by dropped bars provides improved stability and steering characteristics.

Positioning of the handlebars is crucial. For conventional use they should be set so that the top bar is just level with the nose of the saddle.

The stem should position the bars so that the distance between the nose of the saddle and the rear edge of the center of the handlebars equals the distance from your elbow to your outstretched finger tips.

Stems come in increments of length, or you can buy an adjustable stem. This costs and weighs more.

Bonefish favored to win

Beside the Bonefish-Surefire Hanover entry by Dancer, other entries in the field include Songflori-Meadow Bright by Sonny Graham and Delvin Miller, and Glasgow-Spearmlnt by Bill Houghton.

A bad outing by Bonefish last Saturday in the Horseman's Futurity at Indianapolis, when he threw a shoe in the first heat and finished ninth and then came back in the second heat to finish fifth, apparently provided the extra impetus needed for enough entries to set a new harness racing purse mark.

Dancer does not think any less of Bonefish for the loss at Indianapolis, where Glasgow won in 1:59 with Surefire Hanover the first heat winner in 1:58.1.

"After all, the great Secretariat lost a race, didn't he?" Dancer asked.

Pari-mutuel betting will be added for the first time at the DuQuoin State Fair since the race was moved here from Goshen, N.Y., in 1957 and the classic for 3-year-old trotters will be televised live for the first time.

Glass making has changed little

A couple of recent columns have been devoted to glass: old pressed glass and its modern reproductions. I've said this before, but dyed-in-the-wool antiquers won't agree with me, that if the reproduction glass, or any of the "new" antiques appeal to you, collect them. Just be sure you don't pay antique prices, and try to learn the difference between old and new.

One of the best ways to learn about what is being reproduced in the glass line is to visit the glass-making factories, which are clustered mainly in what is called "Glass Country, USA." This is the rolling hill country of West Virginia, Ohio and western Pennsylvania, and it is possible to make a trip through this tri-state area and visit nine or 10 centers of the age-old art, which is performed surprisingly little changed from the old days.

WHY DOES SO much antique and modern glass come from this area? Because with the discovery of coal and natural gas and rich beds of limestone and silica sand — all essential elements to making glass — craftsmen gradually migrated to the area in the mid-19th century.

The art of glassmaking is one of the oldest crafts in America, which had its beginning when the first settlers landed in Jamestown and built the first glass factory in 1608. It was, in fact, the first factory of any kind in this country. Today, many of the glass designs made are exact reproductions of shapes and patterns created in the 1800s, some even from the original molds.

Some of the factories have guided tours, where you can watch glass made by handpressing, blowing, cutting and etching, just as it was done (although the furnaces may be controlled by computers) well over a hundred years ago.

A FEW YEARS ago a friend and I flew to Columbus, Ohio, then rented a car for the glass house visiting, and we saw about six of them in three days. Naturally, we had to pick up souvenirs at most of them, which have "seconds" rooms with bargains too good to pass up. When we boarded the plane to go home, we needed an extra seat for boxes, and the obliging stewardess even seat-buckled our fragile treasures in place for us. Luckily, the plane wasn't crowded.

Our main purpose in going at that time was to see what was being reproduced, and that's why I say it's one of the best ways. We saw copies of old milk glass, Carnival, pressed glass in patterns, Burmese and slag, some of which were marked in the molds but some almost indistinguishable from the old, unless one had an old piece at hand to compare.

Then, usually, the new glass is heavier, thicker, more brightly colored and, of course, bearing no wear marks. But it's easy to see how a new piece could mingle with a table filled with old glass in a shop and become an instant antique to the unwary.

IN THE PICTURE are shown some pieces being made today and found in local gift and department stores; clockwise, a captain's decanter; hand-painted with roses Burmese vase; etched blown crystal; a copy of a 19th century dolphin candlestick, originally made in Sandwich, Mass.; and a decorated milkglass compote.

For further information on glass tours, you may write to the Glass Crafts of America Association, Box 101, 1800 Oliver Bldg., Pittsburg, Pa. 15222.

This column seems to turn into a travelogue quite often, but collecting and traveling seem to go together and are two hobbies that are easily combined, providing one has the third necessary ingredient in the piggy bank before starting out!

Homemaker: word needs new definition

by GAY PAULEY

None other than the U.S. Center for International Women's Year is seeking an answer to the puzzling question — just what is a homemaker?

Our sampling indicates the definition is highly individual.

One colleague, male, remembered the late Edgar A. Guest poem that started thusly: "It takes a heap o' livin' in a house t' make it home." My colleague added, "A homemaker is a woman who can put up with a hell of a heap." Ogden Nash also had paraphrased Guest with "It takes a heap o' payin' 'em too."

ANOTHER COWORKER, female, asked, "How do you make a home? Do you bake it in an oven, run it up on your sewing machine? I think the term is asinine. It takes two things to make a home — love and trust."

Betty Friedan, the founder of the National Organization for Women and author of "The Feminine Mystique," said, "I'm beginning to have trouble with words like that (homemaker). I don't want to go along with a new mystique."

Miss Friedan thought the word should be defined in relation to "realities of the future when joys and responsibilities will be shared by men, women and children."

FURTHER, SHE said, the responsibilities of the homemaker (man or woman) should be recognized as a career and be so remunerated. "It is the responsibility many women have assumed and the job has not even been evaluated as worth a minimum wage."

Another coworker at UPI, single, applauded the Friedan stand. She's tired of stereotypes.

"I cannot host a party or dinner without a...jesting comment surfacing like 'little Suzy homemaker' of 'some day you'll be a good homemaker for a man,'" she said. "My temper really flares when homemaker is relegated to one sex."

"EVERY RESPONSIBLE adult who owns, rents or shares a dwelling should be considered a homemaker person... hopefully by the year 2,000 more women will be featured for their multiple talents and achievements."

Another colleague, male, defined homemaker as "anyone, male or female, who turns bricks and mortars into a home for at least one other person or animal."

Many with whom I talked thought the term no longer should be applied to the female. As one put it, "In my lexicon, anyone who occupies living space and spends a major portion of his or her time cooking, cleaning, doing laundry, et cetera, qualifies. More and more, I read of men who are sharing domestic and child rearing chores with their wives, a fine idea."

Bride Bette Sandgren sews own gown

Bette Jean Sandgren made her own gown for her marriage Aug. 10 to Wayne Charles Allen. The gown of polyester satin was fashioned with square neckline, long sleeves and with scalloped trim at the waistline and on the chapel train.

Daughter of the Howard C. Sandgrens, Arlington Heights, Bette is a 1970 graduate of Forest View High, a '74 graduate of Elmhurst College and in 1975 she received her M.A. degree in audiology from the University of Illinois. Her bridegroom, son of the Charles Allens, Buffalo, N.Y., was graduated in 1973 from Elmhurst College and is now with the Bank of Commerce, Berkeley, Ill.

GLORIA LAZARSKI, Mount Prospect, was maid of honor for the 2 p.m. double ring service in First Congregational United Church of Christ in Elmhurst, and Mrs. Carol Condroski, sister of the bride from Rolling Meadows and Cynthia Helt, Webster Groves, Mo., were bridesmaids. They wore crepe gowns with flower trim. Gloria's gown was in pale green, the others in pale yellow, and each carried a single, long-stemmed yellow rose.

The bride's flowers were white car-

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne C. Allen nations and green-tipped white roses with baby's breath. Her "something old" was a 60-year-old engagement ring.

John Helt, Webster Groves, was best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, Lt. John Sandgren, Cheyenne, Wyo., and John Englander, Lombard.

The couple honeymooned two weeks in Canada and northeastern New York following a reception in the church hall. They are now residing in Addison.

Hospital's 'In the Pink'

Cheerful, bright pink pinafore and smock uniforms, total health care and mental and physical well being will all be brought into the spotlight with "In the Pink," the annual fall luncheon fashion show sponsored by Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary. The benefit will be held Thursday, Sept. 18, at Allgauer's Fireside, Northbrook.

In keeping with the theme, masses of pink chrysanthemums will be used as decorations. Fashions mixed with choreography, will be from Connaught-Shannon of Barrington, with Cathi Watson, fashion director, commenting. Emphasis will be on fashion as an investment and making fashion work for the individual. Prices will range from moderate to designer room brackets.

Proceeds will go toward the auxiliary's three-year pledge of $266,000 for the purchase of three monitoring systems which epitomize the auxiliary's concern for total health care: fetal monitoring, telemetry for post coronary care and intensive care equipment.

Tickets at $10 are available from Ann Jacobs, 381-5548.

When Judith Lynn Revor of Arlington Heights went to work for General Telephone Co. in Des Plaines, she also found romance with a co-worker, Theodore Richard Haberkamp of Franklin Park.

Judy and Ted were married July 26 in a 3 p.m. ceremony in St. James Catholic Church, the home parish of the bride and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Revor. A dinner with dancing followed for 218 guests at Casa Royale in Des Plaines.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. V. Haslow and Theodore Haberkamp, both of Franklin Park. He is a graduate of East Leyden High and attended Triton College.

IN THE WEDDING procession were matron of honor Sheryl Swalder of Cicero, Judy's cousin, and four bridesmaids: Pam Martin, Elk Grove, Karen Davis and Dorothy Kelly, Arlington Heights, and Robin McLaughlin, Hoffman Estates.

Also, Jennifer Meyer, 5, the bride's cousin from Tinley Park, as flower girl and David Chappel, 5, the groom's nephew from Franklin Park, as ring bearer.

Stable cool keeps canned goods best

Dear Dorothy: How long is it safe to keep commercially canned goods in your home? Also, at what room temperature should they be stored? I have had some sauerkraut and whole tomatoes spoil. I am now putting the date on the items when I put them on the shelf. It seems to me I've read that the temperature of the storage area was very important. — Mrs. Bert Jacobs

So long as a can hasn't bulged, leaked or rusted, commercially canned foods last indefinitely. While safe, they do suffer some quality loss when stored at too-high temperature. You are right that temperature is the key. The best storage is in a cool, dry place — hopefully, a stable cool.

Unhappily, most of us are careless about canned goods. We buy them, fail to date them and then worry later about whether they might be safe or not. If we'd all follow Mrs. Jacobs' idea and date our cans, then try to use them within 18 months, we'd be far better off. But even beyond the 18-month range, they're probably safe, if not quite as tasty.

Dear Dorothy: I have ivy growing up one side of the house and would like some on the other side. Is it possible to start with some of the ivy we already have? — Wilma Greider Break up the dirt where you want the ivy. Then cut off any pieces of ivy that have little roots under part of the vine. Plant them into the prepared soil, using hairpins or clips to keep the roots in the soil. Keep it fairly damp. It doesn't take long for ivy to take hold.

Dear Dorothy: We're bringing sand back from the beach which I plan to use in making cactus gardens. Do you know of any way to color the sand? — Mrs. John Kenerleber Jr.

I don't know. It's new to me. Can anyone help?

Dear Dorothy: Maybe my way will help those who have been asking you how to remove perspiration stains from T-shirts. I soaked the stained shirts in a salt solution overnight (three tablespoons of salt to a quart of water). They are rinsed the next day and treated with a popular liquid detergent, allowed to stand for 30 minutes, then laundered in hot water. If any stains remain, I let the garment dry, then use a dry-cleaning solvent. Let stand for 20 minutes, then launder again. This has proved successful for even the most stubborn stains. — Mrs. Grady Milland

Dear Dorothy: Is there a way to determine if a cucumber is bitter before you buy it? If it is bitter, is there any way to remove the bitterness? — D. Osborn

There's no way I know about to remove bitterness from cucumbers. As for the buying, fresh, firm cucumbers shouldn't be bitter. Reject those that are too large, show any puffiness or are shriveled in any way.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Padlock Publications, Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Scherpelz

Most of Smith-Scherpelz families attend wedding

Both Martin Smith and Ken Scherpelz come from large families and out of a possible 21 members of the combined families, 20 were present for their wedding July 26 in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect.

Martha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brooks Smith, Arlington Heights, and Ken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Scherpelz, Prospect Heights, went to Hersey High at the same time but didn't meet until they attended Augustana College in Rock Island.

Martha graduated from Hersey in 1971 and this past spring she received a degree in elementary education from Augustana. She will be substitute teaching in and around Buffalo Grove where she and Ken are residing in an apartment.

KEN GRADUATED from Hersey in 1970 and from Augustana last February with degrees in elementary education and English. He teaches in Barrington public schools.

For the 4:30 p.m. double ring service, at which Martha's oldest brother, Rev. Joseph Smith from Allentown, Pa., assisted, Martha chose Beth Rittenhouse, Rio, Ill., as maid of honor and the couple's sisters, Judy Scherpelz, Columbia, Mo., and Laura Smith, as bridesmaids.

KEITH GLAVASHI, Danville, Ill., was best man, and groomsmen were Bob Fornander, St. Paul, and Larry Barker, Burlington, Iowa. The bride's brother, David, and the groom's brother, Jim, were ushers.

A reception for 160 guests was held in the Glenview Country House after which the newlyweds honeymooned a week in Door County, Wis.

Use original containers

Keep household and cleaning products in their original containers with labels intact. If you transfer them to other or unmarked containers, especially food storage containers, you run the risk of misuse that could poison someone.

TISSUE PAPER COLLAGES

Anyone big enough to paste paper can make this pretty tissue paper collage. When you're done, it will look a little like a stained glass window. Here's how to do it:

Mix three parts of white glue to one part of water in a cup. Tear bits of different colored tissue paper. The madras-type tissue is especially pretty for this. Brush one side of each tissue piece with glue. Stick it on the cardboard.

Add tissue shapes until the cardboard is covered. Make interesting new colors by overlapping tissue pieces. Let it dry for at least half an hour.

Cover your collage with waxed paper. Pile books on top and let dry overnight. This will keep the cardboard from curling. If you like, spray your finished collage with clear plastic or hair spray when it's dry.

Torching the South Bronx

Arson by landlords common in area of old and decaying buildings

NEW YORK (UPI) — A boy was driven to the door of a South Bronx hospital one summer night in 1969. His badly burned body was shoved out onto the sidewalk by a man later convicted of arson. The boy died 21 days later, victim of a fire he set himself for $50.

Two other boys died in that fire Aug. 6, 1969. Landlord Albert Epstein was convicted of arson but is free pending appeal.

The three youths are only a statistic now in one of the more bizarre arson cases in the South Bronx, that burned-out section of New York which police, firemen and fire marshals know as "Fort Apache."

"When they say there is a war up there, it's no joke," says Fire Marshal Michael DiMarco, who patrols the South Bronx.

TORCHING BUILDINGS in the South Bronx has become an industry of sorts.

In most cases kids are paid to do it by a landlord seeking an insurance check. In other cases, officials say, tenants do it deliberately so that the city will pay to relocate them.

"The city pays as much as $2,000 to relocate families, to replace their valuables," Chief Fire Marshal Edwin Sheppard said during an interview. "Especially in cases of welfare families."

"I remember one occasion several months ago," DiMarco said. "Several tenants of a building were across the street with their furniture when the fire trucks arrived. I believe it was 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, when most people are asleep, but they had time to get their valuables out."

Sheppard and his staff say the Epstein case illustrates a number of motives in arson cases.

DIMARCO, WHO worked on the case in late 1969 and 1970, said Epstein owned a rent-controlled building. He wanted to renovate the building but couldn't until the tenants moved out. Benjamin Warren, a man now serving a 25-year jail term for arson, allegedly was paid by Epstein to start a fire in the building on Aug. 4, 1969. It burned itself out, but another fire two days later forced all the tenants out and the building since has been renovated.

In the second fire, three teenagers, allegedly paid $50 each by Warren, carried gallons of gasoline into the building.

"In our business we sometimes have what you call a 'fireball' explosion. That's when gasoline fumes mix with oxygen," said DiMarco.

One of the boys was killed instantly, the other two died 21 days later at the hospital where Warren allegedly dumped one of them on the sidewalk.

Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola's office is spearheading an investigation aimed at snuffing out the rash of arson in the South Bronx. In the past 18 months, officials have reported more than 5,500 suspicious "Fort Apache" fires.

IN THE WINTER, some fires are accidentally set by homeless bums who start fires to keep warm.

"In winter, derelicts live in them. To keep warm, they start a fire and the whole place burns down," one official in Merola's office said.

"Kids start fires just for the hell of it," the official said. "Landlords are setting fires so they can make a profit."

"Ricky old tenements are insured for as much as $100,000. Shortly after the premiums are paid, the place goes up," the prosecutor said.

About two months ago, Merola indicted eight men on arson charges. Four of them were landlords. The others were "landlord helpers," the official said.

"WE BELIEVE some of these landlords are amassing parcels of land where buildings have been burned down," the DA said. "They are waiting for the Urban Development Commission to come in and buy it all up for new construction."

"You have gangs who burn buildings down to make a profit. They start a fire, and the fire department arrives and hacks the place up with axes putting out the fire," he said.

"They expose the copper plumbing and the gangs return, rip it out and sell it," he said.

"Some buildings are fully occupied. These gangs start fires in the hall and the people flee the building temporarily. Then the gangs go in and rob and get out. Sometimes these fires get out of hand and the place burns to the ground."

Wants milder laws in 2 years

Group's goal to reform marijuana bills on target

WASHINGTON — Decriminalization of marijuana will be in effect across much of the country in two years, a marijuana reform advocate predicts.

Keith Stroup, director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, said in an interview this week his five-year-old organization is about halfway toward its goal.

"By two years from now we will have cleared the elections and we will have effectively decriminalized marijuana possession across the country."

"Then we can start taking a look at the regulation, at the regulatory models to make sure the marijuana smoker is protected like other consumers," Stroup said.

LAST WEEK, Ohio became the sixth state to significantly reduce penalties for personal possession and use of small amounts of marijuana.

The Ohio provision, which provides for a $100 fine for possession of 100 grams, about 3.5 ounces, drastically scales down what the reformers considered to be one of the toughest marijuana laws in the country. Possession for sale carried a minimum 10-year prison sentence.

Oregon, Alaska, Maine, Colorado and California also have revised their legislation to sharply reduce penalties for pot possession for personal use.

For the first time since the passage of harsh marijuana laws in 1937, Stroup expects to see a major debate on the floor of Congress over the issue.

That debate will take place in the Senate when the controversial omnibus criminal code reform bill is brought up. Stroup says he has commitments to attempt to amend the bill with a marijuana decriminalization section.

THERE ARE two marijuana decriminalization proposals before Congress. In the House, Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., and 18 cosponsors have introduced a bill that reflects the recommendations of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

In the Senate, four Senators have joined in cosponsoring proposed legislation that would adopt a maximum $100 civil fine for minor marijuana violations.

But Stroup said he believed the first test would come on the omnibus bill.

IN ADDITION, President Ford's Domestic Council is expected to release a study on drug abuse sometime next month. There is a strong expectation on the part of pot reformers that it could recommend a sharp reduction in criminal penalties for marijuana use.

Stroup thinks the American people are ahead of policymakers in making the distinction between possibly harmful behavior and labeling marijuana use as criminal behavior.

"A parent sitting at home who perhaps knows his kid smokes occasionally, can see it up front. He knows his kid is not a criminal... He has made those distinctions," Stroup said.

"HE KNOWS that what the kid is doing is somewhere in the range of dangerousness of having a beer or a cigarette," he added.

Reform advocates such as Stroup believe movement toward decriminalization has essentially depoliticized marijuana as an issue.

"No politician is going to get hurt on the issue, one way or another," Stroup said.

'Professionals do more drinking'

LONDON (UPI) — A British physician said Friday excessive drinking among professional people is far more frequent than among the working class.

Dr. Julius Merry, director of the alcoholics unit of West Park Hospital, made the statement in a report to the British Assn. for the Advancement of Science.

He said cirrhosis of the liver, associated with excessive drinking, was 22 times higher among company directors than among average members of the population.

The disease occurs nine times more frequently among tavern keepers, seven times more frequently among actors and three-and-a-half times more frequently among doctors than in the average Briton.

Walker vetoes '2nd' abortion bill

An abortion bill requiring parental consent or a husband's approval before an abortion is performed was vetoed Friday by Gov. Daniel Walker.

The governor said he was forced to veto the measure because there would have been two abortion laws in Illinois if he had signed it.

"If this bill were to become law, there would be two conflicting and overlapping sets of regulations for abortions," Walker wrote in his veto message.

Illinois briefs

This situation could jeopardize all regulations in this area, including medical standards."

Though his veto message made no reference to it, a Walker aide said the governor may have taken into consideration the Aug. 18 decision by a federal appeals court in New Orleans which found invalid a similar Florida law.

Panther lawyers stymied

A federal judge Friday refused two attorneys permission to turn over purported evidence of illegal police actions to a Cook County Grand Jury investigating police spying.

G. Elliot Taylor and Jeffrey Haas, attorneys for the families of two slain Black Panther leaders, had sought permission to disclose "evidence of apparent police illegalities" to Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey for "possible criminal prosecution."

The lawyers made the request in court papers filed July 31, saying they had evidence of 70 instances of burglaries, thefts and possession of stolen items by Chicago police intelligence agents.

But U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry refused to allow the disclosure, saying if Carey wanted to see the alleged evidence, he would have to "do it himself."

Jobless claims up 179

Some 235,968 persons filed claims for unemployment insurance in Illinois last week — up 179 per cent over the same week last year, but only 2 per cent over the number for the preceding week.

The Illinois Bureau of Employment Security reported during the week ending Aug. 23 the number of state residents reporting they were still out of work decreased 1.3 per cent from the preceding week. However, the figure was 189 per cent over the 1974 figure for the same week.

Those filing claims for the first time or reopening old claims increased 12 per cent over the preceding week and 104 per cent over the same period last year.

'Rock' concert will go on

The North Aurora Village Board is caught in a legal wrangle over the definition of rock music in its attempt to keep such concerts away from the Aurora Downs racetrack.

A Circuit Court judge ruled Friday that a concert planned for Sept. 6, featuring the Allman Brothers and Seals and Croft, can go on as scheduled because it can't be determined if it qualifies as rock music.

The village board voted unanimously Monday against allowing the concert to be held on the basis of its conditional use permit issued to the race track — which prohibits rock concerts.

Homeier guilty again

Former state Rep. Christian Homeier III, who earlier this month pleaded guilty to federal mail fraud and conspiracy charges in connection with an expense-account kickback scheme, Friday pleaded guilty to state charges related to the same ruse.

Wayne Golomb, assistant Sangamon County state's attorney, agreed to drop conspiracy charges against Homeier in exchange for Homeier's cooperation in his case against state Rep. Webber Borchers, R-Decatur.

Borchers was acquitted of federal mail fraud and conspiracy charges this week but still faces conspiracy, theft and official misconduct charges arising from the fraudulent pay vouchers submitted by Homeier.

Coal strike continues

The wildcat strike by members of United Mine Workers kept 10,500 of Illinois' 12,000 union miners off the job Friday.

The strike continued in spite of action in U.S. District Court to get the miners back to work.

The walkouts have been growing since Aug. 13 and have shut down 31 of the more than 50 mines in the state.

Spokesmen for the Illinois Coal Operators Assn. estimated the strike was costing the state some 200,000 tons of coal production each day.

The miners contend that shift rotation — working the day shift one month, the night shift the next and the midnight shift on the third — is injurious to their health and destroys family life.

ARTIST JAMES E. BOWDEN puts finishing touches on a Bicentennial mural on the back

Put a little 'custo' in your life — customize a van

New teen status symbol is popular with adults too

Welcome to Dan Ackerman's customized van.

by BARRY SIGALE

Once, when cars were cars, young men rumbled past their van-driving elders with a contemptuous squeal of rubber.

Vans were owned by plumbers, furnace repairmen and camping enthusiasts. They were boxy, slow and something a young man didn't get caught alive in. High performance was the name of the game. A kid wanted a "rod," not a van.

Today, motorists have come full circle. Teen-agers have joined the plumbers and the van is the latest transportation rage. Sales of the simply-put-together vehicles are soaring. Customized vans, loaded with accessories for sociability, is a version of showmanship practiced by the owners of yesterday's heaps.

Thousands have joined the van parade for a variety of reasons. The initial image of teens using vans for drunken orgies persists. They definitely are used as rolling bedrooms. Some are obviously set up that way, some are not.

ONE TEEN who traded his high-performance special for a van equipped with stereo, carpeting and a bed tells it like it is.

"You can't smoke pot or drink too easy in a car," he says. "Vans are a big deal."

Teens aren't alone in buying vans. Dan Ackerman, a Palatine resident and Mount Prospect fireman, has a Ford Econoline 200 with a bed for two, upper berth that converts into a sleeper, refrigerator, stove, stereo with four speakers, drapes and wall-to-wall and up-the-wall carpeting.

"People have asked me to pull over and show them the interior of my van," says Ackerman, former owner of two Corvettes. Since he's installed $10,000 worth of equipment in his van, people are starting to notice.

Ackerman and his wife have gone to San Diego and back two times in 10 months in their van. They buy a two-week supply of groceries (one for going, one for coming) and travel as free as a breeze on the 6,000-mile round trip.

For under $500, including $330 for gasoline, the couple goes camping, meets people they otherwise would never meet and controls their own destiny. In town they use the van as a place to entertain friends as well as transportation to work.

AUTO DEALERS who have prospered from the run on vans are trying to catch up with sales. Some customize vans, but most send them out to companies that specialize in designing interior and exteriors.

"We're trying to figure out this van market ourselves," says Lenny Krause, president of Grand Spaulding-Dodge in Buffalo Grove and Chicago. Krause says vans comprise 25 per cent of his sales and the percentage is growing. By 1980, the truck market will rise 65 per cent. "Trick" vans are a small portion of the market, but the most interesting.

Beds, tables, refrigerators, closets, moon roofs, mag wheels, ice boxes, wine racks — the list of options goes on. Furniture can be fashioned out of vinyl or leather. Mink material for bedspreads or drapes is available. "The sky, really, is the limit," says Krause. "Exotic people can lay out what they want."

For $6,500 to $13,000 the outdoorsman, businessman and entertainer can convert an empty back end into a personalized multi-use van.

The fisherman can get a model complete with fish nets. Skiers can have special racks installed to hold equipment and allow themselves a place to change without having to wait in the cold.

BUSINESSMEN USE vans for promotional considerations as well as transportation needs. Chairs and table leave room for business meetings on the go.

Perhaps the most attractive is the plush design for the avid entertainer. Parking on the side of a road or in the forest preserve partyers are closed off to the rest of the world. With stereo playing and the cooler filled, the atmosphere is complete.

The setting can make high-performance enthusiasts forget about the 426-cubic inch Chrysler Hemi engine or the 427-cubic inch Chevrolet Rat motor. It was not, however, the van that forced the high-performance car off the road. It was the government, says Krause.

"The restrictions in pollution equipment took away the performance from the high-performance cars," he says. "The cars today have a lot of show, but not too much go."

Museums:

Plenty of small ones nearby in out-of-the-way places

by WANDALYN RICE

A museum may be an imposing building with carefully manicured display cases or, as any museum hunter can attest, it can be an old house run by a collector with enthusiasm.

In the Chicago area, there are countless small specialized museums that will never compete with the Museum of Science and Industry or the Field Museum of Natural History but can add spice to a weekend outing.

The Northwest suburbs have their own historical museums. The Arlington Heights Historical Society has a collection of memorabilia and an old country store. The Wheeling and Des Plaines historical societies also run museums.

But for those who have seen those, or whose tastes run to the unusual, there are other museums nearby. Short drives will take you to a field with World War II vintage aircraft, any number of museums dedicated to old trains and trolley cars and a variety of mansions from days gone by.

Victory Air Museum

When you turn off Ill. Rte. 176 left onto Gilmer Road in Lake County you are far from reminders of war. But just two miles down the road, if you are alert to the small sign in front of a ranch-style house, you can step into the days of daring pilots and the Battle of Britain.

The Victory Air Museum is really a small private airfield with old planes, some in pieces and others handsomely restored. A B-26 bomber, modified in the manner of the planes that served in Korea, rests alongside a small Kamakazi plane salvaged from the scrap heap after World War II.

In addition to airplanes which populate the field, a cluttered office is filled with memorabilia. Pictures, old maintenance manuals and models are scattered around. Old German and American uniforms hang overhead.

It is doubtful that any trip to the Victory Air Museum, particularly by ex-flyers, is complete without a leisurely and reminiscent talk with Paul Polidori, the curator of the museum, and Earl Reinert, a resident of Arlington Heights aviation buff and co-founder of the museum.

A recent afternoon visit to the museum found a former navigator of a B-29 who was stationed in Italy during World War II discussing planes and flying with a former B-17 pilot based in England during the same war.

The Victory Air Museum, open daily from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., does not have any fancy trappings, but does provide a look at the world of aviation before the days of the jumbo jets. Admission is $1 for adults. Children under 12 are free.

Illinois and Michigan Canal Museum

South suburban Lockport, was named for the locks along the Illinois and Michigan Canal, the predecessor to the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal.

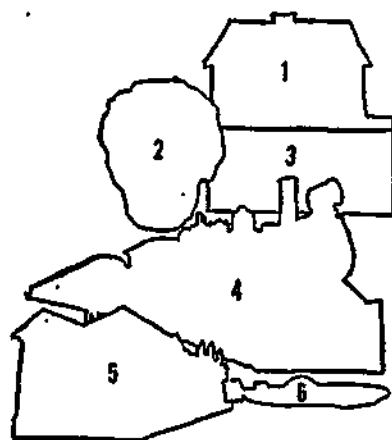

The "new" canal, which opened after the original canal was abandoned in 1919, still runs through Lockport, with large barges headed either toward Chicago or the Illinois River. It passes within hailing distance of what is left of the original canal, begun in 1822 and finished in 1848.

The Illinois and Michigan Canal Museum, 803 S. State, is dedicated to preserving the memory of the original canal and many of the artifacts of 19th century Lockport life. The museum, run by the Will County Historical Society, is in the building that housed the headquarters of the canal authority and served as the home for the canal commissioner until 1969. The building was built in 1837.

A tour of the museum, conducted by knowledgeable members of the historical society, includes a look at the office of Dr. William Dougall, a black physician who served as the canal authority doctor. Other rooms also recreate an earlier era.

The historical society has erected a restored log cabin, originally built in 1832, and an old jail rescued from demolition in Mokena, Ill. The two buildings overlook the original bed of the canal, which has now dried to a much smaller stream. The restored buildings are open on Sundays and the historical society hopes to move a

Frank Lloyd Wright Home

Any architecture buff knows suburban Oak Park has the largest concentration of homes built by architect Frank Lloyd Wright in the world.

And in recent months those interested in Wright's early work have been able to see the house where he and his family lived from 1889 until just after the turn of the century.

The house, 951 Chicago Ave. in the suburb, was purchased by the Frank Lloyd Wright Home and Studio Foundation last year and is open Tuesday and Thursday from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. and from 1 p.m. to 4:40 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

A tour of the house, which can be taken separately or immediately following the walking tour conducted each Sunday by the Chicago School of Architecture (a separate foundation,) is particularly interesting because restoration in parts of the house have just begun. Wide varieties of Wright styles are visible.

Wright, guides will tell you, returned to the house periodically over the years and made modifications. The problem facing the foundation, as one guide said, "is knowing what to restore since most of the work was done by Wright and you have to decide whether to restore to the Wright of 1890 or of 1950."

Among the most interesting rooms in the house are a playroom Wright built for his children, which includes child-size windows and the studio that once had a high vaulted ceiling cut down when Wright put in an apartment on the second story.

Admission to the Wright home is $2, or $1.50 for those who go on the walking tour, which costs $2, first. The money goes towards restoration and maintenance of the house.

Illinois Railway Museum

Children like to play with trains and the Illinois Railway Museum in Union is one of a number of museums in the area where grown-up children can play with grown-up trains.

The museum, a large rail yard with a variety of trains, street cars and interurban cars parked on sidings and in round houses, provides an unlimited treat for the railroad buff. Museum officials say there are more than 140 different engines and cars at the museum and even a short tour proves that point.

Electric cars run on Sundays from April through November at the museum, run on Saturdays from May to September and daily during the summer. Steam engines gives rides on Sundays from May to October and on Saturdays through the summer.

One disappointment of the museum is the fact that most of the cars are locked, so inspecting the insides must be done through windows. The action, clearly a safeguard against vandalism, means that visitors cannot get as close a look at the private car with its luxury interior or some of the other cars as they might like.

As with many specialty museums, it helps to know something about the subject before you go. However, members of the museum are usually around hard at work restoring old trains. They are happy to share some of their knowledge with visitors who have specific questions.

Admission to the museum is free, but donations are requested. Fares for rides on operating trains and donations go to the support of the museum. The museum, open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., closes in November and re-opens in April.

Bridges adds human dimension to beat cop

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) -- Lloyd Bridges has written a biography for the cop he plays in his new television series although it may never come to light in the course of the show.

The biography is one reason Bridges accepted the challenge of a fourth television series.

Bridges is a man of deep social consciousness. He hopes his characterization of a patrolman in blue pounding a beat will do more than entertain viewers. He plays "Joe Forrester" as a compassionate cop who befriends the people on his beat instead of intimidating them.

THE NBC SERIES is a spinoff of a "Police Story" segment in which Bridges first played the role.

For months he refused Columbia Television's blandishments to star in the series.

Bridges is rich and really doesn't have to work. Back in 1957 he began a four-year run in "Sea Hunt." Subsequently he starred in "The Lloyd Bridges Show" and "San Francisco International Airport."

In the past four years he has appeared in eight or 10 guest spots a year, skiing, playing tennis and scuba diving.

"I held back from 'Joe Forrester' because I didn't know if television could stand another cop show," Bridges said during location shooting in an East Los Angeles barrio.

"But I liked the idea of a beat cop. Crime is rampant now and maybe I can help to stem it a little instead of just diverting viewers for an hour."

"I'd like to demonstrate that a good cop is concerned about the people on his beat. That he can be sensitive and intelligent. Forrester doesn't like to pull his gun or throw his authority around."

TO MAKE CERTAIN writers don't corrupt the original concept of the character, Bridges and his wife, Doty, wrote out a past and private life for Joe Forrester as a guide.

"He's a widower whose father was a cop killed in the line of duty," Bridges said. "He attended junior college here in Los Angeles and went to war in the Marine Corps."

"Forrester became a cop and married his college sweetheart. They had a couple of kids and he was wounded in a gun fight. Forrester becomes a lieutenant, but the danger of being a cop is terribly hard on his wife."

"Eventually he decides to retire to a chicken ranch. But when his wife dies he goes to pieces and turns to drink. Finally an old policeman pal convinces him to come out of retirement and rejoin the force."

"FORRESTER DOES just that, but he wants to be a beat cop, out where a uniformed policeman really gets close to the people. That's the kind of background I'd like to see the producers try to work into the show during the first season. But there's so much action there hasn't been time so far."

"Now Forrester has a girl friend, a mother and a 21-year-old daughter. But he's afraid to remarry because he doesn't want to put another woman through the trauma of being a cop's wife."

"I want viewers to see this human side of a well rounded, dimensional man."

Jim Hutton

Would you be so kind and print a picture of Jim Hutton, along with some information about him? What shows and movies has he been in?

V.K.

Jim's film career began while he was in Nuremberg, Germany as a soldier in the U.S. Army. At that time he started that city's first English-language theater. While in Germany filming "A Time to Live, A Time to Die," Hollywood director Douglas Kirk spotted Jim and offered him a major role in the film. That lucky break got Jim out of the barracks and into Hollywood.

After his first movie, Jim's motion picture career blossomed and he went on to appear in: "Where the Boys Are," "The Horizontal Lieutenant," "The Honeymoon Machine," "Bachelor in Paradise," "Walk, Don't Run" and others.

Jim will be starring in "Elery Queen," a new NBC series which will premiere on Sept. 7.

Are Mary and Jeff Martin, of "All My Children," married in real life?

J.L.

Yup. Susan Blanchard, who played Mary in that ABC daytime drama (but died in the show), is really married to Charles Frank, who plays Jeff Martin in the series.

Could you please tell me where I can write to Earl Holliman? Also tell me a little bit about his background.

T.B.

Earl, who stars in the popular NBC series "Police Woman" as Lt. Bill Crowley, knew he wanted to become an actor at age six. He began to study acting seriously at the University of Southern California and at the Pasadena Playhouse. Eventually, he began to appear in films such as

Earl Holliman

"Giant," "Gunfight at OK Corral," "Summer and Smoke," "Don't Go Near the Water" and others.

Earl received the Hollywood Press Association's Golden Globe Award for Best Supporting Actor for his role as Katharine Hepburn's brother in the film "The Rainmaker." Earl has appeared in 19 movies and he has starred in three major TV series.

Shelby Lyman on chess

The surprise of the 1975 U.S. Championship was 22-year-old Kenneth Rogoff. His solid and steady play earned him second place, behind defending champion Walter Browne.

Rogoff, who became a senior master at 17, has long been recognized as a youth of considerable talent and promise (even by Bobby Fischer). But, as an undergraduate student at Yale, he has played sparingly in recent years. Therefore, his performance was all the more outstanding.

Ken's achievement had a special bonus. This year's tournament, a zonal (preliminary) in the world championship cycle, qualified first- and second-place finishers for the next step - the world-class and very prestigious interzonal tournament.

THOUGH HIS play is more modest than spectacular, it poses special problems for less disciplined opponents. Rogoff plays very close to the vest, and rarely risks obscure complexities. He waits for the slightest inaccuracy and then often will carry through his spare advantage to an endgame victory.

In the following game against 1973 co-champion, John Grefe, Rogoff employed simple methods to win. On three occasions he simply collected loose material.

We will now present those three positions. See if you can anticipate Ken's material-winning (and finally game-winning) maneuver in each case.

In Diagram One, Grefe, who incidentally had a disastrous tournament, has allowed Rogoff the win of a pawn. Do you see it?

The correct move is 1. N-N3! Both the QP and the QRP are threatened. Grefe has no time for 1... NxN, because of the pawn winning zwischenzug 2. BxP!

Grefe reluctantly chose 1... B-QB1, and Rogoff snatched the free QRP (with NxP).

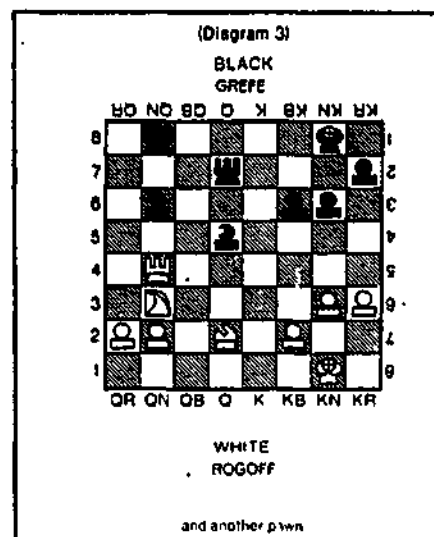

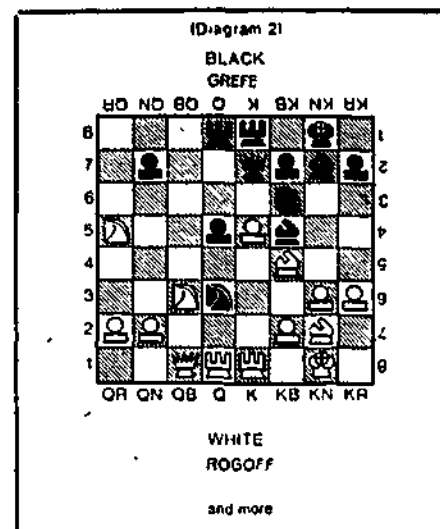

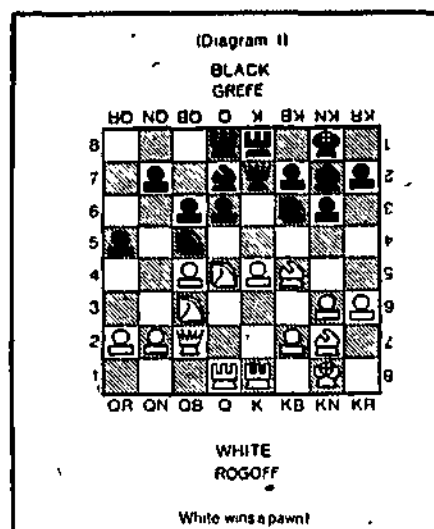

THE PAWN disadvantage immediately provoked Grefe to try a badly-prepared pawn thrust in the center. With 2... P-Q4?; 3. BPxP, PxP; 4. P-K6, B-B4; 5. Q-B1, N-Q6? he (Diagram 2) is throwing good pieces after bad.

How would you answer black's last move? Rogoff played 6. RxN, BxR; 7. R-Q1!, which gained a second piece for the rook.

grammed position was reached. Here (Diagram 3) the winning move was easy; Rogoff played the direct B-K3!

Grefe and the QNP must soon part company (do you see why?), and white's passed queenside pawns, buttressed by his extra force, will brook no opposition. Hereupon, black resigned.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The wily Mordred was really surprised when Lancelot went to five hearts over his spade preempt. He looked at his five hearts and decided a double was in order. Dinadan, sitting North considered a redouble, but was too cowardly to take such drastic action.

Mordred cashed two spades and shifted to a trump. When East showed out Lancelot announced, "Running trumps" and spread his hand.

Gawaine, sitting East, said, "It's not like you to concede down one."
"I'm not," replied Lancelot. "I'm claiming all the rest."

Lancelot was right as always. Mordred's four spade opening had marked him with seven spades. Gawaine had discarded on the first heart so that gave Mordred five cards in that suit. That left him with just one card in diamonds or clubs.

Lancelot would discard four diamonds and two clubs from dummy. Then he would lead a diamond to dummy's ace and his final trick would come from his deuce of diamonds or dummy's last club.

A NEW YORK reader wants to know if it pays to be an overbidder.

The answer to his question is that it pays to overbid your good hands. In other words, you should strain to bid games and slams. On the other hand, it does not pay to go overboard with bad hands. For one good sacrifice bid you are likely to find yourself with several bad ones.

Finally, it is important that both part-

Solo pilot Blanche Scott cited

A specially cacheted cover, issued by the National Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution, will mark the 65th anniversary of the first solo flight by an American woman.

Milestone of Flight No. 31 commemorates Blanche Stuart Scott's historic flight in a Curtiss Pusher at Hammondsport, N.Y. Sept. 2, 1910. The cover will be postmarked there on the anniversary date.

Scott, who never received a pilot's license, missed the distinction of being the first woman to solo when that honor was attained by a Frenchwoman just two weeks prior to the New York flight. She was the first woman to fly in a jet when, in 1948, she was a passenger in a training version of the Lockheed P-80 Shooting Star. Scott also was the only woman ever instructed by aircraft pioneer Glenn H. Curtiss.

The commemorative cover is available from Milestone of Flight, National Air and Space Museum, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. 20560. Cost is $1 each and there is a limit of five covers per customer.

THE IRISH POST Office will issue a commemorative stamp Sept. 1 marking the Bi-centenary of the founding of the Presentation Order of Nuns.

The stamp, to be released in 5p and 7p denominations, features the Order's founder, Nana Nagle, and pupils, based on an engraving by Charles Turner.

Mint stamps are available from the Philatelic Section, General Post Office, Dublin 1, Ireland.

THE KINGDOM of Swaziland issued four commemorative stamps Aug. 18 marking the 10th anniversary of the country's Internal Air Service.

Denominations include a 4-cent (featuring the airport's Central Tower), 5-cent (fire brigade), 16-cent (Douglas C47 Dakota airplane) and a 25-cent (Hawker Siddeley airplane).

Mint stamps are available from the Swaziland Stamp Bureau, P.O. Box 565, Mbabane, Swaziland.

THE LAST day of sale of the United Nations "World Population Year" stamp will be Oct. 18.

No promises of state funds for railroad bypass

Although Illinois Dept. of Highway officials reviewed several projects for a westside railroad bypass and other highway projects, no immediate commitments for state or federal funds are forthcoming.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said state officials reviewed several projects at a recent meeting, but he added no definite commitments were made.

Behrel said he was told that state and federal funding could be sought for the railroad bypass even if the project is not constructed on a state route.

CITY OFFICIALS are discussing plans for the construction of an overpass or underpass on the west side of Des Plaines. Oakton Street and Algonquin Road at the crossings of the Chicago and North Western Ry. outer belt tracks are being considered as possible locations.

Behrel repeated Friday he favors the Algonquin Road route because of the fact that there is more land available for the construction of the overpass. He added there would probably have to be some widening of Algonquin Road to accommodate additional traffic.

Area residents have opposed widening the road for many years. They contend that too much of their property would be lost if the street were widened from two to four lanes.

Behrel said state officials seem interested in the project, but indicated they would delay any formal comment until after detailed plans are reviewed.

THE MAYOR said he is hopeful that city officials can come to an agreement on the project so that plans can be prepared and applications can be made for funding for the work.

Behrel is chairman of the Northwest Municipal Conference's Federal Aid to Urban Systems Commission which must approve all local projects for funding before money can be sought from federal officials.

The city officials also are discussing a number of other intersection improvement projects, including signal improvement at Oakton and Lee Streets to include left turn signals and a proposal to put signals at Oakton Street and Webster Lane.

"Everything went all right, we did not expect to come away from the meeting with a handful of goodies, we merely wanted to get some of the state's current thinking on trends in road improvements," the mayor said.

HE ADDED THAT the city's engineering department is currently working on a feasibility study of the best location for the overpass and once that is completed the city council can move ahead with a decision on the matter.

Behrel also reported that he has completed the necessary documents to approve the installation of traffic signals at Golf Road and Sixth Avenue near the Cumberland Circle. Residents in the area had asked the city for the signals because of the number of school children who use the intersection.

The mayor said the project will cost $30,000.

Meeting may avert teachers strike

by BOB GALLAS

Negotiators for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers and the board of education will meet this weekend in an attempt to avert a possible teacher strike when school opens Tuesday.

Negotiators set another meeting after talks broke off Wednesday with no settlement in salary talks near, according to both sides.

A meeting of all district teachers has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster, Mount Prospect. If talks are unsuccessful, teachers are expected to vote on whether they will strike.

"The situation is extremely grave, but we are working as hard as we can to get things worked out over the weekend," said Clay Marquard, Illinois Education Assn. representative for the Dist. 59 teachers' union.

MARQUARD TOLD teachers the main problems in negotiations centered around money and a clause that would give teachers a say in how their work force will be reduced should that become necessary due to declining enrollments.

Marquard told teachers he would make a recommendation to them at the meeting Tuesday, but did not give any specifics about what the recommendation would be.

"We will make a decision Monday on what will happen Tuesday," said Alma Parrish, president of the teachers' union. Mrs. Parrish said a decision "will be made Monday whether or not we return to school Tuesday" if negotiations this weekend are successful.

Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell said Friday that if teachers do vote to strike Monday night, a decision on whether schools will remain open won't be made until Tuesday morning.

"It's not practical to think we can open 21 schools, if there is a strike," said Bardwell. "We have to know how many teachers will show up for work," he said.

BARDWELL SAID news would be relayed to parents Tuesday morning through local radio stations.

Mrs. Parrish said she was "optimistic" that a settlement would be reached over the long, holiday weekend.

The board's last pay offer to the teachers, which was rejected, called for a 2 per cent cost-of-living pay increase in addition to the teachers' regular 4 per cent increase for another year of experience.

Price controls on oil to be removed slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and congressional leaders, showing new signs of energy policy compromise, agreed Friday on a proposal to extend oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them slowly over a period not to exceed 30 months.

As a conciliatory gesture, Ford promised to delay his threatened veto of a six-month price control extension until after the new plan can be presented to House and Senate Democrats late next week.

Ford softened his resistance to compromise during an hour-long meeting with House speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who believe Congress can come up with new energy legislation in 30 days.

BUT THE PRESIDENT rejected Mansfield's plea that he sign the six-month control bill "for the sake of the nation" to ward off a gasoline price hike of at least 3 cents a gallon and other inflationary effects of immediate decontrol.

"We found the President most considerate, most helpful, most conciliatory," Mansfield told reporters.

"He showed flexibility. Frankly, I was encouraged."

The new plan, presented by Mansfield, apparently would require Congress quickly to pass a bill extending present price controls for no more than 60 days. That would give time for the House and Senate to then pass another bill phasing out the controls gradually as the President wanted.

"The President told Mansfield and Albert that he would not veto a short extension of oil price controls if he is reasonably confident Congress will act favorably within a matter of weeks on the phased decontrol plan," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

NESSEN SAID Ford would "act favorably" on the decontrol bill proposed by Mansfield if it were adopted by Congress.

Neither Nessen nor Mansfield would elaborate on details of the plan. Nessen said the 60-day and 30-month periods were the most Ford would accept. But Mansfield, asked about decontrol over 30 months, replied: "You're on the right track, but you've got the (Continued on page 2)

PIT STOP in a southern Illinois coal mine gives Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper, a Republican candidate for governor, a chance to clean mud from his shoes.

Dick Cooper

campaign trail can get muddy

by BOB LAHEY

MARISSA, Ill. — Richard H. Cooper had come to deep southern Illinois to dig his hands into the bowels of the earth alongside the large, leathery miners who wrest coal from the land.

Instead, he was getting the V.I.P. tour of River King Pit No. 6 by an entourage of management personnel of Peabody Coal Co.

Having left his Winnetka home before daylight for the two-hour flight to the coal country, he arrived before starting time only to learn the mine workers had walked off the job.

"Hi, I'm Dick Cooper, Republican candidate for governor," he said to Mine Supt. Chet Findley. "I'm here to do a day's work."

"Looks like you're the only one," Findley replied. THIS WAS COOPER'S first stop in a planned series of "workdays" during which he says he will "work his way to the governor's mansion" by meeting the people of Illinois and learning their problems.

During handshaking stops, he tells people, "I'm a worker, not a walker." He also will reply, when the uninitiated ask who he's running against, "I'm running against Dan Walker."

There is, of course, the small matter of winning the Republican nomination over former U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, or perhaps State Comptroller George Lindberg. And then it could turn out that the Democratic candidate is State Treasurer Alan Dixon, or conceivably Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

Earlier, as the small four-passenger Aerocommander threaded its way in dim light between layers of clouds toward the south, Cooper sipped coffee and considered that lineup.

"The governor has already lost," he declares. "But nobody has won it yet, and you can't tell at this point if Walker might win it back again."

Cooper is an intense man with deep blue eyes set in a sun-bronzed face. He has a habit of snapping the fingers of both hands in rapid succession when he talks about his goals. "We can make this thing happen."

Snap, snap, snap, snap.

IT IS THE ACQUIRED habit of a man who has worked his way from semi-poverty as a stock boy at Gimbel's to the owner of his own trucking company to the top spot in the aggressive, super-sales pitch organizations, Weight Watchers Inc.

HE IS NEW TO politics. But he is "getting comfortable with campaigning" after the first few weeks on the trail.

While waiting for an airplane a week or so ago, he said he had begun to lose that initial awkward feeling that all political neophytes must overcome.

"I was just sitting in the Peoria airport, with an hour to wait, when I suddenly realized I was wasting time. So I got up and started walking around, shaking hands."

He found, said Cooper, "If you walk up to people with your hand outstretched and a smile on your face, they will talk to you." Unfortunately, he added, half the people he met in the airport were from Iowa.

Cooper acknowledges, as the plane starts its descent toward the tiny Sparta, Ill., airport, that he has not developed strong positions on specific issues.

Saturday

"I've never seen anything wrong in saying, 'I don't know,'" says the 35-year-old entrepreneur who accumulated his first million dollars at the age of 27. "I've made a lot of money in the stock market with that attitude. If I'm interested in a company, I don't just read the Standard & Poor report; I go out and look at the company and find out for myself what it's doing."

THEN COOPER IS ON the ground and is being told that the miners have gone out on a wildcat strike in a dispute over working hours. "I won't cross the picket line," he says. But the Peabody spokesman assures him there are many entrances to the 20,000-acre mining complex and there will be no confrontations with pickets.

Many of the entrances have been closed by standing water — hours before, St. Clair County had been deluged by 3.5 inches of rain in three hours.

After an initial briefing in the mine's operations office, Cooper is driven in a mud-covered four-wheel-drive van over the soupy company roads to the bottom of Pit No. 6, which is under eight feet of water.

He is wearing denim work clothes — a wise choice — and a blue double-breasted jacket with gold buttons which would look more fitting at a North Shore yacht club.

He also is wearing soft-leather loafers with tassels. As the van slips and slides through the mud to the bottom of the 100-foot pit, where the mine's chief mechanics is seen slogging knee-deep, one senses Cooper is beginning to realize the loafers are a mistake.

No one is working except two men who are setting pumps on the opposite bank of the flooded pit.

That is the higher side, and a mud-begrimed miner is slithering down a 125-foot face of goop and rain-polished shale, clinging to a rope.

STANDING THERE with the slime creeping toward the tops of his loafers, Cooper makes one more

Two arrested in Pegasus raid

by KURT BAER

Simultaneous police raids in Arlington Heights and Chicago Friday closed the offices of the controversial Pegasus race track betting courier service.

Pegasus offices at 1612 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and 343 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, were raided shortly after 1:30 p.m. Friday. Police confiscated two teletype machines and print-out pages with wagering information on races being run at Arlington Park Race Track.

No cash was taken from either office, police said.

CHARGED WITH violating a state statute that prohibits the transmission and receipt of betting information were Louise Kaplan, 41, of Northbrook, identified by police as the office manager in Arlington Heights; and William Rose, general manager of the Chicago office.

Rose was released on $1,000 bond, and Ms. Kaplan was released on her own recognizance. Both individuals are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court Sept. 19.

Pegasus' Chicago office was raided several times earlier this summer by Chicago police who claimed that the business' practice of accepting money for bets at Chicago-area race tracks violated the city's antigambling ordinances.

Pegasus charges its customers 10 cents for every dollar bet in their name.

PEGASUS REOPENED this week after a Circuit Court judge ruled that the betting operation was not a clear-cut violation of Chicago gambling ordinances.

Friday's raids were based upon an Illinois statute that prohibits the transmission of betting information by "telephone, telegraph, radio, semaphore or similar means," and the installation of equipment for the transmission or receipt of betting information.

Police contend Pegasus' Arlington Heights and Chicago offices were connected by the teletype machines that were used to send betting information.

Warrants for the raids were issued by Associate Judge Anthony J. Scitilo.

Arlington Heights police said they became aware of Pegasus' Northwest Highway office Wednesday, and had the building under surveillance before the raid.

Optimists not selling circus tickets

The president of the Des Plaines Optimist Club Friday said his organization is not selling circus tickets despite reports the group was soliciting merchants in the city.

"We are not involved in the event even though some people are selling tickets to local merchants and implying that the Des Plaines Optimist Club is involved with the project," said Vera Ecklund, president of the club.

Ecklund said the Arlington Heights Optimists are promoting the event and apparently some members of their group were selling tickets in Des Plaines.

He said the Des Plaines club members were concerned about the situation because their group has only one major fund-raising event each year.

"WE HAVE a good working relationship with many of the merchants, but we did not want it to appear we were constantly soliciting them for funds," Ecklund added.

He said the Des Plaines Optimists concentrate their fund-raising efforts each year with a Christmas Tree sale.

"We do contact many merchants on this project and we do not want to hurt this relationship," he said.

Ecklund added that he was not opposed to other groups attempting to raise funds in the city, but he wanted it made clear that the Des Plaines Optimists were not involved.

From the library

Stitchery by Dorothy Towler, 1932 Pine St., Des Plaines, is on display in the museum case at the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave., during September. Mrs. Towler learned most of the stitches from her mother and became so expert that she was teaching at 10 years old.

Mrs. Towler will demonstrate different stitchery techniques Sept. 11 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the library. Some of the techniques covered will be patchwork, applique, crewel, quilting and hardanger. Also she will discuss the use of needles, frames and hoops. Instructions will be given to persons bringing 12-by-15-inch plain cotton fabric, embroidery needle, thread, thimble and scissors.

Mikva to speak on press

The Chicago Public Library has selected U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill., to be one of a series of prominent Chicago-area residents that give their views on various historic subjects.

Mikva's impressions on freedom of the press will be broadcast over radio station WEFM (99.5 FM) Sept. 12 at 6:55 a.m. and 6:55 p.m., and again Sept. 14 at 6:55 p.m.

The congressman proposed that a central message during the Bicentennial celebration should be that "we have a free press and a democratic society — and we cannot have one without the other."

Mikva stresses on the broadcasts that the press has a crucial role to play in preserving a free and open society.

Home mailbox blasts probed

by LUISA GINETTI

Investigators from the U.S. Dept. of Justice Postal Division are investigating a series of home mailbox bombings during the past three months in the Highland Glen subdivision, Wheeling.

The sixth and most recent incident occurred Thursday night at 129 Coral Ln. where investigators said a black powder device was used in the explosion which blew the mailbox almost 20 feet in the air.

Thursday night's incident was described by federal investigators as the most violent of the explosions to occur thus far and the first in five or six weeks. Federal investigators said they are working with Wheeling police but have stepped up their own efforts in light of the latest incident.

Investigators said Thursday night's explosion was enough to maim or kill anyone who might have been close to the mailbox. No fragments were found at the scene and investigators believe a timing device may have been used in the bombing.

THE INCIDENT was similar to five other mailbox bombings which have occurred since June in the Highland Glen area, according to Wheeling police.

Lt. Ronald Nelson said black powder devices were used in each case but Thursday night's incident was the most violent.

Nelson said there were no witnesses to Thursday's bombing but a neighbor retrieved mail from the box at about 7 p.m.

Police believe the bomb was placed sometime between 7 p.m. and the time of the explosion shortly before 9 p.m. The mailboxes are mounted on a post at the street curb away from the house. Nelson said the explosion caused no other damage and no one was injured.

Police patrols were increased in the area in June when the first incidents occurred but normal patrols were resumed several weeks ago because there were no more bombings, Nelson said.

"We are at a point now where we consider it a major investigation and we are very concerned about it," Nelson said. He added that police believe the incidents are the work of "pranksters."

Federal investigators said Friday they are not satisfied with Wheeling's handling of the situation and are stepping up their own investigation as a result of Thursday's incident. Tampering with a mailbox is a federal offense.

A FEDERAL investigator said Friday the Justice Department's postal division was notified of the incidents earlier this summer by the Wheeling Post Office, which received the first reports of the bombings. He said the number of bombings is "significant" and prompted the federal intervention.

"We are trying to avert a tragedy out there and although we don't want to create a panic, some people don't know about it and they should be careful," he said.

Earlier, as the small four-passenger Aerocommander threaded its way in dim light between layers of clouds toward the south, Cooper sipped coffee and considered that lineup.

"The governor has already lost," he declares. "But nobody has won it yet, and you can't tell at this point if Walker might win it back again."

Cooper is an intense man with deep blue eyes set in a sun-bronzed face. He has a habit of snapping the fingers of both hands in rapid succession when he talks about his goals. "We can make this thing happen."

HE IS NEW TO politics. But he is "getting comfortable with campaigning" after the first few weeks on the trail.

While waiting for an airplane a week or so ago, he said he had begun to lose that initial awkward feeling that all political neophytes must overcome.

"I was just sitting in the Peoria airport, with an hour to wait, when I suddenly realized I was wasting time. So I got up and started walking around, shaking hands."

He found, said Cooper, "If you walk up to people with your hand outstretched and a smile on your face, they will talk to you." Unfortunately, he added, half the people he met in the airport were from Iowa.

Cooper acknowledges, as the plane starts its descent toward the tiny Sparta, Ill., airport, that he has not developed strong positions on specific issues.

"I've never seen anything wrong in saying, 'I don't know,'" says the 35-year-old entrepreneur who accumulated his first million dollars at the age of 27. "I've made a lot of money in the stock market with that attitude. If I'm interested in a company, I don't just read the Standard & Poor report; I go out and look at the company and find out for myself what it's doing."

THEN COOPER IS ON the ground and is being told that the miners have gone out on a wildcat strike in a dispute over working hours. "I won't cross the picket line," he says. But the Peabody spokesman assures him there are many entrances to the 20,000-acre mining complex and there will be no confrontations with pickets.

Many of the entrances have been closed by standing water — hours before, St. Clair County had been deluged by 3.5 inches of rain in three hours.

After an initial briefing in the mine's operations office, Cooper is driven in a mud-covered four-wheel-drive van over the soupy company roads to the bottom of Pit No. 6, which is under eight feet of water.

He is wearing denim work clothes — a wise choice — and a blue double-breasted jacket with gold buttons which would look more fitting at a North Shore yacht club.

He also is wearing soft-leather loafers with tassels. As the van slips and slides through the mud to the bottom of the 100-foot pit, where the mine's chief mechanist is seen slogging knee-deep, one senses Cooper is beginning to realize the loafers are a mistake.

No one is working except two men who are setting pumps on the opposite bank of the flooded pit.

That is the higher side, and a mud-begrimed miner is slithering down a 125-foot face of goop and rain-polished shale, clinging to a rope.

Price controls on oil to be removed slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and congressional leaders, showing new signs of energy policy compromise, agreed Friday on a proposal to extend oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them slowly over a period not to exceed 39 months.

As a conciliatory gesture, Ford promised to delay his threatened veto of a six-month price control extension until after the new plan can be presented to House and Senate Democrats late next week.

Ford softened his resistance to compromise during an hour-long meeting with House speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who believe Congress can come up with new energy legislation in 30 days.

BUT THE PRESIDENT rejected Mansfield's plea that he sign the six-month control bill "for the sake of the nation" to ward off a gasoline price hike of at least 3 cents a gallon and other inflationary effects of immediate decontrol.

"We found the President most considerate, most helpful, most conciliatory," Mansfield told reporters.

"He showed flexibility. Frankly, I was encouraged."

The new plan, presented by Mansfield, apparently would require Congress quickly to pass a bill extending present price controls for no more than 60 days. That would give time for the House and Senate to then pass another bill phasing out the controls gradually as the President wanted.

"The President told Mansfield and Albert that he would not veto a short extension of oil price controls if he is reasonably confident Congress will act favorably within a matter of weeks on the phased decontrol plan," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

NESSSEN SAID Ford would "act favorably" on the decontrol bill proposed by Mansfield if it were adopted by Congress.

Neither Nessen nor Mansfield would elaborate on details of the plan. Nessen said the 60-day and 39-month periods were the most Ford would accept. But Mansfield, asked about decontrol over 39 months, replied: "You're on the right track, but you've got the

Two arrested in Pegasus raid

by KURT BAER

Simultaneous police raids in Arlington Heights and Chicago Friday closed the offices of the controversial Pegasus race track betting courier service.

Pegasus offices at 1812 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and 343 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, were raided shortly after 1:30 p.m. Friday. Police confiscated two teletype machines and print-out pages with wagering information on races being run at Arlington Park Race Track.

No cash was taken from either office, police said.

CHARGED WITH violating a state statute that prohibits the transmission and receipt of betting information were Louise Kaplan, 41, of Northbrook, identified by police as the office manager in Arlington Heights; and William Rose, general manager of the Chicago office.

Rose was released on $1,000 bond, and Ms. Kaplan was released on her own recognizance. Both individuals are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court Sept. 19.

Pegasus' Chicago office was raided several times earlier this summer by

Chicago police who claimed that the business' practice of accepting money for bets at Chicago-area race tracks violated the city's antigambling ordinances.

Pegasus charges its customers 10 cents for every dollar bet in their name.

PEGASUS REOPENED this week after a Circuit Court judge ruled that the betting operation was not a clear-cut violation of Chicago gambling ordinances.

Friday's raids were based upon an Illinois statute that prohibits the transmission of betting information by "telephone, telegraph, radio, semaphore or similar means," and the installation of equipment for the transmission or receipt of betting information.

Police contend Pegasus' Arlington Heights and Chicago offices were connected by the teletype machines that were used to send betting information.

Warrants for the raids were issued by Associate Judge Anthony J. Scallilo.

Arlington Heights police said they became aware of Pegasus' Northwest Highway office Wednesday, and had the building under surveillance before the raid.

State open-land grants awarded

by KURT BAER

Two Northwest suburbs will receive money to buy open land as part of a $5 million program of state grants announced Friday by Gov. Dan Walker.

The Village of Arlington Heights will receive $400,700 to buy 113 acres of land along McDonald Creek, east of Windsor Drive, for the future development of Lake Arlington.

The Schaumburg Park District will be paid $78,750 to buy 12.8 acres along the west branch of Salt Creek at the Spring Valley Nature Center, Plum Grove Road south of Schaumburg Road.

THE GRANTS are intended to be matched with local funds.

Of the $5 million allocated to 58 separate communities in the state, $2.3 million will be spent in Cook County and $2 million in five suburban counties surrounding Cook.

Other grants in the North suburban area include $500,000 to the Village of Glenview to buy 46 acres of land at the western edge of the village called Kennicott Grove and $200,000 to the Village of Barrington to buy 17.6 acres of land between Bakers Lake and the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Hanover Park will receive $32,500 to buy five acres of land at Mueller Park. Lake County will get a $130,000 grant for an addition to the county's forest preserve system.

WALKER SAID the open land grants were intentionally concentrated in the Chicago metropolitan area to help balance park land deficits that exist in many communities.

"As desirable land becomes more scarce in the Chicago area and elsewhere in the nation and as acquisition costs skyrocket, Illinois communities have a unique opportunity through this open space program to create new parks and recreation areas at reasonable costs," Walker said at a Chicago press conference.

The $5 million will be used in the purchase of 1,800 acres of land for public recreation throughout the state, 290 in Cook County. Last year, $3.3 million was allocated for 900 acres of property in the state.

Community applications for the funds in this area were processed through the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission which rated each application's eligibility for the program.

An application from the Arlington Heights Park District for a 1.3-acre addition to Greens Park, Olive and Douglas streets, apparently was not approved. The park district asked for $15,000 to buy the additional land.

School talks go on despite impasse

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 school board members have decided to continue negotiating with teachers despite an impasse declared by board negotiators earlier this week.

Board members met in executive session Thursday night to discuss their next step but no details were released Friday. Teachers had voted Wednesday to send their negotiators back to the table rather than strike.

Because an impasse exists, the next step is for both sides to hire a mediator to settle the situation. Board negotiators and union officials plan to meet Wednesday to decide their plans.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said board members discussed the state of negotiations at length, but he declined to elaborate on their comments.

100 bottle caps, $15 taken by burglars

Burglars stole $15 in cash and about 100 redeemable bottle caps from the home of Vernon Gurney, 182 E. Highland Ave., Wheeling police said Friday.

Gurney told police the burglary probably occurred within the last four days while he was on vacation.

5 guns, other gear stolen from home

Several guns, two television sets, a stereo system and assorted jewels valued at $4,285 were stolen during the burglary of a Buffalo Grove residence, said police Friday.

Raymond Yurgil, 28, of 1309 Bristol Ln., told police he returned home early Thursday and discovered the break-in.

The stolen guns included three handguns, a rifle and two shotguns.

The burglars apparently pried open a garage door leading to the townhouse, said police.

Teachers, board to meet, attempt to avert strike

by BOB GALLAS

Negotiators for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers and the board of education will meet this weekend in an attempt to avert a possible teacher strike when school opens Tuesday.

Negotiators set another meeting after talks broke off Wednesday with no settlement in salary talks near, according to both sides.

A meeting of all district teachers has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster, Mount Prospect. If talks are unsuccessful, teachers are expected to vote on whether they will strike.

"The situation is extremely grave, but we are working as hard as we can to get things worked out over the weekend," said Clay Marquard, Illinois Education Assn. representative for the Dist. 59 teachers' union.

MARQUARD TOLD teachers the main problems in negotiations centered around money and a clause that would give teachers a say in how their work force will be reduced should that become necessary due to declining enrollments.

Marquard told teachers he would make a recommendation to them at the meeting Tuesday, but did not give any specifics about what the recommendation would be.

"We will make a decision Monday on what will happen Tuesday," said Alma Parrish, president of the teachers' union. Mrs. Parrish said a decision "will be made Monday whether or not we return to school Tuesday" if negotiations this weekend are successful.

Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell said Friday that if teachers do vote to strike Monday night, a decision on whether schools will remain open won't be made until Tuesday morning.

"It's not practical to think we can open 21 schools, if there is a strike," said Bardwell. "We have to know how many teachers will show up for work," he said.

BARDWELL SAID news would be relayed to parents Tuesday morning through local radio stations.

Mrs. Parrish said she was "optimistic" that a settlement would be reached over the long, holiday weekend.

The board's last pay offer to the teachers, which was rejected, called for a 2 per cent cost-of-living pay increase in addition to the teachers' regular 4 per cent increase for another year of experience.

Village man murdered in Chicago

Chicago police are investigating the murder of an Elk Grove Village man who was gunned down late Thursday by a masked assailant near Dileo's Restaurant in Chicago.

Frank Goulakos, 47, of 601 Charing Cross Rd., was fatally shot late Thursday as he was walking to his parked car near the restaurant's parking lot at 5700 N. Central Ave. Goulakos was a cook at the restaurant.

According to police Goulakos was wounded at least three times in the chest and head by the gunman who fired at Goulakos while chasing him down the street.

Police said witnesses told them they saw the masked gunman jump from a parked car on nearby Seminole Street before the shooting. The gunman returned to the auto after the shooting and escaped with a waiting unidentified driver.

Police added there was no apparent motive for the shooting.

Goulakos was pronounced dead on arrival at Resurrection Hospital.

He is survived by a wife and two children.

Price controls on oil to be removed slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and congressional leaders, showing new signs of energy policy compromise, agreed Friday on a proposal to extend oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them slowly over a period not to exceed 39 months.

As a conciliatory gesture, Ford promised to delay his threatened veto of a six-month price control extension until after the new plan can be presented to House and Senate Democrats late next week.

Dick Cooper
discovers campaign trail can
get muddy

PIT STOP in a southern Illinois coal mine gives Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper, a Republican candidate for governor, a chance to clean mud from his shoes.

Mines were closed by a union walkout and 3.5 inches of rain shortly before Cooper arrived for tour of a strip mine in St. Clair County in an early campaign foray.

by BOB LAHEY

MARISSA, Ill. — Richard H. Cooper had come to deep southern Illinois to dig his hands into the bowels of the earth alongside the large, leathery miners who wrest coal from the land.

Instead, he was getting the V.I.P. tour of River King Pit No. 6 by an entourage of management personnel of Peabody Coal Co.

Having left his Winnetka home before daylight for the two-hour flight to the coal country, he arrived before starting time only to learn the mine workers had walked off the job.

"Hi, I'm Dick Cooper, Republican candidate for governor," he said to Mine Supt. Chet Findley. "I'm here to do a day's work."

"Looks like you're the only one," Findley replied.

THIS WAS COOPER'S first stop in a planned series of "workdays" during which he says he will "work his way to the governor's mansion" by meeting the people of Illinois and learning their problems.

During handshaking stops, he tells people, "I'm a worker, not a walker." He also will reply, when the uninitiated ask "who he's running against," "I'm running against Dan Walker."

There is, of course, the small matter of winning the Republican nomination over former U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, or perhaps State Comptroller George Lindberg. And then it could turn out that the Democratic candidate is State Treasurer Alan Dixon, or conceivably Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

Earlier, as the small four-passenger Aerocommander threaded its way in dim light between layers of clouds toward the south, Cooper sipped coffee and considered that lineup.

Dist. 211 wrapup

Hot lunches OKd for senior citizens

This fall the doors of Dist. 211 high schools will open to residents somewhat older than the teen-age set.

The board of education has given its approval to senior citizens' hot lunch program which is expected to go into effect this semester at Palatine, Conant, Fremd, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates High Schools.

The program, designed by the federal government and Illinois Office of Education, will be sponsored by local township organizations. The township senior citizen groups will issue identification cards for residents who wish to participate in the program and will make arrangements for transportation.

Hot lunches will be served in the school cafeterias from the standard school lunch menu. The senior citizens will pay the adult price for lunches which is 75 cents this year at each high school.

Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said he will be sending invitations to township senior citizen groups in the Dist. 211 area asking them to participate in the program.

Insurance rates up 30 to 60%

High School Dist. 211 will be paying an extra $87,000 to $127,000 this year for health insurance for its instructional staff.

The increase is due to skyrocketing medical costs, said Dist. 211 business manager James Slater. Rates for Blue Shield insurance will be increased 40 per cent this year and Blue Cross rates will increase from 30 to 60 per cent depending on the amount of claims made by district employees.

Schaumburg High plans OKd

Final working drawings for an addition to Schaumburg High School were approved by the board of education and bids for the project will be accepted in October.

The 100,000 square foot addition will contain a swimming pool, auditorium, classrooms for art, home economics, and vocational education, and will increase the size of the school cafeteria. Cost of the project is estimated at $6 million and was approved last October in a $22 million bond referendum for construction of a new school and additions for three schools.

Short-circuit starts fire in gas pump

An electrical short-circuit touched off a gasoline pump fire Thursday night at the E-Z Go service station, Oakton Street and Higgins Road, Elk Grove Township.

Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village fire units responded to the call about 7:40 p.m., but an employee for a service station across the street had put out the fire with a dry-powder extinguisher. Damage to the pump was minor.

Nature center a 6-year dream

by LINDA PUNCH

The Spring Valley Nature Center has been the dream of Ellsworth A. Meineke, a noted naturalist and conservationist, for more than six years. Meineke joined forces with the Schaumburg Park District several years ago in a campaign to develop 200 acres in the eastern part of Schaumburg as a nature area. The $78,750 state grant brings the group one step closer to restoring the area with plants, trees and shrubs native to the area.

Meineke said the money will be used towards the purchase of two parcels of land — a 10-acre site and a 2.6-acre arboretum.

WORK ON THE land will begin "as soon as we close the deal" on the property, Meineke said.

"We want to add more species of plants to the arboretum area. The other land will be developed with plants native to area and with plants brought in since the 1840s," he said.

MEINEKE SAID "there is a whole lot" of land left to be purchased for the center but said park officials are "working on applying for federal funds."

"It will take several years before we reach our final goal but we'll continue to go for state and federal matching funds until we get what we want," he said.

The park district passed a $700,000 bond issue for land purchase in the Spring Valley area in 1973. Park officials later became bogged down in negotiations with landowners.

The nature center has been designated as the village's Bicentennial project and the village donated about $90,000 in federal revenue sharing funds towards land acquisition. A developer has also given the park district two acres of land on Plum Grove just north of Weathersfield Way.

by KURT BAER

Two Northwest suburbs will receive money to buy open land as part of a $5 million program of state grants announced Friday by Gov. Dan Walker.

The Village of Arlington Heights will receive $409,780 to buy 113 acres of land along McDonald Creek, east of Windsor Drive, for the future development of Lake Arlington.

The Schaumburg Park District will be paid $78,750 to buy 12.6 acres along the west branch of Salt Creek at the Spring Valley Nature Center, Plum Grove Road south of Schaumburg Road.

THE GRANTS are intended to be matched with local funds.

Of the $5 million allocated to 59 separate communities in the state, $2.3 million will be spent in Cook County and $2 million in five suburban counties surrounding Cook.

Other grants in the North suburban area include $500,000 to the Village of Glenview to buy 46 acres of land at the western edge of the village called Kennicott Grove and $200,000 to the Village of Barrington to buy 17.6 acres of land between Bakers Lake and the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Hanover Park will receive $32,500 to buy five acres of land at Mueller Park. Lake County will get a $130,000 grant for an addition to the county's forest preserve system.

WALKER SAID the open land grants were intentionally concentrated in the Chicago metropolitan area "to help balance park land deficits that exist in many communities."

"As desirable land becomes more scarce in the Chicago area and elsewhere in the nation and as acquisition costs skyrocket, Illinois communities have a unique opportunity through this open space program to create new parks and recreation areas at reasonable costs," Walker said at a Chicago press conference.

The $5 million will be used in the purchase of 1,800 acres of land for public recreation throughout the state, 290 in Cook County. Last year, $3.3 million was allocated for 900 acres of property in the state.

Schools budget increases 20.7%

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Operating expenses in High School Dist. 211 will be 20.7 per cent higher this year because of inflation and an increase in enrollment of about 5.5 per cent.

Enrollment this year is projected at about 10,890 students and the district will add about 45 extra teachers to its staff.

The assessed valuation of property in the district is expected to go up $29 million to a total of $667 million. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said the tax rate will go down this year but he has not yet determined the exact amount.

TOTAL OPERATING expenses are estimated at $21.57 million this year compared to $17.87 million last year. Revenue is expected to increase by 2.8 per cent from $20.8 million last year to $21.39 million this year.

Expenses in the education fund, the largest fund in the budget, are up 20.6 per cent from $13.9 million last year to $16.8 million this year.

The fund includes a $1.13 million increase in teachers' salaries based on the board of education's latest salary offer to teachers. It also contains a large increase in hospitalization insurance due to skyrocketing rates in health insurance, said Slater.

Price controls on oil to be removed slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and congressional leaders, showing new signs of energy policy compromise, agreed Friday on a proposal to extend oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them slowly over a period not to exceed 39 months.

As a conciliatory gesture, Ford promised to delay his threatened veto of a six-month price control extension until after the new plan can be presented to House and Senate Democrats late next week.

Ford softened his resistance to compromise during an hour-long meeting with House speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who believe Congress can come up with new energy legislation in 30 days.

BUT THE PRESIDENT rejected Mansfield's plea that he sign the six-month control bill "for the sake of the nation" to ward off a gasoline price hike of at least 3 cents a gallon and other inflationary effects of immediate decontrol.

"We found the President most considerate, most helpful, most conciliatory," Mansfield told reporters.

"He showed flexibility. Frankly, I was encouraged."

The new plan, presented by Mansfield, apparently would require Congress quickly to pass a bill extending present price controls for no more than 60 days. That would give time for the House and Senate to then pass another bill phasing out the controls gradually as the President wanted.

"The President told Mansfield and Albert that he would not veto a short extension of oil price controls if he is reasonably confident Congress will act favorably within a matter of weeks on the phased decontrol plan," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

NESSEN SAID Ford would "act favorably" on the decontrol bill proposed by Mansfield if it were adopted by Congress.

Neither Nessen nor Mansfield would elaborate on details of the plan. Nessen said the 60-day and 39-month periods were the most Ford would accept. But Mansfield, asked about decontrol over 39 months, replied: "You're on the right track, but you've got the (Continued on page 2)

Herald office holiday hours

The Herald offices at 217 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, and 601 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect, will be closed for the Labor Day weekend. The switchboard and lobby at the office at 114 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, will be open until 10 a.m. today and Monday.

PIT STOP in a southern Illinois coal mine gives Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper, a Republican candidate for governor, a chance to clean mud from his shoes.

Mines were closed by a union walkout and 3.5 inches of rain shortly before Cooper arrived for tour of a strip mine in St. Clair County in an early campaign foray.

Dick Cooper
discovers campaign trail can get muddy

by BOB LAHEY

MARISSA, Ill. — Richard H. Cooper had come to deep southern Illinois to dig his hands into the bowels of the earth alongside the large, leathery miners who wrest coal from the land.

Instead, he was getting the V.I.P. tour of River King Pit No. 6 by an entourage of management personnel of Peabody Coal Co.

Having left his Winnetka home before daylight for the two-hour flight to the coal country, he arrived before starting time only to learn the mine workers had walked off the job.

"Hi, I'm Dick Cooper, Republican candidate for governor," he said to Mine Supt. Chet Findley. "I'm here to do a day's work."

"Looks like you're the only one," Findley replied. THIS WAS COOPER'S first stop in a planned series of "workdays" during which he says he will "work his way to the governor's mansion" by meeting the people of Illinois and learning their problems.

During handshaking stops, he tells people, "I'm a worker, not a walker." He also will reply, when the uninitiated ask who he's running against, "I'm running against Dan Walker."

There is, of course, the small matter of winning the Republican nomination over former U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, or perhaps State Comptroller George Lindberg. And then it could turn out that the Democratic candidate is State Treasurer Alan Dixon, or conceivably Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

Earlier, as the small four-passenger Aerocommander threaded its way in dim light between layers of clouds toward the south, Cooper sipped coffee and considered that lineup.

"The governor has already lost," he declares. "But nobody has won it yet, and you can't tell at this point if Walker might win it back again."

Cooper is an intense man with deep blue eyes set in a sun-bronzed face. He has a habit of snapping the fingers of both hands in rapid succession when he talks about his goals. "We can make this thing happen."

Snap, snap, snap, snap. IT IS THE ACQUIRED habit of a man who has worked his way from semi-poverty as a stock boy at Gimbel's to the owner of his own trucking company to the top spot in the aggressive, super-sales pitch organizations, Weight Watchers Inc.

HE IS NEW TO politics. But he is "getting comfortable with campaigning" after the first few weeks on the trail.

While waiting for an airplane a week or so ago, he said he had begun to lose that initial awkward feeling that all political neophytes must overcome.

"I was just sitting in the Peoria airport, with an hour to wait, when I suddenly realized I was wasting time. So I got up and started walking around, shaking hands."

He found, said Cooper, "If you walk up to people with your hand outstretched and a smile on your face, they will talk to you." Unfortunately, he added, half the people he met in the airport were from Iowa.

Cooper acknowledges, as the plane starts its descent toward the tiny Sparta, Ill., airport, that he has not developed strong positions on specific issues.

Saturday

"I've never seen anything wrong in saying, 'I don't know,'" says the 35-year-old entrepreneur who accumulated his first million dollars at the age of 27. "I've made a lot of money in the stock market with that attitude. If I'm interested in a company, I don't just read the Standard & Poor report; I go out and look at the company and find out for myself what it's doing."

THEN COOPER IS ON the ground and is being told that the miners have gone out on a wildcat strike in a dispute over working hours. "I won't cross the picket line," he says. But the Peabody spokesman assures him there are many entrances to the 20,000-acre mining complex and there will be no confrontations with pickets.

Many of the entrances have been closed by standing water — hours before, St. Clair County had been deluged by 3.5 inches of rain in three hours.

After an initial briefing in the mine's operations office, Cooper is driven in a mud-covered four-wheel-drive van over the soupy company roads to the bottom of Pit No. 6, which is under eight feet of water.

He is wearing denim work clothes — a wise choice — and a blue double-breasted jacket with gold buttons which would look more fitting at a North Shore yacht club.

He also is wearing soft-leather loafers with tassels. As the van slips and slides through the much to the bottom of the 100-foot pit, where the mine's chief mechanism is seen slogging knee-deep, one senses Cooper is beginning to realize the loafers are a mistake.

No one is working except two men who are setting pumps on the opposite bank of the flooded pit.

That is the higher side, and a mud-begrimed miner is slithering down a 125-foot face of goop and rain-pollished shale, clinging to a rope.

STANDING THERE with the slime creeping toward the tops of his loafers, Cooper makes one more

Hot lunches OKd for senior citizens

This fall the doors of Dist. 211 high schools will open to residents somewhat older than the teen-age set.

The board of education has given its approval to senior citizens' hot lunch program which is expected to go into effect this semester at Palatine, Conant, Fremd, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates High Schools.

The program, designed by the federal government and Illinois Office of Education, will be sponsored by local township organizations. The township senior citizen groups will issue identification cards for residents who wish to participate in the program and will make arrangements for transportation.

Hot lunches will be served in the school cafeterias from the standard school lunch menu. The senior citizens will pay the adult price for lunches which is 75 cents this year at each high school.

Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said he will be sending invitations to township senior citizen groups in the Dist. 211 area asking them to participate in the program.

Insurance rates up 30 to 60%

High School Dist. 211 will be paying an extra $87,000 to $127,000 this year for health insurance for its instructional staff.

The increase is due to skyrocketing medical costs, said Dist. 211 business manager James Slater. Rates for Blue Shield Insurance will be increased 40 per cent this year and Blue Cross rates will increase from 30 to 60 per cent depending on the amount of claims made by district employees.

Schaumburg High plans OKd

Final working drawings for an addition to Schaumburg High School were approved by the board of education and bids for the project will be accepted in October.

The 100,000 square foot addition will contain a swimming pool, auditorium, classrooms for art, home economics, and vocational education, and will increase the size of the school cafeteria. Cost of the project is estimated at $8 million and was approved last October in a $22 million bond referendum for construction of a new school and additions for three schools.

Schools budget increases 20.7%

et figure, the education fund includes a $206,000 contingency fund for emergency purposes and a $1.5 million reserve which will be used to equip the district's sixth high school when it opens in 1977.

REVENUE is higher this year although the district's tax revenue is down due to a rollback in taxes as provided in the new formula used to figure state aid. A resulting increase in state aid more than makes up for the loss in taxes, Slater said.

Expenses in the building fund are up about 12 per cent this year to a total of $3.7 million. The total does not include a $943,500 contingency fund.

Expenses in the transportation fund are up 66.7 per cent to $1.08 million this year. The money will be used for purchase of 16 new school buses and installation of a new light warning system on the district's buses.

THE INCREASED costs are also due to inflated prices for mechanical parts, supplies and gasoline. Slater said the district had been paying 22 cents per gallon for gasoline in November, 1973, and now is paying about 42 cents a gallon. Expansion of the girl's athletic program and the addition of a late bus route at the district's five high schools has also pushed transportation costs higher.

The site and construction fund, which is separate from the operating budget, shows expenses next year at $6.6 million, most of which is earmarked for additions, pools and auditoriums for three high schools. The additions were approved in a $22 million bond referendum last October.

The budget will be on public display at Dist. 211 offices, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, until Sept. 29, when the board of education will conduct a public hearing before giving the budget final approval.

Teachers, board still 'apart'

Salary talks resumed Friday in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 between teachers and the board of education but teachers say they still are not near settlement.

"After exchanging proposals we're still apart on agreement," said Art Neal, president of the Schaumburg Education Assn. Another session is planned in the next 10 days but the exact date has not been set, he said.

Neal said talks have been "formal" and have not come close to a critical stage. Both sides have agreed to a news blackout on specific salary figures. Friday was the first meeting between the two groups since early June.

Teachers have complained negotiations between the board and teachers' group have been delayed by board members.

The current three-year contract, which expires next summer, states the salary agreement must be reopened at the end of the second year if the cost of living increases more than 4.5 per cent. Neal said last year the cost of living came close to a 10 per cent increase.

Teachers will begin classes Tuesday at the current base salary of $9,040.

Appointment OKd

Village Pres. Raymond Kessell's appointment of Lynn Peterson to the Schaumburg Bicentennial committee was ratified this week by the village board.

Mrs. Peterson is a member of several community organizations including Schaumburg Jayceettes.

Paddock trophy to water fight winner

Paddock Publications first annual Septemberfest traveling trophy will go to the winner of Schaumburg Fire Dept.'s intrasquad water fight.

As part of the Labor Day festivities, the water fight will be at 5:30 p.m. Monday at the Septemberfest fair grounds, the site of the village's new $1.5 million police and courts building. Six engine companies, two of which are volunteer units, will compete.

Two arrested in bust of race track gambling

by KURT DAER

Simultaneous police raids in Arlington Heights and Chicago Friday closed the offices of the controversial Pegasus race track betting courier service.

Pegasus offices at 1612 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and 343 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, were raided shortly after 1:30 p.m. Friday. Police confiscated two teletype machines and print-out pages with wagering information on races being run at Arlington Park Race Track.

No cash was taken from either office, police said.

CHARGED WITH violating a state statute that prohibits the transmission and receipt of betting information were Louise Kaplan, 41, of Northbrook, identified by police as the office manager in Arlington Heights; and William Rose, general manager of the Chicago office.

Rose was released on $1,000 bond, and Ms. Kaplan was released on her own recognizance. Both individuals are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court Sept. 19.

Pegasus' Chicago office was raided several times earlier this summer by Chicago police who claimed that the business' practice of accepting money for bets at Chicago-area race tracks violated the city's antigambling ordinances.

Pegasus charges its customers 10 cents for every dollar bet in their name.

PEGASUS REOPENED this week after a Circuit Court judge ruled that the betting operation was not a clear-cut violation of Chicago gambling ordinances.

Friday's raids were based upon an Illinois statute that prohibits the transmission of betting information by "telephone, telegraph, radio, semaphore or similar means," and the installation of equipment for the transmission or receipt of betting information.

Police contend Pegasus' Arlington Heights and Chicago offices were connected by the teletype machines that were used to send betting information.

Warrants for the raids were issued by Associate Judge Anthony J. Scitilo.

Arlington Heights police said they became aware of Pegasus' Northwest Highway office Wednesday, and had the building under surveillance before the raid.

Two oppose race track annexation

Two Plum Grove-Countryside Park Board members said they oppose the Arlington Heights Park District's efforts to annex the Arlington Park Race Track.

Board members Pamela Dahl and Beverly Hansen said they will support the Salt Creek Park District's claim to the race track property. The Plum Grove-Countryside Park Board has not made a formal statement on the issue.

The Countryside district is a small, protective taxing district in Rolling Meadows near the Salt Creek district.

Mrs. Dahl said she believes "Salt Creek really offers people in the Arlington Park Race Track area more than the Arlington Park District will."

"I think the Arlington Heights Park District is doing this for the money from the stadium. Salt Creek already goes out to the race track people and brings activities to the children there," she said.

THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Park Board renewed efforts to annex the race track after plans for the proposed Chicago Bears stadium were announced. The park board asked Arlington Heights officials to push for disconnection of the race track from the Salt Creek Park District as part of any agreement the village makes on the stadium.

The Arlington Heights Park Board last week asked support from the Palatine and Rolling Meadows park districts in its attempt to annex the race track property.

Salt Creek Park District officials have filed written protests to the threatened loss of its main source of revenue — about $40,000 a year.

The Palatine Park Board earlier this week said it would not support the Arlington Park District's efforts to annex Arlington Park Race Track. Rolling Meadows park officials have made no statement on the issue.

Short-circuit starts fire in gas pump

An electrical short-circuit touched off a gasoline pump fire Thursday night at the E-Z Go service station, Oakton Street and Higgins Road, Elk Grove Township.

Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village fire units responded to the call about 7:40 p.m., but an employee for a service station across the street had put out the fire with a dry-powder extinguisher. Damage to the pump was minor.

MARISSA, Ill. — Richard H. Cooper had come to deep southern Illinois to dig his hands into the bowels of the earth alongside the large, leathery miners who wrest coal from the land.

Instead, he was getting the V.I.P. tour of River King Pit No. 6 by an entourage of management personnel of Peabody Coal Co.

Having left his Winnetka home before daylight for the two-hour flight to the coal country, he arrived before starting time only to learn the mine workers had walked off the job.

"Hi, I'm Dick Cooper. Republican candidate for governor," he said to Mine Supt. Chet Findley. "I'm here to do a day's work."

"Looks like you're the only one," Findley replied. THIS WAS COOPER'S first stop in a planned series of "workdays" during which he says he will "work his way to the governor's mansion" by meeting the people of Illinois and learning their problems.

During handshaking stops, he tells people, "I'm a worker, not a walker." He also will reply, when the uninitiated ask who he's running against, "I'm running against Dan Walker."

There is, of course, the small matter of winning the Republican nomination over former U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, or perhaps State Comptroller George Lindberg. And then it could turn out that the Democratic candidate is State Treasurer Alan Dixon, or conceivably Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

Earlier, as the small four-passenger Aerocommander threaded its way in dim light between layers of clouds toward the south, Cooper sipped coffee and considered that lineup.

"The governor has already lost," he declares. "But nobody has won it yet, and you can't tell at this point if Walker might win it back again."

Cooper is an intense man with deep blue eyes set in a sun-bronzed face. He has a habit of snapping the fingers of both hands in rapid succession when he talks about his goals. "We can make this thing happen."

Snap, snap, snap, snap. IT IS THE ACQUIRED habit of a man who has worked his way from semi-poverty as a stock boy at Gimbel's to the owner of his own trucking company to the top spot in the aggressive, super-sales pitch organizations, Weight Watchers Inc.

HE IS NEW TO politics. But he is "getting comfortable with campaigning" after the first few weeks on the trail.

While waiting for an airplane a week or so ago, he said he had begun to lose that initial awkward feeling that all political neophytes must overcome.

"I was just sitting in the Peoria airport, with an hour to wait, when I suddenly realized I was wasting time. So I got up and started walking around, shaking hands."

He found, said Cooper, "If you walk up to people with your hand outstretched and a smile on your face, they will talk to you." Unfortunately, he added, half the people he met in the airport were from Iowa.

Cooper acknowledges, as the plane starts its descent toward the tiny Sparta, Ill., airport, that he has not developed strong positions on specific issues.

Saturday

"I've never seen anything wrong in saying, 'I don't know,'" says the 33-year-old entrepreneur who accumulated his first million dollars at the age of 27. "I've made a lot of money in the stock market with that attitude. If I'm interested in a company, I don't just read the Standard & Poor report; I go out and look at the company and find out for myself what it's doing."

THEN COOPER IS ON the ground and is being told that the miners have gone out on a wildcat strike in a dispute over working hours. "I won't cross the picket line," he says. But the Peabody spokesman assures him there are many entrances to the 20,000-acre mining complex and there will be no confrontations with pickets.

Many of the entrances have been closed by standing water — hours before, St. Clair County had been deluged by 3.5 inches of rain in three hours.

After an initial briefing in the mine's operations office, Cooper is driven in a mud-covered four-wheel-drive van over the soupy company roads to the bottom of Pit No. 6, which is under eight feet of water.

He is wearing denim work clothes — a wise choice — and a blue double-breasted jacket with gold buttons which would look more fitting at a North Shore yacht club.

He also is wearing soft-leather loafers with tassels. As the van slips and slides through the mud to the bottom of the 100-foot pit, where the mine's chief mechanist is seen slogging knee-deep, one senses Cooper is beginning to realize the loafers are a mistake.

No one is working except two men who are setting pumps on the opposite bank of the flooded pit.

That is the higher side, and a mud-begrimed miner is slithering down a 125-foot face of goop and rain-polished shale, clinging to a rope.

Price controls on oil to be removed slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and congressional leaders, showing new signs of energy policy compromise, agreed Friday on a proposal to extend oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them slowly over a period not to exceed 39 months.

As a conciliatory gesture, Ford promised to delay his threatened veto of a six-month price control extension until after the new plan can be presented to House and Senate Democrats late next week.

Ford softened his resistance to compromise during an hour-long meeting with House speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who believe Congress can come up with new energy legislation in 30 days.

BUT THE PRESIDENT rejected Mansfield's plea that he sign the six-month control bill "for the sake of the nation" to ward off a gasoline price hike of at least 3 cents a gallon and other inflationary effects of immediate decontrol.

"We found the President most considerate, most helpful, most conciliatory," Mansfield told reporters.

"He showed flexibility. Frankly, I was encouraged."

The new plan, presented by Mansfield, apparently would require Congress quickly to pass a bill extending present price controls for no more than 60 days. That would give time for the House and Senate to then pass another bill phasing out the controls gradually as the President wanted.

"The President told Mansfield and Albert that he would not veto a short extension of oil price controls if he is reasonably confident Congress will act favorably within a matter of weeks on the phased decontrol plan," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

NESSEN SAID Ford would "act favorably" on the decontrol bill proposed by Mansfield if it were adopted by Congress.

Neither Nessen nor Mansfield would elaborate on details of the plan. Nessen said the 60-day and 39-month periods were the most Ford would accept. But Mansfield, asked about decontrol over 39 months, replied: "You're on the right track, but you've got the (Continued on page 2)

Hot lunches OKd for senior citizens

This fall the doors of Dist. 211 high schools will open to residents somewhat older than the teen-age set.

The board of education has given its approval to senior citizens' hot lunch program which is expected to go into effect this semester at Palatine, Conant, Fremd, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates High Schools.

The program, designed by the federal government and Illinois Office of Education, will be sponsored by local township organizations. The township senior citizen groups will issue identification cards for residents who wish to participate in the program and will make arrangements for transportation.

Hot lunches will be served in the school cafeterias from the standard school lunch menu. The senior citizens will pay the adult price for lunches which is 75 cents this year at each high school.

Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said he will be sending invitations to township senior citizen groups in the Dist. 211 area asking them to participate in the program.

Insurance rates up 30 to 60%

High School Dist. 211 will be paying an extra $87,000 to $127,000 this year for health insurance for its instructional staff.

The increase is due to skyrocketing medical costs, said Dist. 211 business manager James Slater. Rates for Blue Shield insurance will be increased 40 per cent this year and Blue Cross rates will increase from 30 to 60 per cent depending on the amount of claims made by district employees.

Schaumburg High plans OKd

Final working drawings for an addition to Schaumburg High School were approved by the board of education and bids for the project will be accepted in October.

The 100,000 square foot addition will contain a swimming pool, auditorium, classrooms for art, home economics, and vocational education, and will increase the size of the school cafeteria. Cost of the project is estimated at $6 million and was approved last October in a $22 million bond referendum for construction of a new school and additions for three schools.

Schools budget increases 20.7%

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Operating expenses in High School Dist. 211 will be 20.7 per cent higher this year because of inflation and an increase in enrollment of about 5.5 per cent.

Enrollment this year is projected at about 10,690 students and the district will add about 45 extra teachers to its staff.

The assessed valuation of property in the district is expected to go up $28 million to a total of $667 million. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said the tax rate will go down this year but he has not yet determined the exact amount.

TOTAL OPERATING expenses are estimated at $21.57 million this year compared to $17.87 million last year. Revenue is expected to increase by 2.8 per cent from $20.8 million last year to $21.39 million this year.

Expenses in the education fund, the largest fund in the budget, are up 20.6 per cent from $13.9 million last year to $16.8 million this year.

The fund includes a $1.13 million increase in teachers' salaries based on the board of education's latest salary offer to teachers. It also contains a large increase in hospitalization insurance due to skyrocketing rates in health insurance, said Slater.

Although not part of the total budget figure, the education fund includes a $206,900 contingency fund for emergency purposes and a $1.5 million reserve which will be used to equip the district's sixth high school when it opens in 1977.

REVENUE is higher this year although the district's tax revenue is down due to a rollback in taxes as provided in the new formula used to figure state aid. A resulting increase in state aid more than makes up for the loss in taxes, Slater said.

Expenses in the building fund are up about 12 per cent this year to a total of $3.7 million. The total does not include a $943,500 contingency fund.

Expenses in the transportation fund are up 66.7 per cent to $1.08 million this year. The money will be used for purchase of 16 new school buses and installation of a new light warning system on the district's buses.

THE INCREASED costs are also due to inflated prices for mechanical parts, supplies and gasoline. Slater said the district had been paying 22 cents per gallon for gasoline in November, 1973, and now is paying about 42 cents a gallon. Expansion of the girl's athletic program and the addition of a late bus route at the district's five high schools has also pushed transportation costs higher.

The site and construction fund, which is separate from the operating budget, shows expenses next year at $6.8 million, most of which is earmarked for additions, pools and auditoriums for three high schools. The additions were approved in a $22 million bond referendum last October.

The budget will be on public display at Dist. 211 offices, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, until Sept. 29, when the board of education will conduct a public hearing before giving the budget final approval.

Wednesday night men's basketball set

The Plum Grove-Countryside Park District will sponsor Wednesday night men's basketball at Plum Grove School, Plum Grove and Meacham roads, beginning Sept. 10.

Games will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Showers will be provided, but participants must bring their own towels. The fee is $1.50 per person.

Registration forms will be mailed to park district residents. Further information can be obtained by calling Pam Dahl at 991-0627.

5 guns, other gear stolen from home

Several guns, two television sets, a stereo system and assorted jewels valued at $4,265 were stolen during the burglary of a Buffalo Grove residence, said police Friday.

Raymond Yurgil, 28, of 1308 Bristol Ln., told police he returned home early Thursday and discovered the break-in.

The stolen guns included three handguns, a rifle and two shotguns.

The burglars apparently pried open a garage door leading to the townhouse, said police.

Two arrested in gambling bust

by KURT BAER

Simultaneous police raids in Arlington Heights and Chicago Friday closed the offices of the controversial Pegasus race track betting courier service.

Pegasus offices at 1812 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and 343 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, were raided shortly after 1:30 p.m. Friday. Police confiscated two teletype machines and print-out pages with wagering information on races being run at Arlington Park Race Track.

No cash was taken from either office, police said.

CHARGED WITH violating a state statute that prohibits the transmission and receipt of betting information were Louise Kaplan, 41, of Northbrook, identified by police as the office manager in Arlington Heights; and William Rose, general manager of the Chicago office.

Rose was released on $1,000 bond, and Ms. Kaplan was released on her own recognizance. Both individuals are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court Sept. 10.

Pegasus' Chicago office was raided several times earlier this summer by

Chicago police who claimed that the business' practice of accepting money for bets at Chicago-area race tracks violated the city's antigambling ordinances.

Pegasus charges its customers 10 cents for every dollar bet in their name.

PEGASUS REOPENED this week after a Circuit Court judge ruled that the betting operation was not a clear-cut violation of Chicago gambling ordinances.

Friday's raids were based upon an Illinois statute that prohibits the transmission of betting information by "telephone, telegraph, radio, sonophone or similar means," and the installation of equipment for the transmission or receipt of betting information.

Police contend Pegasus' Arlington Heights and Chicago offices were connected by the teletype machines that were used to send betting information.

Warrants for the raids were issued by Associate Judge Anthony J. Scollino.

Arlington Heights police said they became aware of Pegasus' Northwest Highway office Wednesday, and had the building under surveillance before the raid.

This fall the doors of Dist. 211 high schools will open to residents somewhat older than the teen-age set.

The board of education has given its approval to senior citizens' hot lunch program which is expected to go into effect this semester at Palatine, Conant, Fremd, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates High Schools.

The program, designed by the federal government and Illinois Office of Education, will be sponsored by local township organizations. The township senior citizen groups will issue identification cards for residents who wish to participate in the program and will make arrangements for transportation.

Hot lunches will be served in the school cafeterias from the standard school lunch menu. The senior citizens will pay the adult price for lunches which is 75 cents this year at each high school.

Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said he will be sending invitations to township senior citizen groups in the Dist. 211 area asking them to participate in the program.

Insurance rates up 30 to 60%

High School Dist. 211 will be paying an extra $87,000 to $127,000 this year for health insurance for its instructional staff.

The increase is due to skyrocketing medical costs, said Dist. 211 business manager James Slater. Rates for Blue Shield insurance will be increased 40 per cent this year and Blue Cross rates will increase from 30 to 60 per cent depending on the amount of claims made by district employees.

Schaumburg High plans OKd

Final working drawings for an addition to Schaumburg High School were approved by the board of education and bids for the project will be accepted in October.

The 100,000 square foot addition will contain a swimming pool, auditorium, classrooms for art, home economics, and vocational education, and will increase the size of the school cafeteria. Cost of the project is estimated at $8 million and was approved last October in a $22 million bond referendum for construction of a new school and additions for three schools.

State open-land grants awarded

by KURT BAER

Two Northwest suburbs will receive money to buy open land as part of a $3 million program of state grants announced Friday by Gov. Dan Walker.

The Village of Arlington Heights will receive $499,790 to buy 113 acres of land along McDonald Creek, east of Windsor Drive, for the future development of Lake Arlington.

The Schaumburg Park District will be paid $78,750 to buy 12.6 acres along the west branch of Salt Creek at the Spring Valley Nature Center, Plum Grove Road south of Schaumburg Road.

THE GRANTS are intended to be matched with local funds.

Of the $3 million allocated to 58 separate communities in the state, $2.3 million will be spent in Cook County and $2 million in five suburban counties surrounding Cook.

Other grants in the North suburban area include $500,000 to the Village of Glenview to buy 46 acres of land at the western edge of the village called Kennicott Grove and $200,000 to the Village of Barrington to buy 17.6 acres of land between Bakers Lake and the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Hanover Park will receive $32,500 to buy five acres of land at Mueller Park. Lake County will get a $130,000 grant for an addition to the county's forest preserve system.

WALKER SAID the open land grants were intentionally concentrated in the Chicago metropolitan area to help balance park land deficits that exist in many communities.

"As desirable land becomes more scarce in the Chicago area and elsewhere in the nation and as acquisition costs skyrocket, Illinois communities have a unique opportunity through this open space program to create new parks and recreation areas at reasonable costs," Walker said at a Chicago press conference.

The $5 million will be used in the purchase of 1,800 acres of land for public recreation throughout the state, 290 in Cook County. Last year, $3.3 million was allocated for 900 acres of property in the state.

Community applications for the funds in this area were processed through the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission which rated each application's eligibility for the program.

An application from the Arlington Heights Park District for a 1.3-acre addition to Greens Park, Olive and Douglas streets, apparently was not approved. The park district asked for $15,000 to buy the additional land.

Cooperation urged in seniors' bus plan

The Palatine village streets and traffic committee will recommend to the Palatine Township Board of Auditors that it work with other townships to provide transportation for senior citizens.

The committee has been studying ways to provide more public transportation for the elderly. Most area townships, including Palatine, already are operating minibuses for senior citizens on weekdays for a small charge.

100 bottle caps, $15 taken by burglars

Burglars stole $15 in cash and about 100 redeemable bottle caps from the home of Vernon Gurney, 182 E. Highland Ave., Wheeling police said Friday.

Gurney told police the burglary probably occurred within the last four days while he was on vacation.

5 guns, other gear stolen from home

Several guns, two television sets, a stereo system and assorted jewels valued at $4,265 were stolen during the burglary of a Buffalo Grove residence, said police Friday.

Raymond Yurgil, 28, of 1309 Bristol Ln., told police he returned home early Thursday and discovered the break-in.

The stolen guns included three handguns, a rifle and two shotguns.

The burglars apparently pried open a garage door leading to the townhouse, said police.

Water tables drop, village loses use of second well

Mount Prospect lost water production from a second well Friday when the well was unable to function because of rapidly falling water tables.

David L. Creamer, director of public works, said there is no danger to residents since neither well is a major water producer and the reservoir system is sufficient to supply water during peak-use periods.

"Right now we are in pretty good shape daily," Creamer said. "The people themselves are not aware that the table is dropping because of the reservoir capacity we have."

CREAMER SAID he is concerned about continually dropping water tables "If this dry spell doesn't let up." He said the drops this summer have been drastic, with one well down 100 feet from last year.

"No one is hurting at this point," Creamer said. "But if we had a major well or two go out we might have to make other arrangements."

Creamer said he is scheduling a meeting with representatives from Arlington Heights and Citizens Utilities Co. Both the other village and the company are experiencing drops in their wells' water tables.

"It's a meeting just to discuss our mutual problems," Creamer said, noting that no date has been set yet. He said, however, he has been in touch with the other two as the tables continue to drop.

THE WELL LOST Friday had been pumping about 360 gallons a minute, but dropped to about 130 gallons as the well began to break suction. Creamer said the well will not have to be throttled back so that the pumping device stays below water level.

"We are going to have to watch it extremely closely on those two wells," Creamer said, noting that repairs cannot be made until the demand for water slackens.

Creamer said that as the water table drops the wells will have to be lowered. He said, however, that the wells require more power to pump the water as the levels drop. He has asked the village to begin drilling a new well on the Old Orchard Country Club site, but the board hasn't taken any action to date.

The Well offers religious education

The Well, an institute for Christian ministries sponsored by four Northwest suburban Catholic parishes in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect, has opened to provide religious education for parish members.

The institute will offer two sessions of programs this fall dealing with topics of religious concern.

Karen Martin, representative for the institute, said the institute is self supporting. A program to offer credits through DePaul University is being negotiated, Ms. Martin said.

Registration for the sessions, held at St. Raymond, St. James, St. Edna's and Our Lady of the Wayside churches closes Sept. 25. Further information may be obtained by calling 235-4469 or 398-5011.

Price controls on oil to be removed slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and congressional leaders, showing new signs of energy policy compromise, agreed Friday on a proposal to extend oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them slowly over a period not to exceed 39 months.

As a conciliatory gesture, Ford promised to delay his threatened veto of a six-month price control extension until after the new plan can be presented to House and Senate Democrats late next week.

Ford softened his resistance to compromise during an hour-long meeting with House speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who believe Congress can come up with new energy legislation in 30 days.

BUT THE PRESIDENT rejected Mansfield's plea that he sign the six-month control bill "for the sake of the nation" to ward off a gasoline price hike of at least 3 cents a gallon and other inflationary effects of immediate decontrol.

"We found the President most considerate, most helpful, most conciliatory," Mansfield told reporters.

"He showed flexibility. Frankly, I was encouraged."

The new plan, presented by Mansfield, apparently would require Congress quickly to pass a bill extending present price controls for no more than 60 days. That would give time for the House and Senate to then pass another bill phasing out the controls gradually as the President wanted.

"The President told Mansfield and Albert that he would not veto a short extension of oil price controls if he is reasonably confident Congress will act favorably within a matter of weeks on the phased decontrol plan," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

NESSEN SAID Ford would "act favorably" on the decontrol bill proposed by Mansfield if it were adopted by Congress.

Neither Nessen nor Mansfield would elaborate on details of the plan. Nessen said the 60-day and 39-month periods were the most Ford would accept. But Mansfield, asked about decontrol over 39 months, replied: "You're on the right track, but you've got the (Continued on page 2)

Dick Cooper
discovers campaign trail can get muddy

PIT STOP in a southern Illinois coal mine gives Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper, a Republican candidate for governor, a chance to clean mud from his shoes.

Mines were closed by a union walkout and 3.5 inches of rain shortly before Cooper arrived for tour of a strip mine in St. Clair County in an early campaign foray.

by BOB LAHEY

MARISSA, Ill. — Richard H. Cooper had come to deep southern Illinois to dig his hands into the bowels of the earth alongside the large, leathery miners who wrest coal from the land.

Instead, he was getting the V.I.P. tour of River King Pit No. 6 by an entourage of management personnel of Peabody Coal Co.

Having left his Winnetka home before daylight for the two-hour flight to the coal country, he arrived before starting time only to learn the mine workers had walked off the job.

"Hi, I'm Dick Cooper, Republican candidate for governor," he said to Mine Supt. Chet Findley. "I'm here to do a day's work."

"Looks like you're the only one," Findley replied. THIS WAS COOPER'S first stop in a planned series of "workdays" during which he says he will "work his way to the governor's mansion" by meeting the people of Illinois and learning their problems.

During handshaking stops, he tells people, "I'm a worker, not a walker." He also will reply, when the uninitiated ask who he's running against, "I'm running against Dan Walker."

There is, of course, the small matter of winning the Republican nomination over former U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, or perhaps State Comptroller George Lindberg. And then it could turn out that the Democratic candidate is State Treasurer Alan Dixon, or conceivably Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

Earlier, as the small four-passenger Aerocommander threaded its way in dim light between layers of clouds toward the south, Cooper slipped coffee and considered that lineup.

"The governor has already lost," he declares. "But nobody has won it yet, and you can't tell at this point if Walker might win it back again."

Cooper is an intense man with deep blue eyes set in a sun-bronzed face. He has a habit of snapping the fingers of both hands in rapid succession when he talks about his goals. "We can make this thing happen."

Snap, snap, snap, snap. IT IS THE ACQUIRED habit of a man who has worked his way from semi-poverty, as a stock boy at Gimbel's to the owner of his own trucking company to the spot in the aggressive, super-sales pitch organizations, Weight Watchers Inc.

HE IS NEW TO politics. But he is "getting comfortable with campaigning" after the first few weeks on the trail.

While waiting for an airplane a week or so ago, he said he had begun to lose that initial awkward feeling that all political neophytes must overcome.

"I was just sitting in the Peoria airport, with an hour to wait, when I suddenly realized I was wasting time. So I got up and started walking around, shaking hands."

He found, said Cooper, "If you walk up to people with your hand outstretched and a smile on your face, they will talk to you." Unfortunately, he added, half the people he met in the airport were from Iowa.

Cooper acknowledges, as the plane starts its descent toward the tiny Sparta, Ill., airport, that he has not developed strong positions on specific issues.

Saturday

"I've never seen anything wrong in saying, 'I don't know,'" says the 35-year-old entrepreneur who accumulated his first million dollars at the age of 27. "I've made a lot of money in the stock market with that attitude. If I'm interested in a company, I don't just read the Standard & Poor report; I go out and look at the company and find out for myself what it's doing."

THEN COOPER IS ON the ground and is being told that the miners have gone out on a wildcat strike in a dispute over working hours. "I won't cross the picket line," he says. But the Peabody spokesman assures him there are many entrances to the 20,000-acre mining complex and there will be no confrontations with pickets.

Many of the entrances have been closed by standing water — hours before, St. Clair County had been deluged by 3.5 inches of rain in three hours.

After an initial briefing in the mine's operations office, Cooper is driven in a mud-covered four-wheel-drive van over the soupy company roads to the bottom of Pit No. 6, which is under eight feet of water.

He is wearing denim work clothes — a wise choice — and a blue double-breasted jacket with gold buttons which would look more fitting at a North Shore yacht club.

He also is wearing soft-leather loafers with tassels. As the van slips and slides through the mud to the bottom of the 100-foot pit, where the mine's chief mechanic is seen slogging knee-deep, one senses Cooper is beginning to realize the loafers are a mistake.

No one is working except two men who are setting pumps on the opposite bank of the flooded pit.

That is the higher side, and a mud-begrimed miner is slithering down a 125-foot face of goop and rain-polished shale, clinging to a rope.

STANDING THERE with the slime creeping toward the tops of his loafers, Cooper makes one more

Lake Arlington— sports paradise

Lake Arlington will be a 113-acre recreational complex that will include a small boat marina, outdoor theater, ball fields, tennis courts, bicycle paths, horseshoe pits and fishing piers.

Purchase price of the land is estimated at around $1 million. The announcement Friday that the Village of Arlington Heights will receive nearly $500,000 in state funds for the project is apt to heat up the village's land acquisition effort.

"It's very good news for the village and we will attempt to push it (the project) along as rapidly as possible," said Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding that has been planning Lake Arlington.

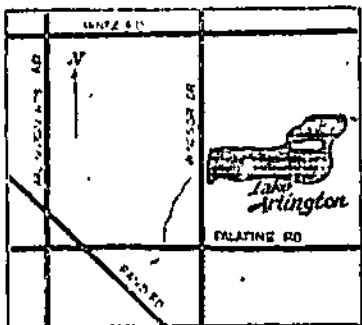

INITIALLY, village officials will attempt to negotiate the sale of the undeveloped land from the property owners. If a sale price cannot be agreed on, the Arlington Heights Village Board will condemn the property which could signal a lengthy court fight before the land is publicly owned.

Once the property is acquired, Arlington Heights will be faced with the problem of raising an estimated $5 million to construct the lake.

The recreational plan will cost an additional $190,000.

It will take several years to design, finance and construct Lake Arlington.

AN AGREEMENT between the Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights park districts insures equal access to the lake for Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights residents. The lake property will remain part of Prospect Heights Park District, according to the agreement, though the recreational complex will be managed by the Arlington Heights Park District.

Palmatier said that state guidelines will have to be followed in the land purchase, including state-directed appraisals of the property and monitoring of land sale negotiations.

Because much of the Lake Arlington land lies in the McDonald Creek flood plain and is not considered "buildable," the property has a lower purchase price than it would otherwise, Palmatier said. "I think the state grant may go a long way toward acquiring these parcels."

A part of the Lake Arlington site lies in with the planned development of a second campus for Harper College at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

Meeting may avert teachers strike

by BOB GALLAS

Negotiators for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers and the board of education will meet this weekend in an attempt to avert a possible teacher strike when school opens Tuesday.

Negotiators set another meeting after talks broke off Wednesday with no settlement in salary talks near, according to both sides.

A meeting of all district teachers has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster, Mount Prospect. If talks are unsuccessful, teachers are expected to vote on whether they will strike.

"The situation is extremely grave, but we are working as hard as we can to get things worked out over the weekend," said Clay Marquard, Illinois Education Assn. representative for the Dist. 59 teachers' union.

MARQUARD TOLD teachers the main problems in negotiations centered around money and a clause that would give teachers a say in how their work force will be reduced should that become necessary due to declining enrollments.

Marquard told teachers he would make a recommendation to them at the meeting Tuesday, but did not give any specifics about what the recommendation would be.

"We will make a decision Monday on what will happen Tuesday," said Alma Parrish, president of the teachers' union. Mrs. Parrish said a decision "will be made Monday whether or not we return to school Tuesday" if negotiations this weekend are successful.

Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell said Friday that if teachers do vote to strike Monday night, a decision on whether schools will remain open won't be made until Tuesday morning.

"It's not practical to think we can open 21 schools, if there is a strike," said Bardwell. "We have to know how many teachers will show up for work," he said.

BARDWELL SAID news would be relayed to parents Tuesday morning through local radio stations.

Mrs. Parrish said she was "optimistic" that a settlement would be reached over the long, holiday weekend.

The board's last pay offer to the teachers, which was rejected, called for a 2 per cent cost-of-living pay increase in addition to the teachers' regular 4 per cent increase for another year of experience.

School talks go on despite impasse

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 school board members have decided to continue negotiating with teachers despite an impasse declared by board negotiators earlier this week.

Board members met in executive session Thursday night to discuss their next step but no details were released Friday. Teachers had voted Wednesday to send their negotiators back to the table rather than strike.

Because an impasse exists, the next step is for both sides to hire a mediator to settle the situation. Board negotiators and union officials plan to meet Wednesday to decide their plans.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said board members discussed the state of negotiations at length, but he declined to elaborate on their comments.

Trinity preschool to open Sept. 8

Trinity Nursery School, 605 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect, will begin its sixth year of two- and three-day programs for 3- and 4-year-olds Sept. 8.

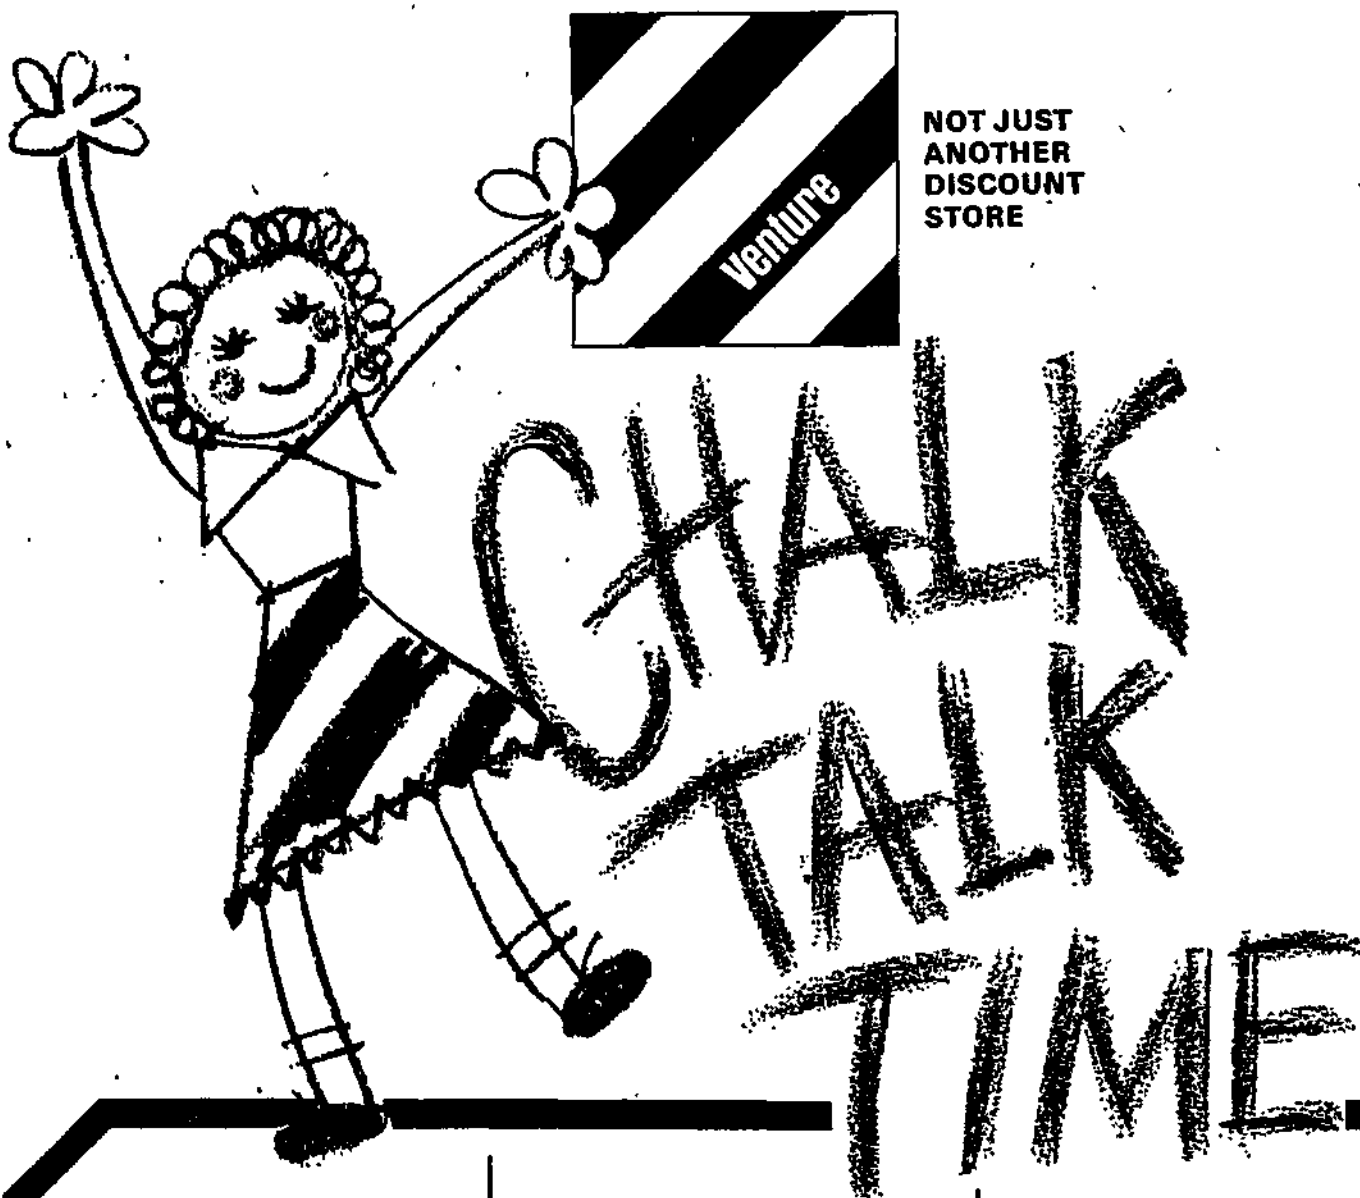

The school is a state-licensed, non-sectarian institution. Activities for children include arts and crafts, dramatic play, music, language development and physical coordination.

For information and registration, call Marilyn Allen, school director, at 439-0950.

Burglars stole $15 in cash and about 100 redeemable bottle caps from the home of Vernon Gurney, 182 E. Highland Ave., Wheeling police said Friday.

Gurney told police the burglary probably occurred within the last four days while he was on vacation.

Village, Schaumburg get piece of open-land pie

by KURT BAER

Two Northwest suburbs will receive money to buy open land as part of a $5 million program of state grants announced Friday by Gov. Dan Walker.

The Village of Arlington Heights will receive $499,700 to buy 113 acres of land along McDonald Creek, east of Windsor Drive, for the future development of Lake Arlington.

The Schaumburg Park District will be paid $78,750 to buy 12.8 acres along the west branch of Salt Creek at the Spring Valley Nature Center, Plum Grove Road south of Schaumburg Road.

THE GRANTS are intended to be matched with local funds.

Of the $5 million allocated to 53 separate communities in the state, $2.3 million will be spent in Cook County and $2 million in five suburban counties surrounding Cook.

Other grants in the North suburban area include $500,000 to the Village of Glenview to buy 46 acres of land at the western edge of the village called Kennicott Grove and $200,000 to the Village of Barrington to buy 17.6 acres of land between Bakers Lake and the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Ilwaco Park will receive $32,500 to buy five acres of land at Mueller Park. Lake County will get a $130,000 grant for an addition to the county's forest preserve system.

WALKER SAID the open land grants were intentionally concentrated in the Chicago metropolitan area to help balance park land deficits that exist in many communities.

"As desirable land becomes more scarce in the Chicago area and elsewhere in the nation and as acquisition costs skyrocket, Illinois communities have a unique opportunity through this open space program to create new parks and recreation areas at reasonable costs," Walker said at a Chicago press conference.

The $5 million will be used in the purchase of 1,800 acres of land for public recreation throughout the state, 200 in Cook County. Last year, $3.3 million was allocated for 900 acres of property in the state.

Complex to be sportsman's dream

Lake Arlington will be a 113-acre recreational complex that will include a small boat marina, outdoor theater, ball fields, tennis courts, bicycle paths, horseshoe pits and fishing piers.

Purchase price of the land is estimated at around $1 million. The announcement Friday that the Village of Arlington Heights will receive nearly $500,000 in state funds for the project is apt to heat up the village's land acquisition effort.

"It's very good news for the village and we will attempt to push it (the project) along as rapidly as possible," said Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding that has been planning Lake Arlington.

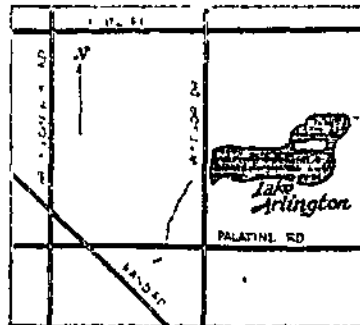

INITIALLY, village officials will attempt to negotiate the sale of the undeveloped land from the property owners. If a sale price cannot be agreed on, the Arlington Heights Village Board will condemn the property which could signal a lengthy court fight before the land is publicly owned.

Once the property is acquired, Arlington Heights will be faced with the problem of raising an estimated $5 million to construct the lake.

The recreational plan will cost an additional $100,000.

It will take several years to design, finance and construct Lake Arlington.

AN AGREEMENT between the Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights park districts insures equal access to the lake for Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights residents. The lake property will remain part of Prospect Heights Park District, according to the agreement, though the recreational complex will be managed by the Arlington Heights Park District.

Palmatier said that state guidelines will have to be followed in the land purchase, including state-directed appraisals of the property and monitoring of land sale negotiations.

Because much of the Lake Arlington land lies in the McDonald Creek flood plain and is not considered "buildable," the property has a lower purchase price than it would otherwise, Palmatier said. "I think the state grant may go a long way toward acquiring these parcels."

A part of the Lake Arlington site lies in with the planned development of a second campus for Harper College at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

An application from the Arlington Heights Park District for a 1.3-acre addition to Greens Park, Olive and Douglas streets, apparently was not approved. The park district asked for $15,000 to buy the additional land.

Community applications for the funds in this area were processed through the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission which rated each application's eligibility for the program.

"He showed flexibility. Frankly, I was encouraged."

The new plan, presented by Mansfield, apparently would require Congress quickly to pass a bill extending present price controls for no more than 60 days. That would give time for the House and Senate to then pass another bill phasing out the controls gradually as the President wanted.

"The President told Mansfield and Albert that he would not veto a short extension of oil price controls if he is reasonably confident Congress will act favorably within a matter of weeks on the phased decontrol plan," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

NESSEN SAID Ford would "act favorably" on the decontrol bill proposed by Mansfield if it were adopted by Congress.

Neither Nessen nor Mansfield would elaborate on details of the plan. Nessen said the 60-day and 39-month periods were the most Ford would accept. But Mansfield, asked about decontrol over 39 months, replied: "You're on the right track, but you've got the

Herald office holiday hours

The Herald offices at 217 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, and 601 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect, will be closed for the Labor Day weekend. The switchboard and lobby at the office at 114 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, will be open until 10 a.m. today and Monday.

PIT STOP in a southern Illinois coal mine gives Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper, a Republican candidate for governor, a chance to clean mud from his shoes.

Mines were closed by a union walkout and 3.5 inches of rain shortly before Cooper arrived for tour of a strip mine in St. Clair County in an early campaign foray.

campaign
trail can get muddy

by BOB LAHEY

MARISSA, Ill. — Richard H. Cooper had come to deep southern Illinois to dig his hands into the bowels of the earth alongside the large, leathery miners who wrest coal from the land.

Instead, he was getting the V.I.P. tour of River King Pit No. 6 by an entourage of management personnel of Peabody Coal Co.

Having left his Winnetka home before daylight for the two-hour flight to the coal country, he arrived before starting time only to learn the mine workers had walked off the job.

"Hi, I'm Dick Cooper, Republican candidate for governor," he said to Mine Supt. Chet Findley. "I'm here to do a day's work."

"Looks like you're the only one," Findley replied. THIS WAS COOPER'S first stop in a planned series of "workdays" during which he says he will "work his way to the governor's mansion" by meeting the people of Illinois and learning their problems.

During handshaking stops, he tells people, "I'm a worker, not a walker." He also will reply, when the uninitiated ask who he's running against, "I'm running against Dan Walker."

There is, of course, the small matter of winning the Republican nomination over former U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, or perhaps State Comptroller George Lindberg. And then it could turn out that the Democratic candidate is State Treasurer Alan Dixon, or conceivably Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

Earlier, as the small four-passenger Aerocommander threaded its way in dim light between layers of clouds toward the south, Cooper sipped coffee and considered that lineup.

"The governor has already lost," he declares. "But nobody has won it yet, and you can't tell at this point if Walker might win it back again."

Cooper is an intense man with deep blue eyes set in a sun-bronzed face. He has a habit of snapping the fingers of both hands in rapid succession when he talks about his goals. "We can make this thing happen."

Snap, snap, snap, snap. IT IS THE ACQUIRED habit of a man who has worked his way from semi-poverty as a stock boy at Gimbel's to the owner of his own trucking company to the top spot in the aggressive, super-sales pitch organizations, Weight Watchers Inc.

HE IS NEW TO politics. But he is "getting comfortable with campaigning" after the first few weeks on the trail.

While waiting for an airplane a week or so ago, he said he had begun to lose that initial awkward feeling that all political neophytes must overcome.

"I was just sitting in the Peoria airport, with an hour to wait, when I suddenly realized I was wasting time. So I got up and started walking around, shaking hands."

He found, said Cooper, "If you walk up to people with your hand outstretched and a smile on your face, they will talk to you." Unfortunately, he added, half the people he met in the airport were from Iowa.

Cooper acknowledges, as the plane starts its descent toward the tiny Sparta, Ill., airport, that he has not developed strong positions on specific issues.

Saturday

"I've never seen anything wrong in saying, 'I don't know,'" says the 35-year-old entrepreneur who accumulated his first million dollars at the age of 27. "I've made a lot of money in the stock market with that attitude. If I'm interested in a company, I don't just read the Standard & Poor report; I go out and look at the company and find out for myself what it's doing."

THEN COOPER IS ON the ground and is being told that the miners have gone out on a wildcat strike in a dispute over working hours. "I won't cross the picket line," he says. But the Peabody spokesman assures him there are many entrances to the 20,000-acre mining complex and there will be no confrontations with pickets.

Many of the entrances have been closed by standing water — hours before, St. Clair County had been deluged by 3.5 inches of rain in three hours.

After an initial briefing in the mine's operations office, Cooper is driven in a mud-covered four-wheel-drive van over the soupy company roads to the bottom of Pit No. 6, which is under eight feet of water.

He is wearing denim work clothes — a wise choice — and a blue double-breasted jacket with gold buttons which would look more fitting at a North Shore yacht club.

He also is wearing soft-leather loafers with tassels. As the van slips and slides through the mud to the bottom of the 100-foot pit, where the mine's chief mechanic is seen slogging knee-deep, one senses Cooper is beginning to realize the loafers are a mistake.

No one is working except two men who are setting pumps on the opposite bank of the flooded pit.

That is the higher side, and a mud-begrimed miner is slithering down a 125-foot face of goop and rain-polished shale, clinging to a rope.

STANDING THERE with the slime creeping toward the tops of his loafers, Cooper makes one more

Price controls on oil to be removed slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and congressional leaders, showing new signs of energy policy compromise, agreed Friday on a proposal to extend oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them slowly over a period not to exceed 39 months.

As a conciliatory gesture, Ford promised to delay his threatened veto of a six-month price control extension until after the new plan can be presented to House and Senate Democrats late next week.

Ford softened his resistance to compromise during an hour-long meeting with House speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who believe Congress can come up with new energy legislation in 30 days.

BUT THE PRESIDENT rejected Mansfield's plea that he sign the six-month control bill "for the sake of the nation" to ward off a gasoline price hike of at least 3 cents a gallon and other inflationary effects of immediate decontrol.

"We found the President most considerate, most helpful, most conciliatory," Mansfield told reporters.

Pact meeting may avert schools strike

by BOB GALLAS

Negotiators for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers and the board of education will meet this weekend in an attempt to avert a possible teacher strike when school opens Tuesday.

Negotiators set another meeting after talks broke off Wednesday with no settlement in salary talks near, according to both sides.

A meeting of all district teachers has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster, Mount Prospect. If talks are unsuccessful, teachers are expected to vote on whether they will strike.

"The situation is extremely grave, but we are working as hard as we can to get things worked out over the weekend," said Clay Marquard, Ill. State Education Assn. representative for the Dist. 59 teachers' union.

MARQUARD TOLD teachers the main problems in negotiations centered around money and a clause that would give teachers a say in how their work force will be reduced should that become necessary due to declining enrollments.

Marquard told teachers he would make a recommendation to them at the meeting Tuesday, but did not give any specifics about what the recommendation would be.

"We will make a decision Monday on what will happen Tuesday," said Alma Parrish, president of the teachers' union. Mrs. Parrish said a decision "will be made Monday whether or not we return to school Tuesday" if negotiations this weekend are successful.

Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell said Friday that if teachers do vote to strike Monday night, a decision on whether schools will remain open won't be made until Tuesday morning.

"It's not practical to think we can open 21 schools, if there's a strike," said Bardwell. "We have to know how many teachers will show up for work," he said.

BARDWELL SAID news would be relayed to parents Tuesday morning through local radio stations.

Mrs. Parrish said she was "optimistic" that a settlement would be reached over the long, holiday weekend.

The board's last pay offer to the teachers, which was rejected, called for a 2 per cent cost-of-living pay increase in addition to the teachers' regular 4 per cent increase for another year of experience.

Two oppose race track annexation

Two Plum Grove-Countryside Park Board members said they oppose the Arlington Heights Park District's efforts to annex the Arlington Park Race Track.

Board members Pamela Dahl and Beverly Hansen said they will support the Salt Creek Park District's claim to the race track property. The Plum Grove-Countryside Park Board has not made a formal statement on the issue.

The Countryside district is a small, protective taxing district in Rolling Meadows near the Salt Creek district.

Mrs. Dahl said she believes "Salt Creek really offers people in the Arlington Park Race Track area more than the Arlington Park District will."

"I think the Arlington Heights Park District is doing this for the money from the stadium. Salt Creek already goes out to the race track people and brings activities to the children there," she said.

School talks go on despite impasse

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 school board members have decided to continue negotiating with teachers despite an impasse declared by board negotiators earlier this week.

Board members met in executive session Thursday night to discuss their next step but no details were released Friday. Teachers had voted Wednesday to send their negotiators back to the table rather than strike.

Because an impasse exists, the next step is for both sides to hire a mediator to settle the situation. Board negotiators and union officials plan to meet Wednesday to decide their plans.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said board members discussed the state of negotiations at length, but he declined to elaborate on their comments.

Trinity preschool to open Sept. 8

Trinity Nursery School, 605 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect, will begin its sixth year of two- and three-day programs for 3- and 4-year-olds Sept. 8.

The school is a state-licensed, non-sectarian institution. Activities for children include arts and crafts, dramatic play, music, language development and physical coordination.

For information and registration, call Marilyn Allen, school director, at 437-0950.

100 bottle caps, $15 taken by burglars

Burglars stole $15 in cash and about 100 redeemable bottle caps from the home of Vernon Gurney, 182 E. Highland Ave., Wheeling police said Friday.

Gurney told police the burglary probably occurred within the last four days while he was on vacation.
